The 24-year-old Chopra, who had come into the showpiece as a hot medal favourite, produced a best

STF recovers skeletal remains of 2 tuskers

POST NEWS NETWORK

Sambalpur, July 24: Forest officials were caught on the wrong foot after a Special Task Force (STF) of the state Crime Branch recovered the half-burnt skeletal remains of two tuskers from Kolagaon reserve forest and Tabaloi jungle under Dhama forest range in this district, Sunday.

The incident comes eight months after forest officials ruled out poaching following recovery of a tusker skeleton from Munder jungle under Sadar forest range in the district.

Preliminary investigation on the bones indicated that the tuskers were adults and within their forties with the incident taking place some months back.

The ashes have been washed away in the rainwater but the fragmented pieces of bones remain on the spot without getting destroyed. While large pieces of bones were recovered from one place, the bones recovered another place were small in size.

When contacted, divisional forest officer (DFO) Biswanath Nilambar said he was aware of the development and can only comment on the issue after visiting the spots and going through the reports prepared for all aspects.

Subhendu Mallick, honorary wildlife warden, alleged that there have been reports of killing of seven tuskers in Sambalpur forest division. He said that the poachers have taken away the ivories after killing the tuskers at Kolagaon and Tabaloi jungles under Dhama forest range and the forest officials were allegedly trying to suppress the incident.

Tara says male actors are given more respect

Mumbai: Tara Surtaria says male actors are often addressed as 'sir' by paparazzi whereas female actors are just called by their first names.

The Tadap actress, who is gearing up for the release of her upcoming film, Ek Villain Returns, recently spoke about male actors being given more respect by the paparazzi than female actors.

The actress also mentioned how male actors are often addressed as 'sir' by the paparazzi whereas the female actors are just called by their first names. Tara also clarified that she is not asking the photographers to address her as 'ma'am'. According to her, all this comes from a general sense that 'man is greater'.

During a promotional interview, the actress was asked about pay parity in the industry and if male and female celebrities are not given an equal platform in a movie. Talking about the same, Tara told a news portal that it can be small things. It doesn't need to be some huge conversation about the big things that we are doing wrong. It can be about the small things and the small differences we can make.

Kalinga Stadium, India's new launchpad for mega events

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Bhubaneswar, July 24: Bhubaneswar, the city of temples which was nowhere in the sports map of India, has now become a favourable destination for Indian athletes to prepare for national and international sporting events.

Apart from hosting several mega sporting events like the men's Hockey World Cup in 2018 and the Asian Athletics Championships in 2017, the iconic Kalinga Stadium is playing a pivotal role in preparing athletes for mega sporting events.

The Kalinga Stadium located in the heart of Bhubaneswar is nowadays known as one of the best sports hubs in India for its world-class infrastructure and facilities.

The City has successfully organised nearly a dozen of international hockey tournaments and several other sporting events in past five years and it is all set to host the 2023 men's hockey World Cup.

People's love for hockey and world-class infrastructure has made the City the home of the game. However, it is not only restricted to hockey alone, as rugby, swimming and football are also the key disciplines that are nurtured here.

Owing to this model, Odisha has grown and evolved into a sports hub and is the preferred destination for different federations.

National and international athletes have been vocal about Odisha's sports ecosystem.

In 2018, right before the men's hockey World Cup, Odisha took the step to support and sponsor the national men's and women's hockey teams for five years, and the result was seen at the Tokyo Olympics. After four decades, Indian men's team brought home a medal (bronze), while the women's team made a historic fourth place finish.

There was euphoria in the country and it was a matter of pride that Odisha played a significant role in the revival of Indian hockey. After the Olympics, Odisha extended its support for Indian hockey by another 10 years.

The City has successfully organised nearly a dozen of international hockey tournaments and several other sporting events in past five years and it is all set to host the 2023 men's hockey World Cup

Odisha is also the only state to set up a bouquet of high-performance centres at the stadium in disciplines including hockey, swimming, football, athletics, weightlifting, sports science and badminton, in partnership with leading corporates like the Tata Group, JSW Sports, Reliance, among others.

Odisha continues to transform its sports landscape, thus empowering its athletes. It has created a defined talent identification pathway for their transition from grassroots to elite levels. Coupled with myriad welfare schemes, financial support and sports infrastructure enable them to stay focussed on their sporting journey.

The sports science centres at the Kalinga Stadium, which include the Abhinav Bindra Targeting Performance Centre and the Khelo India State Centre of Excellence, are equipped with high-end machines and are led by a team of professionals to help analyse and maximise the performance and endurance of the athletes, both national and international.

Currently the high-performance centres (HPC) for hockey, swimming, football, weightlifting, shooting, athletics and sports science are operational and the badminton HPC will be completed in the coming months. In addition, work on the centre of excellence in sports management is also going on in full swing.

As part of the Kalinga Stadium expansion plan, five projects are under construction, which include a Davis Cup standard tennis court, hockey high-performance centre, aquatic centre, India's first indoor athletic centre and staff accommodation.

The Biju Patnaik swimming pool complex at the Kalinga Stadium successfully hosted the Junior Aquatic Nationals. It also hosted the national camp for water polo wherein the Serbian national team engaged in friendlies. Once the aquatic centre is operational later this year, it will be a hub for grooming swimming champions for India.

Asmita Barla, captain of Odisha senior women's hockey team, said, "Odisha government has created a wonderful sports environment both at the state and district level. We get to reside at the sports hostel at Kalinga Stadium and train under the guidance of expert coaches."

"With new infrastructure for hockey coming up, particularly at Sundargarh and Bhubaneswar, we're sure to have larger number of players from the state representing the country."

Not sure if we could still address Murmu informally, say friends

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Rairangpur July 24: With Droupadi Murmu set to take oath as the first tribal President of the country Monday, her neighbours and friends back home are confused over how to address their amigo the next time they meet her.

Ramachandra Murmu, a farmer of Uparbeda village in Mayurbhanj district, said, "Everyone in the president-elect's hometown is proud of her achievements, but I am not sure if I should use 'tu' (informal address) or 'aap' (address with respect) when we talk next".

Ramachandra, who was her classmate in Government Upper Primary School in Uparbeda, recalled that the two would often shared food from the same plate on the school campus.

"We all took part in sporting activities together. All these years, I have used 'tu' to address her. Things have changed now. I am not sure if I can use 'tu' for the first citizen of India. How can a farmer be on equal terms with the President," he said, taking a break from his field work.

Talking more about Murmu, he said, "Her family had landed property, which did not generate revenue. She was a simple and amicable girl who wore the same frock to school."

Another friend, Govind Majhi, said that he had last met Murmu when she was the governor of Jharkhand

"She had visited my home as the governor of Jharkhand. Back then, we conversed like we always did. She is a very down-to-earth person. There was no formality involved. Now, however, I am not so sure. I don't know if I could talk informally with the country's President," he said.

Majhi also looked back on their school days with fondness, and said, "She was among the brightest students in school. I had to drop out due to poverty. She would often invite me to her home for lunch. I remember having 'pakhal bhaat' at her place." Born to a Santhal family in 1958, Murmu studied in Government Upper Primary School in Uparbeda till Class 7 and then moved to Bhubaneswar Government Girl's

Her college mate, Suchitra Samal, said the president-elect was the same person that she was when they met the first time.

"I was pleasantly surprised when she called me two days ago. I wasn't expecting a call from her amid her busy schedule. I had wished her earlier on her success," Samal said.

Samal along with Dangi Murmu had visited Droupadi at Jharkhand Raj Bhavan some years ago.

"We had a fun time reminiscing old days. We talked a lot, teased each other and shared updates from our lives. Droupadi was her usual, cool and composed self," said Dangi.

Samal hopes to get an invitation from the Rashtrapati Bhavan soon. "Let her settle down, we will go and meet her there," she added.

than six crore doses of vaccines. Odisha was the 10th State to cross the mark in 13 months.

The Odisha government recently had urged the Centre to supply 1.9 crore vaccine doses in phases for the free booster drive that commenced in the state July 15 as the stock is expected to last only a couple of days.

While over 26 lakh beneficiaries are due for second dose, 2.65 crore people aged 18 to 59 years will take the precaution dose.

The Health and Family Welfare department had written to the Centre to supply 1.72 crore Covishield and 18.73 lakh Covaxin doses to cover the target population by the end of August.

Director of Family Welfare and nodal officer of Covid vaccination Bijay Panigrahi said, the indent has been submitted to the Union Ministry of Health and the officials have assured us to provide the vaccine doses as and when required.

OPF asks CBSE to allow 50-50 weightage

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar, July 24: Odisha Parents' Federation (OPF) Sunday wrote to Central Board of Secondary Education (CBSE) chairperson voicing grievances of its members over the exam Term-I and Term-II weightage issue for both class X and XII students.

Basudev Bhatt, chairman of OPF, said they have received many calls and emails from students and parents regarding the Term-I and Term-II weightage allocation, which the CBSE implemented for the first time with two terms for the year 2021-2022.

The CBSE in its circular dated

5 July 2021 had stated that in its scoring it would give equal weightage, 50 per cent each, to both the terms I and II. As scheduled, Term-I examinations were conducted in the month of November-December 2021. But days after the publication of Term-I results in

CLASS X, XII EVALUATION

March-2022, news circulated on social media that the board has decided to give weightage of 30-70 instead of 50-50 to Term-I and Term-II respectively. When that news spread and students sought clarification, CBSE through its official twitter handle declared that news to be fake, essentially confirming the 50-50 equal weightage regime.

Term-II board examination was held in May-June 2022. After the declaration of results, in one circular the board stated that majority of its committee members recommended that the weightage for Term-I (theory) should be 30 per cent and Term-II (theory) should be 70 per cent. As far as practical was concerned, it was decided that equal weightage would be given to both Term I and Term-II.

