Energy crisis worsens

135-odd thermal plants in the country are sitting on just four days of coal stocks at the end of Sept, down from 13 days coal stocks at the beginning of August

AGENCIES

New Delhi, Oct 10: The build-up to power crisis in the country worsened this month as acute fuel shortages at power plants threaten outages in coming days stalling the revival wheels of world's fastest growing major economy.

As per official data, country's 135-odd thermal plants on an average are sitting on just four days of coal stocks at the end of September, down from 13 days coal stocks at the beginning of August. Regulations mandate 22 days of stock at thermal plants.

Several plants in the states of Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh and Tamil Nadu are on alert for outages. In Delhi, state Power Minister Satyendar Jain has said that if coal supply doesn't improve, there will be a blackout in Delhi in two days.

Odisha is also among the critical states. The Utkal Chamber Of Commerce & Industry Ltd has urged the state government to ensure adequate supply of coal to state-based industries which are facing an acute shortage of dry fuel to run their units.

The coal shortages at power plants had come at a time when production from Coal India, which meets almost 80 per cent of fuel needs of the country, had fallen owing to long monsoon this year. Though CIL maintains, its supplies are nowhere at a lower level this year compared to the last year; power sector sources said that the problem is also compounding due to lower interest shown by debt ridden state utilities to buy more coal to run power plants at optimal levels.

To meet the domestic shortages, the option is to buy coal from abroad, but the post COVID surge in electricity demand worldwide has created added interest securing fuel

Naveen seeks PM's help for lifting of surplus rice

The Centre, vide a letter August 31, intimated that for the next KMS, no surplus parboiled rice shall be accepted from Odisha by the Food Corporation of India

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar, Oct 10: Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik has sought the intervention of Prime Minister Narendra Modi for lifting of the estimated surplus parboiled rice from the state in upcoming Kharif Marketing Season (KMS) 2021-22.

In a letter to the Prime Minister, he said around 14 lakh farmers in the state have sold 77.33 lakh MT of paddy (equivalent to 52.35 MT of rice) during KMS 2020-21 and MSP dues of about ₹14,444 crore have been transferred to the bank accounts of these farmers within 24 to 48 hours, and this has not only benefited the farmers but also strengthened the rural economy, especially during the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic.

However, the Centre, vide a letter August 31, intimated that for the next KMS, no surplus parboiled rice shall be accepted from Odisha by the Food Corporation of India, he noted.

In upcoming KMS 2021-22, Odisha is estimated to procure 52 lakh MT of rice, Patnaik said, adding that the state's own requirement under all the schemes is about 24 lakh MT, and this will mean a surplus of 28 lakh MT out of which only 4 lakh MT will be raw rice.

"That leaves the state with a balance of 24 lakh MT of parboiled rice for evacuation by the FCI. But, the latest decision of the Department of Food and Public Distribution has put a question mark on lifting of the said surplus rice from the state," he said.

As Odisha is primarily a parboiled rice consuming state, the rice milling industry in the state overwhelmingly produces parboiled rice. Therefore, he said, the state is not in a position to face the situation arising due to a paradigm shift in surplus rice delivery profile imposed on the state.

"Non-lifting of the above quantity of surplus parboiled rice from the state due to the restrictions imposed by the DFPD has the potential of severely affecting the state's paddy procurement operations. This will affect about 10 lakh farmers and put them in serious trouble especially during this Covid pandemic situation," Patnaik said.

He requested the PM for issuing a direction to the DFPD to accept the estimated surplus parboiled rice from the state for the next KMS 2021-22.

LAKHIMPUR VIOLENCE

Minister's son sent to 14-day judicial custody

Ashish Mishra's inability to respond to pointed questions about the sequence of events Oct 3 landed him in jail

AGENCIES

Lakhimpur Kheri (UP), Oct 10: Ashish Mishra, son of Union Minister of State for Home Ajay Mishra, was produced before a court here late Saturday night, which sent him to 14-day judicial custody in connection with the October 3 Lakhimpur violence.

After around 12 hours of questioning in connection with the violence in which eight persons including four farmers were killed, a medical team examined Ashish Mishra in the crime branch office, after which he was taken for production before a judicial magistrate, who sent him to custody, senior prosecution officer SP Yadav said.

He said an application for police remand of Ashish Mishra was submitted to the judicial magistrate who fixed it for hearing at 11 am Monday.

Meanwhile, reports said that Ashish's inability to respond to pointed questions about the sequence of events October 3 landed him in jail. According to a senior official in the investigation team, Ashish Mishra was not able to explain his location between 2.30 pm and 3.30 pm October 3 when the incident took place. Witnesses have said he was missing from the event between 2 pm and 4 pm, his phone location showed him closer to the crime scene.

Though the minister's son admitted the SUV that ran over farmers belongs to him, but he maintained that he was not in it. His team said he had produced around 150 images of the wrestling match where he was present on the day of the incident.

"To every question, he had one answer - I was not present at the spot where the incident took place. We asked him who drove his SUV, how many people were sitting in it, how many cars were there in the convoy and for every question he said he was not present," said the police officer. When asked why the vehicle did not stop after hitting the people and why there was a crowd on the road, Ashish Mishra had one reply - "I was not there".

At times, he even lost his cool and said, "Even if you ask me one lakh times, my answer will be the same."