This caught the students and parents in surprise as they were expecting an equal weightage scoring system. The students, who had eight months to prepare for Term-I and only 2-3 months for Term-II, had generally secured more percentage in Term-I than II. Seeing Term-I get significantly lesser weightage than Term-II broke their hearts.

Bhatt said that what the board did with the students should be considered unjust as it has left many of the students and their parents in anxiety and stress.

That's why OPF is requesting the board to allow those students who are asking for it an equal weightage 50-50 scoring system. They have also made the same request to education minister Dharmendra Pradhan.

Mammals became warm-blooded 233mn years ago: Study

Mammals and birds produce their own body heat and control their body temperatures. This process is known as endothermy, or warm-bloodedness, and it's considered to be one of the factors that helps them dominate every global ecosystem.

Warm-blooded animals are more active during both days and nights than their cold-blooded counterparts and they reproduce faster. But until now it hasn't been known exactly when endothermy originated in mammalian ancestry. A new study published in Nature, by Julien Benoit of University of the Witwatersrand, Kenneth D. Angielczyk of University of Chicago, Ricardo Miguel Nóbrega Araújo of Universidade de Lisboa, and Romain David of the Natural History Museum, changes that status quo.

A combination of scientists' intuition, fossils from South Africa's Karoo region and cutting-edge technology has provided the answer: endothermy developed in mammalian ancestors about 233 million years ago during the Late Triassic period.

The origin of mammalian endothermy has been one of the great unsolved mysteries of palaeontology. Many different approaches have been used to try to pinpoint the answer, but they have often given vague or conflicting results. These scientists think their method shows real promise because it has been validated using a very large number of modern species.

It suggests that endothermy evolved at a time when many other features of the mammalian body plan were also falling into place. Warm-bloodedness is the key to what makes mammals what they are today. Endothermy was likely the starting point where mammalness evolved: the acquisition of an insulating fur coat; the evolution of a larger brain, supplied with warmer blood; a faster reproduction rate; and a more active life are all defining mammalian traits that evolved because of warm-bloodedness. Until now, most scientists had speculated that the transition to endothermy was a gradual, slow process over tens of millions of years beginning near the Permo-Triassic boundary, although some suggested it happened closer to the origin of mammals, about 200 million years ago.

In contrast, the study results suggest that it appeared in mammalian ancestors some 33 million years prior to the origin of mammals. The new date is consistent with recent findings that many of the traits usually associated with "mammalness", such as whiskers and fur, also evolved earlier than previously expected.

And according to study results, endothermy evolved very quickly

The origin of mammalian endothermy has been one of the great unsolved mysteries of palaeontology. Many different approaches have been used to try to pinpoint the answer, but they have often given vague or conflicting results.

Until now, most scientists had speculated that the transition to endothermy was a gradual, slow process over tens of millions of years. In contrast, according to study results, endothermy evolved very quickly in geological terms, in less than a million years.

In mammals, the canals in the inner ear adapt to higher body temperature by changing their geometry. The researchers realised that this change in the semicircular canals' shape would be easy to trace through geological time using fossils.

The three semicircular canals of the inner ear are oriented in the three dimensions of space. They're filled with a fluid that flows in the canals as the head moves and activates receptors to tell the brain the exact three-dimensional position of the head and body.

The viscosity, or runniness, of this fluid (called the endolymph) is critical to the balance organ's ability to efficiently detect head rotation and aid balance. In the same way as a piece of butter turns from solid to liquid in a warm pan, or honey becomes thicker when it is cold, the viscosity of the endolymph changes with body temperature.

That means the endolymph's viscosity would normally be altered by the evolution of a higher body temperature. But the body has to adapt because changing viscosity would prevent the semicircular canals from working properly. In mammals, the canals adapt to higher body temperature by changing their geometry. The researchers realised that this change in the semicircular canals' shape would be easy to trace through geological time using fossils.

Pinpointing the species in which the change of geometry occurred would, they reasoned, provide an accurate guide to when endothermy evolved. They needed fossils to test their hypothesis - and that's where South Africa's wealth of fossils from the Karoo region came in.

The arid Karoo region preserves a treasure trove of fossils, many of them belonging to mammalian ancestors. These fossils offer an unbroken record of the evolution of life over a period of almost 100 million years. They document the transformation from reptilian-like animals (therapsids) to mammals in exquisite detail.

Using cutting edge CT-scanning techniques and 3D modelling, we were able to reconstruct the inner ear of dozens of mammalian ancestors from the South African Karoo and elsewhere in the world. From there we could point out exactly which species had an inner ear anatomy consistent with a warmer body temperature, and which ones did not.

One thing we had to take into consideration was the geographical position of the Karoo at the time when these animals lived. It was situated closer to the South Pole than it is now as a result of continental drift. That means the warmer body temperature suggested by the geometry of the inner ear cannot be due to an overall warmer climate. As the South African climate was colder on average, the change in inner ear fluid viscosity can only have been caused by a generally warmer body temperature in mammalian ancestors.

This is an exciting time for the field. Until now, to reconstruct the evolution of endothermy, scientists only had access to skeletal features that questionably correlated with warm-bloodedness. Every attempt was a long shot to get any accurate results. The inner ear, as this research shows, changes this. We believe it may be the key to unlocking more knowledge about mammalian ancestors in future.

Kids study under trees as school lacks classrooms

POST NEWS NETWORK

Padmapur, July 24: The government spends a lot of funds to improve infrastructure in schools. However, the Karanpalli primary school in Chandbali block of Bhadrak district is plagued by shortage of infrastructure. As a result, children have been forced to study under trees, sources said Friday. The suffering of the kids has triggered resentment among the local people.

Sources said that there are 328 students in the school from Classes I to VIII. The school has four classrooms, out of which two are functional while the remaining ones are being repaired. Teachers said that accommodating all the students in two classrooms is impossible. Students of some of the classes are taught on the school verandah while others have to study under trees.

Following complaints from local people, a group of mediapersons visited the school a couple of days back to take stock of the situation.

They were shocked to see 48 students of Class-VII, 40 of Class-II and 25 of Class-III sitting under trees amid slight drizzle. They also found Class-I kids attending the classes on the balcony of the school. They learnt that children are being taught under such deplorable conditions for a substantial amount of time. Guardians have expressed their displeasure over the situation which has cropped up due to shortage of classrooms. They sought to know why classrooms are being repaired during the monsoons.

When contacted, cluster resources centre coordinator (CRCC) Gorachand Majhi said that once the classrooms are repaired, things will be sorted out.

Children cross river on parents' shoulders to reach schools

The incident comes close on the heels of a similar incident in Ganjam where students were forced to cross a flooded stream with the help of a rope in absence of a proper road

POST NEWS NETWORK

Sambalpur, July 24: School-going children in Debahali village under Badmal panchayat of Redhakhol block in this district face a tough obstacle during the rainy season every year as they have to cross a swelling river to reach their school.

The Harihar river flowing near their village swells during the rainy season and disrupts all communication to the other side. As a result, guardians have to carry their kids on their shoulders and wade through the flooded river to drop them at an Anganwadi centre and a primary school which are on the other side. Rolling up their trousers or lungis, the parents slowly cross the river in spate.

The incident comes close on the heels of a similar incident where students in a village under Patrapur block of Ganjam district were forced to cross a flooded stream with the help of a rope in absence of a proper road to reach their respective homes. The incident has exposed the sorry state of development in remote parts of the state.

A guardian Debaki Bhoi alleged that their village has no Anganwadi centre or primary school. Budhikhamar village in Bhalakata panchayat has an Anganwadi centre and a primary school but is on the other side of the river.

Our children have no other way than crossing the river to reach their school, she said. They do not face any problem during summer season but their problem aggravates once the rainy season starts.

The river swells with floodwater during monsoons but due to lack of any alternative route or bridge on the river, the elders risk their lives and carry their children to drop them at the Anganwadi centre and the primary school and also bring them back home after the school hours, she said.

The children get an undeclared holiday if the river is swollen to the brim due to heavy rainfall, she added.

Another guardian Bharat Kumar Dharua said the river was raging Tuesday for which the children were unable to attend their schools and got a holiday. The river was overflowing with water up to the chest for which they were unable to carry their children to drop them at school, he said.

He said that the villagers apprised the state higher education minister and local MLA Rohit Pujari of their plight during the rainy season when he had visited their area while campaigning for election. Pujari had then assured them to resolve their problems but they are yet to see any steps being taken for building a bridge on the river, he said.

He lamented that despite presence of a plethora of government welfare schemes the benefits still elude the needy.

When contacted, district Collector Ananya Das said a probe will be undertaken to ascertain the reality behind the problem. She has directed the Sub-Collector to visit the spot and submit a report to her and action will be taken once the report is available to the district administration, she added.

MURMU SYMBOL OF MODI'S COMMITMENT TOWARDS TRIBAL EMPOWERMENT

The election of Droupadi Murmu ji as the President of India is historic for Indian democracy. Her remarkable journey from Odisha's extremely poor tribal background, that too from the most backward Santhali community, to the highest constitutional position is marked by her struggles, grit and determination. Her elevation as 'First Citizen' is the matter of great joy and contentment from the entire country, more so for the tribal community. The nation had to wait for 70 long years to see a tribal woman reaching the highest office of the land. It marks yet another victory for our democracy and our Constitution.

The nation had to wait for 70 long years to see a tribal woman reaching the highest office of the land. It marks yet another victory for our democracy and our Constitution spire today's generation. All this underlines how the Narendra Modi government is tirelessly working for the honour and empowerment of our tribal society.

From Kashmir to the Northeast, a large chunk of our tribal population dominates our rural landscape in Jharkhand, Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh, Odisha, Rajasthan and Gujarat. Post-Independence the Congress party exploited them as its vote-bank and ignored the tribal-dominated Northeast. It was PM Shri Narendra Modi who immediately after taking over as the Prime Minister began the transformation of our tribal areas at the right earnest. To kickstart the growth and development of the tribal-dominated Northeast, he formulated the Act East Policy. In the past eight years our North-eastern states have been successfully integrated into the national mainstream to become partners in growth and progress.

For decades poverty and social insecurity has been the biggest challenge for our tribal communities. This fear and uncertainty was tapped by the Left extremism in some states which led to tribal youth getting radicalised. This resulted in total disruption of growth and development in some of our tribal areas. The Narendra Modi government's 'zero tolerance' policy towards terrorism has led to near complete elimination of Naxalism. Today violence and unrest in our tribal areas has been replaced by development and peace.

The socio-economic development and empowerment of our tribal society, their political representation has always been an integral part of the BJP's philosophy. And, today under the leadership of PM Shri Narendra Modi India has chosen Droupadi Murmu as its first tribal woman President. It is also the shining example of PM Shri Narendra Modi's resolute commitment towards empowerment of our tribal society.

linked to welfare and progress of tribal communities. The budget for Tribal Sub-Plan has been increased four-fold in 2021-22, from ₹21,000 crores to ₹86,000 crores.

Today piped water is now being supplied to 1.28 crore tribal homes under the Jal Jeevan Mission, 38 lakh houses under the Pradhanmantri Awas Yojna and 1.45 crore toilets have been constructed while 82 lakh Ayushman Bharat health cards have been distributed to tribal people. Similarly, the budget of Eklavya Model Schools specially developed for tribal students has been increased from ₹278 crores to ₹1,418 crores, while fund allocation for scholarships for tribal students has also been hiked from ₹978 crores to ₹2,546 crores. As part of entrepreneurship development initiative, 3,110 Van Dhan Vikas Kendras and 53,000 Van Dhan self-help groups have been established with an expenditure of ₹327 crores.

Our tribal areas are most-affected by mining activities, but the financial gains from these mining activities were never shared with our tribal population. To address this lacuna, the Narendra Modi government created a District Mineral Fund so that 30% earnings from the mining activities could be spent in the development of tribal areas. So far ₹57,000 crore has been accumulated and being used in various development works. Similarly, the number of Tribes India outlets, run by TRIFED which takes care of the marketing and sale of products made by our tribal communities, has been increased from 29 to 116.

PM Shri Narendra Modi has also brought rich tribal culture and heritage to the national limelight. Tribal arts, literature, traditional knowledge and skills have been included in various curricula. As part of 'Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav', a nationwide series of programmes are being organised to highlight the contributions of our great tribal leaders in our freedom struggle.

The nation now celebrates the birth anniversary of Bhagwan Birsa Munda, which falls on November 15, as Janjatiya Gaurav Diwas. The Narendra Modi government is developing Tribal Freedom Fighter Museums across the country with an expenditure of ₹200 crores. ## Lanka's Next Test

In a win for democracy, mass protests in Sri Lanka recently led to the resignation of President Gotabaya Rajapaksa and Prime Minister Mahinda Rajapaksa. A strongman who won popularity for overseeing the end of Sri Lanka's civil war in 2009 (while his older brother, Mahinda, was president), Gotabaya was elected in November 2019 and promised to safeguard national security and deliver prosperity. He failed miserably.

Despite allegations of corruption, war crimes, and attacks on journalists, the Rajapaksa government had a powerful mandate, which was reinforced nine months later when the brothers' party, Sri Lanka Podujana Peramuna (the Sri Lanka People's Front), won a two-thirds majority in Parliament. Yet during his short tenure, the Rajapaksas drove the country into bankruptcy, food insecurity, and spiraling inflation.

Gotabaya announced his candidacy just days after the 2019 Easter Sunday bombings, promising a strong response to terrorism. In the months that followed, newspapers' and radio stations' frenzied coverage heightened people's fear of Muslims (who comprise 10% of the population), and attacks on them increased. Gotabaya capitalised on this environment, portraying himself as a defender of the Sinhala-Buddhist majority who would transform Sri Lanka into a Singapore of the Indian Ocean. The clergy, media, military, political elites, and local business tycoons all adopted the same rhetoric, tying their fortunes to his.

The Buddhist clergy, for example, continuously reaffirmed their trust in Gotabaya through his presidency. In return, he established a Buddhist Advisory Council of notable monks to help guide his policy decisions. Even in January of this year, as families began rationing food, and as the central bank sold its remaining gold reserves to pay back an international bond, the Buddhist establishment spoke up for Gotabaya, arguing that he was still the only leader who could save the country.

By March, hospitals were reporting shortages of essential medicines, and two elderly men died while queuing for gasoline. Unable to pay for fuel to produce electricity, the government instituted rolling blackouts that culminated in 13-hour power cuts at the height of a suffocating heat wave. That was the final straw. Protesters stormed the streets and demanded the Rajapaksas' resignations.

The political class responded by playing musical chairs within the Cabinet of Ministers, while demonstrators occupied the area surrounding the Presidential Secretariat. The space that Rajapaksa had set aside as an "agitation area" – a move heavily criticized for limiting people's freedom of assembly – was re-named "GotaGoGama" ("Gota Go Village"). The GGG became the home of the Aragalaya (struggle) against the government, which has now raided the site and arrested protest leaders.

The Aragalaya has been unusual in that it welcomed Sri Lankans from all ethnic backgrounds. In April, protesters outside the Presidential Secretariat included activists from the Muslim community – a direct rejection of the chauvinist sentiment Gotabaya had stoked. Demonstrators also cooked a mixture of water and rice (kanji) to commemorate Tamil civilians who died during the last stages of the war, when indiscriminate shelling made it impossible for them to secure other food.

The Aragalaya thus became a place where people lived out the alternative to the Rajapaksa brand of politics. The protesters celebrated unity amid diversity, demonstrating that hope comes not from leaders but from the power of people.

But does this solidarity reflect a mere marriage of convenience? Just two and a half years ago, many of the current anti-government protesters endorsed the Rajapaksas' brand of majoritarian politics. Today, they complain that Parliament is full of cheats and liars. Yet it is they who voted for the charlatans in free and fair elections.

The Rajapaksas were given a mandate despite their well-known record of corruption, authoritarianism, and violence. The protests began not when the family stole public funds or trampled on minority rights, but when Sinhalese were called "extremists and terrorists" just for demanding food.

The institutions that underwrote Gotabaya's power have now lost credibility. Businesses and others who aligned with the Rajapaksas are being shamed on social media, and any elite Buddhist clergy who dare to show up at protests are lambasted. The military and the police, once praised for their service, are now seen as vehicles of state repression, and major media organisations have been condemned for whipping up anti-minority sentiment.

The question now is what will fill the vacuum. Sri Lankans have a rare opportunity to build a new identity based on this struggle for dignity. After being tear-gassed and battered by the police, Sinhalese protesters have caught a glimpse of the violence and mistreatment that Tamils have suffered. After watching their businesses collapse from lack of electricity, they now have a sense of what Muslims feel when their businesses are torched by angry mobs. And after feeling the effects of sharply rising inflation, all households now recognise that plantation workers cannot live on $3 per day.

In each case, the Sinhala-Buddhist majority has been given a window onto the decades of deprivation suffered by minorities. Sinhala Buddhists are connecting with their inner Tamils and Muslims. But only by building on this shared trauma can Sri Lankans transform resentment against the Rajapaksas into a new social contract. By renegotiating our communal bonds and relationships, we can construct a new collective identity. That means rejecting majoritarianism and corruption, and embracing our shared struggle for a free and prosperous future.

SPECTRUM DIGITALISATION

Time to build a digital lifeline

In periods of crisis, digital technologies provide a lifeline that keeps people, communities, and businesses functioning. From COVID-19 to violent conflicts and natural disasters, being connected has allowed us to continue working, learning, and communicating.

How policymakers have responded to these emergencies has played a large part. In particular, as a new paper by the World Bank Group's Development Committee shows, more agile regulation has accelerated digitalisation and unleashed innovation. In today's global context of several overlapping crises, this needs to become the norm. Secure and resilient internet infrastructure is a fundamental necessity.

During the pandemic, as more and more of our lives went online, internet usage spiked worldwide. In 2020, 800 million people went online for the first time, and 58 low- and middle-income countries used digital payments to deliver COVID-19 relief. To manage that surge, governments and regulators in more than 80 countries moved quickly to change rules, including those governing the allocation of radio spectrum – the electromagnetic waves used for wireless communications. In Ghana, regulators assigned temporary radio spectrum to networks in high demand, and all mobile-service providers were granted permission to expand coverage. This resulted in better-quality service for more than 30 million mobile subscribers, letting them "go" to work, learn online, and access essential services.

Agile regulations have also helped digital technologies offer critical support to people in fragile and conflict situations. In Ukraine, the presence of a strong internet connection through satellite links, even while terrestrial infrastructure is under attack, has enabled the government to communicate with its citizens in real time. At the beginning of the war, shelling and cyberattacks were predicted to take down the internet, but innovations such as the satellite hookups have kept the country online. Here, too, the Ukrainian government moved quickly to speed up permissions and adapt rules.

But a digital lifeline is effective only if it is safeguarded from cyberattacks, something that Ukraine knows well. For many years, the country has been a testing ground for strikes on infrastructure. Hackers carried out waves of attacks that hit Ukraine's distribution centers, call centers, and power grid. And it's not just Ukraine. All countries are vulnerable to these incursions. The United States fell victim to cyberattacks last year that took down its largest fuel pipeline, leaving many Americans in long lines to fill their gas tanks. And in Africa, Kenyan internet users endured more than 14 million malware incidents in 2020.

Like cyberattacks, nature can cause damage to communications infrastructure that demands an agile reaction. A volcanic eruption in January sent the island nation of Tonga into digital darkness. The eruption cut Tonga's single undersea telecom cable and threw the country into 38 days of isolation from internet and much of the outside world. This crisis has prompted discussions about how to strengthen the network and emergency-response systems, so Tongans are not at risk of digital darkness again.

To mitigate such vulnerabilities, unleashing digitalisation needs to be a high priority even in periods of relative calm. Potentially transformative yet fast-evolving technologies require policymakers to promote financing, regulations, and institutions that make it easier to test out new ideas in real life. Some countries are starting to make progress. Kazakhstan is using agile regulation to digitalise, decentralise, and decarbonise its vitally important energy operations.

Unlocking the potential of digitalisation for the masses through well-targeted regulation can also help close the digital divide and improve welfare. Recent research has shown that the availability of cheaper internet access increases employment among low-income households. With the world facing multiple emergencies, policymakers need to mobilise digital connectivity to improve the daily welfare of the most vulnerable populations. Right now, innovation is moving so fast that many officials, especially in developing countries, are finding it hard to keep up and ensure that the benefits of digitalisation reach the people who need them most. But we should not need a crisis to accelerate the transformation. Now is the time to build a digital lifeline – before the next disaster hits.

WORDSWORTH

Upper crust

In trying to get to the root of this dismissive way to describe the upper classes, aristocracy or social elite, we have to start by clearing away the obscuring undergrowth of supposition. Many sources say it's from the US. That's because the OED says it is and cites as its first two examples works by Thomas Chandler Haliburton, with a third from John Bartlett's Dictionary of Americanisms. The earliest example isn't from America, but Britain. More disinformation comes from that splendid body of people, the guides who herd tourists around the ancient buildings of Britain. In kitchens, they explain the old method of baking bread in an oven. This was heated by burning dry twigs in it. Ashes were then raked out and bread dough was put in to bake. The bottom of the loaf was over-baked because it was sitting on the hot oven floor and ashes stuck to it. The upper crust was properly baked, however, and was obviously more desirable.

Reconsider decision

Sir, Railway Minister Ashwini Vaishnav has informed the Parliament that extending concession to senior citizens of the country tantamounts to financial burden on the Ministry. Quoting the figures for the fiscal 2019-20, he has appraised the House that as much as ₹1667 crore has been spent towards concession to the elders. He has further advised through the august House that the senior citizens should not move out during the pandemic. Senior citizens have personal and social commitments and they have to discharge them by visiting their near and dear ones. As such, the Minister should reconsider the decision taken by his Ministry for the well-being of the senior citizens of the country whose contribution to the nation building process can hardly be undermined. Reversing the decision would be a fitting tribute to this section of our society in the 75th year of our Independence which is being observed as Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav. Sanjib Kumar Das, CUTTACK

Participative democracy

Sir, As expected, NDA's presidential candidate Droupadi Murmu was declared the winner by a huge margin of votes. This is the beauty of Indian democracy that a woman from a tribal community has been elected to the highest constitutional position. She has become the first tribal leader and the second woman (after Pratibha Patil) to be elected President of India. Her elevation to the top constitutional post is a landmark in the country's post-Independence history. May this victory mean that there should be a really big change in the lives of Dalits, deprived women and tribals of the country. Marginalised and victimised over the decades, more than 700 Scheduled Tribes with a total population of around 10 crore can now hope that their pressing issues will be highlighted and addressed at the highest level. The tribal community has been grappling with poverty, denial of rights, loss of agricultural land and traditional livelihoods, displacement triggered by industrialisation, deforestation and mining operations, and lack of access to the government's welfare schemes. It is no secret that even after seven decades of Independence, the marginalised sections have to go through various levels of struggle to gain representation and participation. Now after Droupadi Murmu was elected as the President, it can be said that the country has strengthened its democratic nature day by day and has taken concrete steps towards ensuring everyone's participation in it. # FAREWELL ADDRESS PROTECT ENVIRONMENT: KOVIND

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, July 24: Mother Nature is in deep agony and the climate crisis can endanger the very future of this planet, outgoing President Ram Nath Kovind said in his farewell address to the nation on Sunday as he appealed to all to protect the environment for the coming generations.

Emphasising that the country is getting equipped to make the 21st century "the century of India", Kovind highlighted the importance of healthcare and education and said these, along with economic reforms, would enable citizens to pursue happiness by discovering their potential. President-elect Droupadi Murmu will be sworn in as the country's 15th President on Monday.

In his last televised address to the nation, Kovind said, "The pandemic has underlined the need to further improve the public healthcare infrastructure. I am glad that the government has accorded top priority to this task. "Once education and healthcare are in place, economic reforms will let citizens find the best course for their lives, he said, adding that "I firmly believe that our country is getting equipped to make the 21st century, the century of India". He said the National Education Policy will go a long way in making it possible for young Indians to connect with their heritage and also find their feet in the twenty-first century.

mention of the threat to the environment and asked all citizens to take care of it for future generations. "Mother Nature is in deep agony and the climate crisis can endanger the very future of this planet. We must take care of our environment, our land, air and water for the sake of our children. "In our daily lives and routine choices, we must be more careful to protect our trees, rivers, seas and mountains as well as all other living beings. As the first citizen, if I have to give one advice to my fellow citizens, it has to be this," he added. President Kovind also hailed the trinity of ideals of liberty, equality and fraternity, saying they must not be mistaken as abstractions because they "are lofty, noble and uplifting". "Our history, not only of modern times but also from ancient times, reminds us that they are real; that they can be realised, and indeed have been realised in different eras. "Our ancestors and founders of our modern nation exemplified the meaning of justice, liberty, equality and fraternity with hard work and an attitude of service. We only have to follow in their footsteps and keep walking," he said. And what do such ideals mean for a common citizen today? Kovind asked.

"I believe the chief goal is to help them discover the joy of living. For that, first of all, their basic necessities must be taken care of," the president emphasised.

During his address, the President went down memory lane to highlight the inherent power of vibrant democratic institutions. Kovind recalled his earlier days when the country had just achieved independence and said, "There was a fresh wave of energy to rebuild the country; there were new dreams. I too had a dream, that one day I would be able to participate in a meaningful way in this nation-building exercise".

"A young boy living in a mud house could not have any idea about the highest Constitutional office of the Republic. But it is a testament to the strength of India's democracy that it has created pathways to let each citizen take part in the shaping of our collective destiny." If that Ram Nath Kovind from village Paraunkh is addressing you today, it is solely thanks to the inherent power of our vibrant democratic institutions," he said.

In his farewell speech on the eve of his completing five-year tenure as the President, Kovind said the founders of our modern nation exemplified the meaning of justice, liberty, equality and fraternity with hard work and an attitude of service, and "we only have to follow in their footsteps and keep walking".

Partha to be taken to Odisha hospital

The court directed that the minister be produced before a special ED court in Kolkata through virtual mode at 4 pm Monday

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Kolkata, July 24: The Calcutta High Court Sunday directed the Enforcement Directorate (ED) to take West Bengal minister Partha Chatterjee, arrested in connection with the school jobs scam, to AIIMS Bhubaneswar Monday by air ambulance.

The court directed that the minister be produced before a special ED court in Kolkata through virtual mode at 4 pm Monday. TMC, on the other hand, demanded a time-bound probe in the ED case against Chatterjee, asserting the party will not interfere politically if any leader has done anything wrong.

ED also produced the senior TMC leader's associate Arpita Mukherjee before a court, which remanded her to one-day custody of the agency. ED personnel raided several locations in the state July 22 as part of their probe into the money trail involved in a teacher recruitment scam at government-sponsored and aided schools. Crores of rupees in cash along with other items were allegedly recovered from Mukherjee's residence, sources said. Chatterjee and Mukherjee were arrested as part of ED's investigation into the scam.

After hearing pleadings in a revision application moved by the ED challenging a lower court order sending Chatterjee to state-run SSKM Hospital after his lawyers claimed he was ill, Justice Chaudhuri directed, "The investigating agency is directed to take the accused by air ambulance to AIIMS, Bhubaneswar in the early morning on 25th July, 2022."

He directed that the AIIMS, Bhubaneswar authority will medically examine the accused by a team of specialist doctors of cardiology, nephrology, respiratory medicines and endocrinology. ED moved the high court challenging Bankshall Court order which directed that Chatterjee, who complained of uneasiness after his arrested, be admitted to SSKM Hospital.

Man asks cops not to urinate, thrashed

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Thiruvananthapuram, July 24: Kerala police has suspended the three policemen who allegedly beat up a man for objecting to them urinating outside the walls of his house near Kilimanoor here.

Top officials of the state police confirmed that the three policemen were suspended, pending departmental enquiry, on Saturday itself hours after the incident was reported.

Besides the departmental enquiry, the three would also be facing criminal proceedings as an FIR was also lodged the same day against them, police said.

An officer of Kilimanoor police station said an FIR was lodged Saturday afternoon itself when the incident happened and the accused were also arrested. While refusing to give details of the FIR or the sections under which the accused were booked, the officer said they were released on station bail after their arrest was recorded.

The victim, however, had alleged that police took no action on his complaint, delayed various procedures, like recording his statement, and repeatedly tried to settle the matter.

According to the victim-complainant, the accused are posted at Changanassery police station in Kottayam district of Kerala and were on their way to a police association meeting when the incident occurred.

The complainant told a TV channel that when he objected to the accused urinating outside the boundary wall of his home, they hit him on both sides of the head and also injured his hands.

Thereafter, they left the scene in the vehicle which he chased down and removed its key, the complainant said.

Chhattisgarh BJP MLA triggers row

Bilaspur: Chhattisgarh BJP MLA Dr Krishnamurti Bandhi has suggested that the use of bhang and cannabis be encouraged as alternatives to liquor for addiction, claiming that persons hooked on these substances hardly commit offences like rape, murder and dacoity. The legislator's statement, which he had made while talking to reporters on the sidelines of a programme in the state's Gaurela-Pendra-Marwahi district Saturday, triggered a row with the ruling Congress questioning how a public representative can promote addiction. The sale and consumption of cannabis is banned under the provisions of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act, while that of bhang, an edible mixture made using leaves of cannabis plant, is permitted under the law, officials said. Reacting to the MLA's statement, Congress's Bilaspur district unit spokesman Abhay Narayan Rai said how Bandhi, who is a former state health minister, can give such a statement to promote addiction instead of suggesting ways to free society of it.

It theatre commands of tri-services soon: Rajnath

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Jammu, July 24: Defence Minister Rajnath Singh Sunday said the Centre has decided to set up joint theatre commands of the tri-services to enhance coordination among the armed forces.

The defence minister also said India is moving quickly from being the world's largest importer of defence equipment to an exporter.

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh felicitates family members of a martyr during a programme commemorating 'Kargil Vijay Diwas' in Jammu

He was speaking during a programme organised by the Jammu Kashmir People's Forum at Gulshan Ground near Jammu University here to pay tributes to the martyrs of the Indian Armed Forces.

"Keeping in view (joint operations as seen in Operation Vijay in Kargil), we have decided to set up joint theatre commands (in the country)," Singh said. Paying tributes to the Kargil martyrs, the defence minister said the country cannot forget their supreme sacrifice to safeguard the country's territorial integrity and sovereignty.

"It is the duty of the society and the people to give their utmost respect to the martyrs and their families," he said. "Whatever support you can offer, do it for their families. It is the responsibility of each citizen," he added.

Major parties 'headless' in UP ahead of 2024 elections

The Congress remains in a self-demolition mode. The party has been headless since March, when it faced its worst ever drubbing in the Assembly polls

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Lucknow, July 24: Even as political parties across the country have already started preparing for the 2024 Lok Sabha elections, major political parties in Uttar Pradesh remain in a state of disarray after the Assembly elections held earlier this year.

Major political parties in Uttar Pradesh are 'headless' and their organisations directionless. Most parties are apparently working out caste arithmetic for the next Lok Sabha elections before they appoint a state head. Some are even waiting for rival parties to announce their state presidents before they do so. The state's ruling BJP has been working without a full-time state president since March this year. The incumbent Swatantra Dev Singh is now a minister in the Yogi Adityanath government and is mainly preoccupied with his ministerial duties.

While the functioning of the BJP organisation has not been affected because party programmes are being efficiently carried out by the office bearers of the party, the absence of a full-time state president is impacting the party.

"It has been four months since we had a full-time president and this does take away from the organization because Swatantra Dev Singh has his ministerial work to attend to," said a party functionary. The Samajwadi Party (SP) also seems to be in complete disarray at the moment.

SP President Akhilesh Yadav has dissolved all organisational units of the party and allies are either being shown the door or have left on their own. A section of the party leaders is speaking out against Akhilesh Yadav and Muslim MLAs and MPs are making their disillusionment with the party policies clear.

For a party that aims to make big gains in the next Lok Sabha elections, the SP needs to build up a robust organisation, address issues being raised by the senior leaders and also mobilise cadres. The refusal of Akhilesh Yadav to pull up his socks where his party is concerned, could land the SP into a Congress-like situation, sooner than later.

The Congress, meanwhile, remains in a self-demolition mode. The party has been headless since March, when it faced its worst ever drubbing in the Assembly polls. It does not have a state president and general secretary in charge Priyanka Gandhi Vadra has visited Lucknow only once in five months, that too barely for a few hours. The party is being run either by third and fourth rung leaders who belong to Team Priyanka or by paid employees. "We have stopped even visiting the party office because there is no political activity or discussion. In fact, we do not even recognise majority of the people there. The party has transformed itself into an NGO," said a former UPCC president. The Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP), meanwhile, remains directionless when it comes to its political direction. A former BSP MLA said: "We do not know whether we are going right or left in the next elections. Going by Mayawati's tweets, nearly 60 per cent are in BJP's favour while 40 per cent are against it. We do not know what to make of it."

He said that the cadres were confused about whether the party would position itself against the SP, as it did in Azamgarh Lok Sabha by-elections, or against BJP in the 2024 elections.

AAP govt accuses Centre of 'hijacking' plantation event

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, July 24: Delhi Environment Minister Gopal Rai Sunday alleged that the Centre hijacked an event of the Arvind Kejriwal government at the Asola Bhatti Wildlife Sanctuary with the Delhi Police putting up banners carrying pictures of Prime Minister Narendra Modi at the venue last night.

He said Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal was supposed to attend the event but decided not to participate following the incident. Kejriwal had also skipped the weekly meeting with Lieutenant Governor V K Saxena Friday, against the backdrop of the LG recommending a CBI probe into alleged lapses and irregularities in the implementation of the Delhi government's excise policy.

Rai alleged the Delhi Police acted on the directions of the prime minister's office. The 'Van Mahotsav' which started from the Central Ridge July 11 was to culminate with the plantation of 1 lakh saplings at the Asola Bhatti Wildlife Sanctuary on Sunday.

"The Delhi Police reached the location of the event last night and took control of the pandal and the stage. They forcibly put up banners carrying pictures of PM Modi... Banners carrying photos of Lieutenant Governor and Chief Minister Kejriwal were taken down," Rai alleged at a press conference here.

The Delhi Police warned of action if the banners carrying pictures of PM Modi were removed. They threatened the officers involved in the preparation to step back, while the banners belonging to the AAP government were torn down, he claimed. The lieutenant governor and the chief minister were supposed to attend the event and all preparations had been made, he said.

"An event of the Kejriwal government has been turned into a political event of PM Modi and he was not even going to attend it... Following the incident, the Delhi chief minister and I have now decided not to participate in the programme," he said. Rai said that attempts are being made to malign the Delhi government and alleged that Satyendar Jain was arrested on "frivolous charges", and a conspiracy is now being hatched to arrest Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia.

The CM had to go to Singapore but the file was blocked, he said. Saxena had on Thursday written to Kejriwal advising him not to go for the World Cities Summit to be held in Singapore from July 31, stating that it was a conference of mayors.

Rai alleged the incidents that have transpired in the last one and half months could not have happened "without the go ahead from the PMO." "Who doesn't know your face and name, PM Modi... But sending police to put up your photos in the dark of the night shows you are extremely afraid of the rising popularity of Kejriwal. This is not good for democracy," he said.

The minister said the police are supposed to ensure the safety and security of people and not put up banners of PM Modi. "I wonder what message they want to send out to people. This is not the first time we are conducting a tree plantation event."

Rai told reporters that the banners carrying pictures of PM Modi had been put up on an LED screen installed to show educational programmes to children. "We do not want to fight anyone. We will continue our plantation drive. So far, we have planted around 9 lakh saplings. The target is to plant 35 lakh saplings this year," he said. The minister said more than 2.10 crore saplings have been planted in Delhi since Kejriwal came to power in 2014.

He said the plantation drives have played a crucial role in curbing air pollution in the capital, reducing PM 2.5 and PM 10 concentrations by 25 per cent in the past five years.

Delhi Police hired 100 photographers to capture Cong moves

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

New Delhi, July 24: In a first of its kind move, the Delhi Police hired 100 private photographers to cover all happenings, including Congress protests, around the headquarters of the Enforcement Directorate when the Congress leaders Rahul Gandhi and Sonia Gandhi were summoned there for questioning.

The strategic move, a senior police official said, was done by the department to keep an eye on any untoward incident that may have arisen due to Congress' workers protest during this time.

Delhi Police has never hired private photographers for such situations. It hired the photographers from private event management companies through which the photographers were deployed in and around the EDs headquarters.

These photographers were paid around Rs 2,000 per head to 4,000 per head based on their experience, and thus, the Delhi Police paid around Rs 2 lakh to 4 four lakh for the coverage.

These camera persons were also given a police jacket to put on so that they could be identified among the crowd.

One of the photographers, who was present at A.P.J. Abdul Kalam Road, told IANS that he was being paid Rs 2,000 per day and was asked to click photos when Sonia Gandhi came to the ED headquarters. He refused to be named.

Akash, of Sky Global firm through which the photographers were hired/deployed, told IANS that 30 photographers were sent to the spot when Sonia Gandhi came for the questioning.

He said different amounts were paid to each camera persons.

Senior Delhi Police officials, specially DCP Headquarters, were contacted for their response but no one was available to comment on the matter.

A senior police official only said that if the photographers were used by the department to keep an eye on any untoward incident, nothing was wrong.

CPI comes out against CPM

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Thiruvananthapuram, July 24: The Communist Party of India (CPI) has come out strongly against the CPM, saying that there was a deliberate attempt to brand the Left Democratic Front (LDF) in Kerala as Pinarayi Vijayan government.

Party members who were participating in the Thiruvananthapuram district committee meeting spoke about the need for internal discussions on the government. They said that there were no such attempts in the previous LDF governments led by E.K. Nayanar, P.K. Vasudevan Nair or V.S. Achuthanandan, asserting that branding an LDF government was not acceptable according to communist ideals.

The party members also flayed the home ministry under Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan, and said that the state police was drawing flak from the general society for its failures and even its high-handedness including lockup torture and murders. The members that the Chief Minister travelling in a cavalcade of more than 40 vehicles was unheard of in the history of Kerala, also charged the state CPI leadership for keeping a studied silence on the matter.

The members stated that the state CPI leadership was not giving any concrete opinion on the environmental issues being mishandled by the Left government led by the CPM.

The members also said that the K-Rail was a classic example in which the government and the Left front became unacceptable to the general public.

Experts say remain cautious but don't panic

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

New Delhi, July 24: After the detection of a monkeypox case in the capital on Sunday, which took the nation's case tally to four, city doctors have urged people to remain cautious but not to panic.

Globally, over 16,000 cases of monkeypox have been reported from 75 countries, including five deaths in Africa, according to the World Health Organization (WHO). The UN health body on Saturday also declared the infection as a public health emergency of international concern.

Monkeypox is a viral disease that is typically identified with fever, rash and swollen lymph nodes along the skin lesions. However, it is a self-limiting disease and the patients recover within four weeks, health experts said.

"First of all, we have to understand that there is no need to panic. People need to be more cautious as monkeypox is a mild infection which has symptoms quite similar to smallpox," said Manisha Arora, senior consultant in internal medicine at Sri Balaji Action Medical Institute. "Monkeypox is spread among humans by respiratory

MONKEYPOX IN DELHI

- Monkeypox is transmitted from infected animals to humans via indirect or direct contact
- Human-to-human transmission can occur through direct contact with infectious skin or lesions, including face-to-face, skin-to-skin, and respiratory droplets
- Among the reported monkeypox cases, transmission appears to be occurring primarily through close physical contact, including sexual contact
- Transmission can also occur from contaminated materials such as linens, bedding, electronics and clothing carrying infectious skin particles droplets and contacts with body fluids of patients. Hospital surveillance and isolation of cases remain the main intervention or prevention of infection spread. There is no need to panic," added Harshal

A monkeypox outbreak can be tackled by strong surveillance. The virus spread can be contained by isolation of confirmed cases and quarantine of contacts, they said and underlined that immunocompromised individuals need to be taken care of.

In a statement issued Sunday, the Union Health Ministry said the 34-year-old male patient from Delhi is presently recovering at a designated isolation centre at the Lok Nayak Hospital. "Close contacts have been identified and are under quarantine as per the Health Ministry guidelines," it added.

As per the ministry guidelines, public health interventions like identification of the source of infection, enhanced contact tracing, testing sensitisation of private practitioners etc. are being carried out.

In the WHO South-East Asia region, five cases of monkeypox have been reported so far, four from India and one from Thailand.

The infected Delhi man reportedly has no history of foreign travel, but got infected at a stag party in Himachal Pradesh.

the Congress party. "The false allegations were intended to hurt the reputation of our client as a minister and a person in public life, and also to outrage her modesty and that of her daughter," the notice said. The Congress leaders stooped to a new low, morally and ethically, by attacking Irani's young daughter who is in her first year at university and at the threshold of a new chapter of her life pursuing her professional aspirations, the notice sent by Irani said.

"These aspirations of our client's (Irani) daughter are sought to be cruelly marred, jeopardised and prejudiced by the addressees (Congress leaders) through their inhumane, insensitive and false narratives as collateral damage," it said.

"The insistence of addressees to invoke value systems of our client with a reference to her 'sanskar' is an effort to make our client and her young daughter social outcasts by proclaiming that by the act of 'running' a bar our client and her young daughter are women of disrepute," it said. Zoish Irani has never applied for any licence for "running" any bar or for any business enterprise, it said, asserting that she has not been served with any show cause notice from the excise department in Goa as alleged by the Congress leaders.

New Delhi, July 24: Union minister Smriti Irani Sunday sent a legal notice to Congress leaders Jairam Ramesh and Pawan Khara, asking them to apologise for their "baseless and false" allegations against the BJP leader and her daughter.

Irani's action came a day after the Congress leaders alleged that her 18-year-old daughter Zoish Irani ran a bar illegally in Goa and also targeted the minister over this, demanding that Prime Minister Narendra Modi sack her from his Cabinet. If they do not tender an unconditional and unequivocal apology and withdraw their allegations, Irani will initiate civil and criminal proceedings against them, the legal notice said. ## Untreated sewage still flowing into Ganga: NGT

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, July 24: Untreated sewage and effluents continue to flow into the River Ganga even after decades of monitoring, the National Green Tribunal has said, noting that the National Mission for Clean Ganga does not appear to be in a position to take stringent measures against non-compliance.

While seeking an action taken report from the National Ganga Council (NGC) on the matter, a bench headed by NGT Chairperson Justice Adesh Kumar Goel said the quality of water in Ganga has to be as per norms as it is used not only for bathing but also 'achman' (taking sips of water before prayers or rituals).

It directed the Member Secretary, NGC to file an action taken report before October 14, the next date of hearing. Even after decades of monitoring, still nearly 50 per cent of untreated sewage and substantial industrial effluents are continuing to be discharged in the river or its tributaries/drains, in absence of requisite functional treatment capacity, the NGT said. "Instead of indefinitely continuing the proceedings without success, as has happened in the last 37 years, we suggest that the Member Secretary, NGC i.e. DG, NMCG may place the agenda of reviewing the existing mechanism

The NGT said in view of the disappointing factual position, a paradigm shift in execution and monitoring appears to be necessary for executing the work of setting up and maintaining requisite treatment systems to ensure prevention of pollution of Ganga in the next meeting of the NGC, which is the highest authority under the 2016 Ganga Order, preferably within one month or as early as possible," it said.

WILDFIRE NEAR YOSEMITE California Governor declares emergency

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

San Francisco, July 24: Authorities have declared a state of emergency in part of California as a wildfire continued to rage near the Yosemite National Park.

The state of emergency has been declared in Mariposa County and in a statement, California Governor Gavin Newsom said the flames were being "driven by hot, dry weather and drought conditions".

The fast-moving wildfire, dubbed the Oak Fire, grew to 6,555 acres (about 26.5 square km) overnight, prompting mandatory evacuation orders, Xinhua news agency.

The wildfire ignited on Friday afternoon in Mariposa County and was still zero contained as of Saturday, according to the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection (Cal Fire).

It is about 50 km away from Yosemite Valley, near Yosemite National Park, one of the most popular national parks in the US.

The blaze had destroyed at least 10 structures and damaged another five by Saturday, threatening 2,000 other structures, Cal Fire said. "Fire activity is extreme with frequent runs, spot fires and group torching. Emergency personnel are working to safely evacuate people and are actively engaged in protecting structures," said Cal Fire, noting that explosive fire behaviour is challenging over 400 firefighters on the spot.

It is now "one of California's largest wildfires of the year", the Los Angeles Times said in a report.

Some residents were forced to temporarily evacuate and some roads in the area, including one major highway to Yosemite, were closed.

With the Oak Fire, the streak of relatively modest and non-destructive wildfires in California so far this season appears to be over, said Daniel Swain, a climate scientist at the University of California, Los Angeles.

He added that record vegetation dryness and less stable atmospheric conditions will likely favour plume-dominated behaviour at times.

Swain estimated that the Oak Fire will very likely surpass 10,000 acres (around 40.46 square km) in less than 24 hours.

Ukraine working to resume grain exports

REUTERS

Kyiv, July 24: Ukraine pressed ahead Sunday with efforts to restart grain exports from its Black Sea ports under a deal aimed at easing global food shortages but warned deliveries would suffer if a Russian missile strike on Odesa was a sign of more to come.

President Volodymyr Zelenskyy denounced Saturday's attack as "barbarism" that showed Moscow could not be trusted to implement a deal struck just one day earlier with Turkish and United Nations mediation.

The Ukrainian military, quoted by public broadcaster Suspilne, said the Russian missiles did not hit the port's grain storage area or cause significant damage. Kyiv said preparations to resume grain shipments were ongoing.

"We continue technical preparations for the launch of exports of agricultural products from our ports," Infrastructure Minister Oleksandr Kubrakov said in a Facebook post.

According to the Ukrainian military, two Kalibr missiles fired from Russian warships hit the area of a pumping station at the port and two others were shot down by air defence forces.

Russia said Sunday its forces had hit a Ukrainian warship and a weapons store in Odesa with its high-precision missiles.

The deal signed by Moscow and Kyiv on Friday was hailed as a diplomatic breakthrough that would help curb soaring global food prices by restoring Ukrainian grain shipments to pre-war levels of 5 million tonnes a month. But Zelenskyy's economic advisor

Cairo, July 24: Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov is in Cairo for talks on Sunday with Egyptian officials as his country seeks to break diplomatic isolation and sanctions by the West over its invasion of Ukraine.

Lavrov landed in Cairo late Saturday, the first leg of his Africa trip that will also include stops in Ethiopia, Uganda and the Democratic Republic of Congo, according to Russia's state-run RT.

The Egyptian Foreign Ministry said Foreign Minister Sameh Shukry was holding talks with Lavrov Sunday morning.

The Russian chief diplomat was scheduled to meet later Sunday with the Arab League Secretary General Ahmed Aboul Gheit. He will also address the permanent representatives of the pan-Arab organisation, RT reported.

The war has disrupted shipments of Russian products because shipping and insurance companies did not want to deal with Western sanctions on the country.

African countries are among those most affected by ripples of the war: The prices of vital commodities skyrocketed and billions of dollars in aid have been directed to help those who fled the war in Europe. That has left millions of people in conflict areas in Africa and the Middle East suffering from worsening growing shortages in food and other assistance.

In an article posted on the Russian Foreign Ministry website, Lavrov rejected the West accusations that Russia is responsible for the global food crisis, as "another attempt to shift the blame to others".

3 dead, 2 injured in Philippines varsity shooting

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Manila, July 24: At least three people were killed and two others injured on Sunday during a shooting incident at a university in the Philippines, police said.

The Metro Manila Development Authority confirmed that the shooting took place at 2.55 p.m. at the gate of Ateneo de Manila University in Quezon City, reports Xinhua news agency.

"A guard was killed," Quezon City Police District Director Remus Medina told local media.

The Philippine National Police said the shooter seized a car and attempted to escape, but was caught up by the police.

The National Bureau of Investigation agents were also dispatched to the field "to investigate and extend assistance to the victims and school authority".

The campus is "currently on lockdown", said the university. Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Alexander Gesmundo was supposed to attend the law school's graduation ceremony on Sunday afternoon, which was cancelled in the wake of the incident. Supreme Court spokesperson Brian Hosaka said Gesmundo was "in transit when the shooting happened and was advised to turn back".

Newly elected President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. Promised to have the attack swiftly investigated and those behind the killings brought to justice. He is scheduled to address a joint session of Congress at the House of Representatives on Monday also in Quezon city, where police and other law enforcers had imposed a gun ban and heightened security before the shooting.

China launches space station's first lab module

The giant Long March-5B Y3 carrier rocket, carrying Wentian, blasted off from the Wenchang Spacecraft Launch Site on the coast of the southern island province of Hainan, according to the China Manned Space Agency (CMSA)

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Beijing, July 24: China Sunday successfully launched the first lab module for its under-construction space station, the latest step in the country's ambitious programme to complete it by year's end. The new module will function both as a backup of the core module, Tianhe, and as a powerful scientific experiment platform in the space station currently being built by the country.

China is on the track to completing the construction of its space station as it successfully launched the first lab module, state-run People's Daily reported.

The construction of China's space station called Tiangong is expected to be completed this year. It will then evolve from a single-module structure into a national space laboratory with three modules - the core module, Tianhe, and two lab modules, Wentian and Mengtian.

The Tianhe module was launched in April 2021, and the Mengtian module is set to be launched in October this year, the state-run Xinhua news agency reported

In the next couple of hours, the Wentian will rendezvous and then dock with the Tiangong station's Tianhe core module, the CMSA said.

After that the three-member crew mission commanders - Senior Colonel Chen Dong, Senior Colonel

Liu Yang and Senior Colonel Cai Xuzhe currently building Tiangong station - will enter the lab module to check its condition and internal equipment, it said. In the coming weeks, Wentian will be repositioned by a robotic apparatus from the forward docking port to a lateral port, where it will remain and be prepared for long-term operation, it said.

To prepare for the Wentian's arrival, a cargo spacecraft Tianzhou 3 detached from the Tiangong station on July 17 and it will be guided by ground controllers to fall back to Earth in due course, it said.

Currently, Tiangong consists of the Tianhe module, the Tianzhou 4 cargo ship and the Shenzhou XIV spacecraft.

Wentian lab features cutting-edge technologies, strong capabilities, and sophisticated design and represents a new milestone in China's space industry, state-run China Daily reported.

It consists of three major parts - a crew working compartment, an airlock cabin and an unpressurised service module. Once ready, China's low-flying space station will be the only country to own a space station. The International Space Station (ISS) of Russia is a collaborative project of several countries.

China Space Station (CSS) is also expected to be a competitor to the ISS built by Russia. Observers say CSS may become the sole space station to remain in orbit once the ISS retires in the coming years.

The significant feature of China's under-construction space station is its two robotic arms, especially the long one over which the US has previously expressed concern over its ability to grab objects including satellites from space. The 10-meter-long arm earlier successfully grabbed and moved a 20-tonne Tianzhou-2 cargo ship in a test, according to China Manned Space Engineering Office (CMSEO).

FPIs return to Indian equities

Due to the headwinds in terms of rising inflation and tightening monetary policy there has been an exodus of FPIs from Indian equity markets over the last nine months, since October 2021

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, July 24: The relentless selling by foreign investors appears to have taken a breather as they have turned net buyers so far this month with an investment of nearly ₹1,100 crore in the Indian equity market. This comes following a net withdrawal of ₹50,145 crore from equities in June. This was the highest net outflow since March 2020, when they had pulled out ₹61,973 crore from equities, data with depositories showed.

According to data with depositories, Foreign portfolio investors (FPIs) invested a net amount of ₹1,099 crore in Indian equities during July 1-22. They have significantly slowed down their relentless selling and have even turned buyers for several days this month particularly during the last few days.

"Another factor that helped in net inflow was expectation of less aggressive rate hike by the US Federal Reserve in its upcoming policy meeting than what was anticipated earlier. This also softens the dollar index, which augurs well for emerging markets like India," Himanshu Srivastava, Associate Director - Manager Research, Morningstar India, said.

Finally, Russia opening the tap to allow natural gas flow to Europe has raised hope of a truce going forward. The Russia-Ukraine deal of opening the border for food grains export is also a big boost, he added.

"It appears that INR depreciation is almost over for now. The dollar index which had moved above 109 is now down to 107.21. This is one of the factors that have contributed to the change in FPI strategy," VK Vijayakumar, Chief Investment Strategist at Geojit Financial Services, said.

He, further, said that the present trend is likely to continue for the near-term. However, a lot will depend on the news from the US, relating to the economy and markets. According to Morningstar India's Srivastava, the current buying by FPIs cannot be construed as a change in trend, or that FPIs have made a complete comeback. The scenario is evolving, and it

Global equity funds recorded their biggest weekly outflow in five weeks in the week to July 20, on investor caution ahead of crucial central bank meetings in which rate hikes are expected to be announced. According to Refinitiv Lipper, investors offloaded a net $13.79 billion worth of global equity funds, marking the biggest weekly outflow since June 15. US and European equities funds booked withdrawals of $8.45 billion and $5.6 billion, respectively, although investors poured about $740 million in Asian equity funds. Sectoral data showed financial, consumer discretionary and metals and mining funds witnessed outflows of $995 million, $445 million and $416 million, respectively, but healthcare gained $511 million in inflows.

MORE PAIN AHEAD

₹ faces risk of plunging to 82'

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, July 24: Indian rupee may further depreciate to 82 to a dollar in the near term due to widening of trade deficit and expected aggressive rate hike by the US Fed later this week to tame record high inflation, economists said.

There is widespread speculation that the US Federal Reserve in its July 26-27 meeting may increase the interest rate by 50-75 basis points, which could result in flight of capital from emerging nations like India. With dollar outflow and elevated level of crude oil prices, the rupee would see further depreciation.

Economists are of the opinion that the rupee after touching a lifetime low may settle around 78 to a dollar by March next year with stability around crude oil prices and likely improvement in geopolitical situation.

"Overall what we had assessed is that the rupee could settle somewhere around 79 to a dollar. That will be the average price for the entire year...In the current depreciating cycle, the rupee may fall to over 81/USD in the current political situation," India Ratings & Research principal economist Sunil Kumar Sinha told PTI.

Amidst a rebound in crude oil prices and the expectation that the US dollar will remain relatively

Last week, the rupee depreciated to a life-time low of 80.06 a dollar

ECB raised its benchmark deposit rate by 50 basis points

US Fed is also expected to raise policy rates by another 75 basis points strong in the immediate term, ICRA expects the rupee may weaken to 81/USD in Q2 FY2023.

According to Nomura, the rupee may see 82 level during the July-September quarter due to multiple headwinds including weakening India BoP dynamics and Fed hikes during the year.

Trade deficit ballooned to a record $26.18 billion in June due to costlier imports of crude oil, coal and gold. The deficit widened to $70.80 billion in April-June this fiscal. The country's foreign exchange reserves had declined by $7,541 billion to $572.712 billion in the week ended July 15.

Major FMCG firms enter plant-based meat sector

Plant-based meat is touted to be a healthier, safer and more sustainable alternative to animal products

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, July 24: Big FMCG companies are entering the plant-based meat segment, targeting non-vegetarian consumers who are looking for an animal-protein replacement, besides a large section of vegetarians.

The segment which opened up two years back is estimated to touch around $1 billion by 2030 and now products are available at e-commerce platforms and large retail chains in leading metros.

Besides, players are also targeting institutional clients in the HoReCa (hotel, restaurant and catering) segment and several Quick Service Restaurant (QSR) chains such as Domino's and Starbucks in India have included plant-based protein in their food menus.

Last week, Tata Consumer Product Ltd (TCPL) announced its entry into the plant-based meat products category, under a new brand 'Tata Simply Better' and introduced four variants - Nuggets, Burger Patty, Awadhi Seekh Kebab and Spicy Finger.

According to the Tata group FMCG arm, plant-based meats are at the forefront of the broader plant protein landscape, aimed at replicating the sensory and cultural resonance of animal-derived meat, but without the associated implications to the environment and health.

ITC had entered the segment earlier this year and according to Edelweiss Financial Services

In this plant-based meat alternative, several startups such as Shaka Harry and Virat Kohli and Anushka Sharma-funded Blue Tribe etc have entered grabbing the attention of the big companies

Executive Director Abneesh Roy, over the long-term more FMCG companies would enter the segment.

"I think Nestle, HUL, Marico can evaluate whether to enter over the next five years if this category becomes large," said Roy.

Blue Tribe CCO Sohil Wazir said the plant-based meat market was almost non-existent two years back and in 2021 several brands ventured into this space. "In these two years, consumer awareness levels also went up with younger generations of Millennials, Gen Z and Gen Alpha making an irreversible shift towards conscious consumerism."

Local levies, supply woes trigger inter-state variation in inflation

Rural inflation varies more across states and it is also generally higher than its urban counterparts in almost all states

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, July 24: Even after five years of a common Goods and Services Tax (GST), retail inflation in India varies widely across states as differences in local levies and supply chain efficacy distort consumer prices.

The Consumer Price Index (CPI)-based inflation rate for the month of June was as high as 10.5 per cent in Telangana and as low as 4.7 per cent in Bihar, while the national average stood at 7 per cent.

The difference in inflation, according to experts, can be attributed to factors like transport costs, tax policies of state governments, and supply chain efficiency.

Rajinder Singh, General Secretary of All India Confederation of Goods Vehicle Owners' Association said that 40-60 per cent of the transportation cost is on account diesel which directly impacts the prices of consumer goods.

Singh said that for transporting perishables like vegetables, vehicle owners charge a to-and-fro fare. For long-distance transportation, only one-way rates are charged.

As per latest CPI data, states, including Andhra Pradesh and Haryana, registered inflation of over 8%. The other states which recorded inflation higher than the national average were Assam, Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, Odisha, Rajasthan, and West Bengal. The Union Territory of Jammu and Kashmir too had inflation of 7.2%

On the other hand, inflation was lower than the national average in Uttarakhand, Uttar Pradesh, Punjab, Karnataka, Jharkhand, and Chhattisgarh in June. Tamil Nadu, Delhi, Himachal Pradesh, and Kerala reported retail inflation of less than 6%

"Toll is another important factor in determining the transportation cost. More the number of toll plazas on a route, higher the cost of deliveries," Singh added.

Diesel costs more in states like Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh and Maharashtra because of the higher incidence of local taxes.

Some states are witnessing heightened price pressures on account of high petroleum products prices due to variation in the fuel duties across states. Variation in fuel duties among states leads to different degrees of impact of increase in fuel prices on overall states' inflation

SP SHARMA | CHIEF ECONOMIST, PHDCCI

The National Statistical Office (NSO), which releases the monthly CPI data, collects price information from selected 1,114 urban markets and 1,181 villages in the country through personal visits by field staff of the Field Operations

Division on a weekly roster. The cost of power is also high in states with higher inflation rates like Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh and Telangana.

Sashi Sivramkrishna, Senior Professor (Economics) at NMIMS, Bangalore, said several factors are responsible for the differences in inflation rates among states. These include differences in food expenses that can be due to state-level policies like price change of food grain, pulses and edible oils as well as transport expenditure.

"Inflation is after all a consequence of friction that exists in the market and it is only obvious that there will be differences in inflation rates between states, which have some degree of autonomy in policy making," he added.

NEERAJ CHOPRA

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Eugene, July 24: "I will take it," said Neeraj Chopra, who felt "something" on his strapped thigh, on way to what he termed a challenging history-scripting silver at the World Championships javelin throw final here.

The reigning Olympic champion admitted that his comeback from outside medal position midway into the final was "challenging". Chopra, however, also knew that a good throw was around the corner.

He was lying at fourth position after three rounds of throws, having opened with a foul before registering 82.39m and 86.37m in his next two attempts. He got his rhythm back with a big fourth round throw of 88.13m, his fourth career-best effort, to jump to second place, which he held on to till the end.

"Conditions were challenging, there was wind coming from front. It was a tough competition with very tough competitors. It was challenging for me, but I was confident that a good throw will surely come.

"I was making the effort (in the first three throws) but it (big throw) was not coming. It was challenging but good that I made a comeback," the 24-year-old Chopra said during a virtual press conference.

"I am happy to have won a silver, the country's first medal in World Athletics Championships after 19 years, I will take it."

Chopra felt some tightness on his thigh after the fourth throw and could not do well in the last two throws which were fouls. "I thought even the fourth throw could have gone farther. After that, I felt something on my thigh and could not do my best in next two.

"I had strapping (on thigh). I will know the status tomorrow morning because my body is still warm after the event. I hope there should not be any issue for the upcoming events, Commonwealth Games."

Defending champion Anderson Peters of Grenada won the gold with a massive throw of 90.54m. He was a class of his own in the final as he had three massive 90m-plus throws – in the first two rounds and the last attempt. Olympic silver winner Jakub Vadlejch of Czech Republic took the bronze with 88.09m.

The Indian fans are used to watching Chopra having big throws in the first two rounds but it was a different scenario in the World Championships final. Chopra had won gold in Tokyo Olympics last year with a second round throw of 87.58m and just needed a first round effort of 88.39m to qualify for the finals at second place here.

His trademark big smile was back after the fourth round throw as Chopra, the son of a farmer from Khandra village near Panipat in Haryana, did the 'calm-down' gesture and showed the victory sign with his right hand.

Chopra had won Indian athletics' maiden gold in the Tokyo Olympics last year. He is only the second Indian to have won an individual gold in the Olympics, after shooter Abhinav Bindra, who clinched the yellow metal in 2008 Beijing Games.

Asked if he was feeling the pressure of being an Olympic champion heading into the World Championships finals, he said, "I never felt that kind of pressure. My focus was always to give my best, improve upon my best. Of course, I was in a challenging position (after third round) but I was confident that I will have a good throw somehow. I kept trying and it came.

"An athlete cannot win a gold every time but we have to keep trying and give our best. I have learnt a lot from the challenging situation today and I will work for improvement. I will try to change the colour of medal (to gold) in the next World Championships in 2023 (in Budapest)."

Celebrations break out in Chopra's village

CHANDIGARH: Celebrations broke out in Olympic champion javelin thrower Neeraj Chopra's village in Panipat Sunday after he won a landmark silver medal in the Athletics World Championships in Eugene, USA.

Son of a farmer from Khandra village near Panipat in Haryana, the 24-year-old Chopra became only the second Indian and first male track and field athlete to win a medal at the showpiece.

Congratulatory messages poured in from various quarters including Chief Minister Manohar Lal Khattar, his deputy Dushyant Chautala and former CM Bhupinder Singh Hooda.

The women of his village danced and sang while family members got busy receiving guests and distributing 'laddoos' (sweets). "Everyone is feeling very proud. This medal is of Olympic level. So, it is a very big achievement," Chopra's uncle Bhim Chopra, who has played a key role in shaping his career, told PTI over phone.

Bhim said the whole country is happy and proud of his achievement. "He has been constantly working very hard and we are happy that he has brought laurels for his country," he said, adding villagers had gathered at their house since morning.

The javelin thrower's father Satish Chopra referred to long jumper Anju Bobby George being the first Indian to win a medal – bronze – in the World Championships nearly two decades ago. "We had so far a bronze medal in World Championships and now Neeraj has won a silver, we are proud," he said.

The athlete's mother Saroj was busy distributing sweets and receiving the guests. "Entire country and the entire Haryana is proud of him," she told reporters, adding that there were some anxious moments after a subdued start.

Special Hope ton guides Windies to 311/6

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Port of Spain, July 24: Opener Shai Hope (115, 135b, 8x4, 3x6) showed his class with a magnificent century while skipper Nicholas Pooran (74, 77b, 1x4, 6x6) went on a six-hitting spree as the West Indies produced a solid batting display to post 311/6 against India in the second ODI here Sunday.

Hope, who became the 10th batter in the world and fourth from West Indies to score a century on his 100th ODI appearance, played the role of the anchor to perfection as he added 65 runs for the opening wicket with Kyle Mayers (39), before forging another 62 with Shamarh Brooks (35). Later, Hope and Pooran shared a 117-run stand off 126 balls.

Hope constructed his innings well, focusing on building partnership and exploded in the end. Spin duo of Axar Patel (1/40) and Deepak Hooda (1/42) were the best bowlers on display, while Yuzvendra Chahal (1/69) too scalped one but was expensive.

Mohammed Siraj (0/47) was decent but Avesh Khan had a forgettable ODI debut, while Shardul Thakur (3/54) made amends in the back end with three wickets after conceding 13 in the first over.

Opting to bat, Mayers and Hopes gave West Indies a good start with the former taking the attack to the opposition. Hooda produced the first breakthrough with Mayers hitting the first delivery straight back to the bowler.

Brooks and Hopes then looked to build a partnership with Hooda and Patel bowling in tandem, targeting the stumps. The spin duo did well to tighten things up as WI managed just 42 from the 10th to 20th over.

Chahal was taken to the cleaners in the 21st over. But Dhawan brought back Patel and he produced a wicket- maiden to get rid of Brooks with the Indian skipper taking a low catch. Chahal redeemed himself in his next over as he induced a top-edge off Brandon King.

Pooran and Hope then brought up 200 in 38th overs. Rovman Powell (13) and Romario Shepherd (14) played some lusty blows to take WI across the 300-mark. WI amassed 93 runs in last 10 overs.

BRIEF SCORES: West Indies 311/6 (Shai Hope 115, Nicholas Pooran 74, Kyle Mayers 39; Shardul Thakur 3/54) vs India.

Raphinha helps Barca beat Real

AGENCIES

Las Vegas, July 24: Raphinha made it two goals in two matches as Barcelona defeated Real Madrid 1-0 Saturday in their Las Vegas Clasico.

Raphinha, signed from Premier League side Leeds United earlier this month for around USD 60 million, followed up his debut in a 6-0 thrashing of Inter Miami with the lone goal of the high-profile clash at Allegiant Stadium.

The Brazilian was perfectly placed to intercept an ill-advised pass from Real's Eder Militao along the top of the area. After one touch to settle he lashed a left-footed shot over Thibaut Courtois into the top right corner of the net to put Barcelona up 1-0 in the 27th minute.

The fourth edition of the Clasico to be played outside of Spain – the second ever held in the United States – featured all the intensity of the long rivalry.

Real Madrid, playing their first pre-season friendly, nearly opened the scoring in the 18th minute but Federico Valverde was denied by the post in the 18th minute, seizing the ball after a poor clearance by Jordi Alba and blasting a volley from 25 yards out that beat Marc-Andre Ter Stegen only for the upright to intervene.

Two minutes later it was Barcelona who saw a chance get away when Eduardo Camavinga lost possession to Pedri in front of Real's goal. Pedri found Fati, who pulled Real keeper Thibaut Courtois off his line but put his shot just wide of the far post.

Overall it was Barcelona – energized by the debut of Polish striker Robert Lewandowski after his move from Bayern Munich – who controlled the tempo in the first half against the reigning Champions League and La Liga

Haaland's day out

WISCONSIN (US): Erling Haaland took just 12 minutes of his City debut to score his first goal for the Club which proved to be enough to give the Blues a 1-0 win. The Norwegian striker had barely touched the ball before Kevin De Bruyne picked up possession outside the Bayern Munich box, fed Jack Grealish and his pass across the six-yard box was slid home by Haaland. After almost a 45-minute delay, the players came back out, warmed up and the game resumed.

The first half ended on a testy note after Jordi Alba's sliding tackle on Militao that earned a yellow card. Some jawing and shoving escalated, with players having to step in and separate Madrid newcomer Antonio Rudiger and Barcelona's Ronald Araujo.

Lewandowski's night ended without a goal as he was departed at the half, replaced by Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang as part of a raft of changes at the midpoint.

A back and forth between substitute Marco Asensio and defender Lucas Vazquez gave Real Madrid a golden opportunity in the 59th minute, but after Vazquez played the ball back to Asensio in front of goal he pulled his shot wide.

They pressed desperately in the closing minutes for an equalizer, but Carlo Ancelotti's side clearly missed French star Karim Benzema, who was granted an extended holiday by the club and sat out the contest after joining up with his teammates in Los Angeles just days before.