Why men still dominate STEM award winning

The rarity of female Nobel laureates raises questions about women's exclusion from education and careers in science and the undervaluing of women's contributions on science teams

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Tucson (USA), Oct 10: All of the 2021 Nobel Prizes in science were awarded to men. That's a return to business as usual after a couple of good years for female laureates. In 2020, Emmanuelle Charpentier and Jennifer Doudna won the chemistry prize for their work on the CRISPR gene editing system, and Andrea Ghez shared in the physics prize for her discovery of a supermassive black hole.

2019 was another year of all male laureates, after biochemical engineer Frances Arnold won in 2018 for chemistry and Donna Strickland received the 2018 Nobel Prize in physics. Strickland and Ghez were only the third and fourth female physicists to get a Nobel, following Marie Curie in 1903 and Maria Goeppert-Mayer 60 years later.

When asked how that felt, Strickland noted that at first it was surprising to realise so few women had won the award: "But, I mean,

I do live in a world of mostly men, so seeing mostly men doesn't really ever surprise me either."

The rarity of female Nobel laureates raises questions about women's exclusion from education and careers in science and the undervaluing of women's contributions on science teams.

Women researchers have come a long way over the past century, but there's overwhelming evidence that women remain under-represented in the STEM fields of science, technology, engineering and math.

Studies have shown that those women who persist in these careers face explicit and implicit barriers to advancement. Bias is most intense in fields that are dominated by men, where women lack a critical mass of representation and are often viewed as tokens or outsiders.

As things are getting better in terms of equal representation, what still holds women back in the lab, in leadership and as award winners? Women face a number of structural and institutional barriers in academic STEM careers.

In addition to issues related to the gender pay gap, the structure of academic science often makes it difficult for women to get ahead in the workplace and to balance work and life commitments. Bench science can require years of dedicated time in a laboratory. The strictures of the tenure-track process can make maintaining work-life balance, responding to family obligations and having children or taking family leave difficult, if not impossible.

'There is no limit to creativity'

Fashion is a competitive industry and one of the most sought-after careers at the moment. To create an identity in this industry, one not only needs to put in a lot of hard work, it is also important to identify what is cool or fashionable. Minnati Sabat, one of the emerging fashion designers of the state, has managed to ace both of them in a very short span. The fashionista showcased her sleek designs at Season 5 of Bhubaneswar Runway Week held in the city, Sunday. A devoted follower of fashion, Minnati spoke to Orissa POST about her works and future plans.

Excerpts:
ARINDAM GANGULY, OP

- What was your fresh presentation at Bhubaneswar Runway Week?

Chikankari is the traditional embroidery style from Lucknow. We showcased a combination of Chikankari and contemporary designs of clothing to surprise the fashion followers at the event. Odisha's handloom and designs have been presented in the past on several occasions. So, we focused on Chikankari at Bhubaneswar Runway Week. Besides, Miss Universe India 2018 Nehal Chudasama was the showstopper for us (Studio M) at the event.
- How far has the fashion sector been affected by the pandemic?

Covid-19 has affected almost all forms of businesses and the fashion sector is no exception. It came to a standstill for at least a year. Loss of life and livelihood of artisans and weavers, regular shutdowns and lockdowns led to the closure of many fashion outlets. Though online shopping brought some relief at times, that was not enough. As things are now opening up, it's time to reboot and revive the industry.
- In recent years, what are the changes you have noticed in the fashion industry in Odisha?

There are significant changes in the last 10 years but there is still a huge gap to be filled and a lot of catching up to be done compared to other states and metropolises.
- Tell us about your latest works and collaborations.

We are doing some exclusive work for the brand and looking forward to collaborating with a few globally known influencers and celebrities.
- What made you join the fashion sector?

From the beginning I had an obsession towards good clothes. After the birth of my baby I thought of channelising it for something better. Meanwhile, I stumbled upon a multi-designer store called GRISA, which was quite unique by nature because of its personalised approach. I took the franchise and launched it in Bhubaneswar. Located at a quiet residential locality, GRISA makes my clients feel totally at home offering them all the personalised attention they deserve.
- What would you suggest to the budding fashion enthusiasts who want to make a career in the fashion industry?

The fashion industry is massive and there is no limit to creativity and imagination. You just have to be in love with the entire concept of fashion and everything that comes with it.
- Tell us about your future plan.

GRISA is a lovely concept and has a lot of potential. It gives you access to a wide array of fashion designers and their styles which makes it unique. Studio M is my baby and I am so proud of the creation. In fact, it has already surpassed my own expectations. It tells the story of my journey from a fashion entrepreneur to a designer. I would definitely like to take

Capital to witness low-key Dussehra

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar, Oct 10: The Capital City is all set to witness a subdued Dussehra for the second straight year due to the Covid-19 restrictions imposed by the state government.

Though the festival is being organised at 165 pandals in the Capital, the venues lack eye-catching decorations.

The puja pandals of the city usually attract large number of visitors for their exquisite idols and colourful decorations. The Covid-19 pandemic has certainly taken a toll on the lavish Dussehra celebration in the Capital City, opined many locals.

"Due to the Covid-19 restrictions, we are organising the Dussehra festival in a simple way this year too. We will live stream the daily puja in our website. Devotees who want to collect Prasad can place their orders through our website," said Sahid Nagar Durga Puja Committee secretary Narayan Mohapatra.

According to Mohapatra, the puja committee has planned to distribute packets containing prasad among devotees who are observing Astami Brata. "The state government has banned public offerings at puja pandals. We are hiring professional people to prepare the Prasad and distribute it among the devotees" Mohapatra added.

An artisan giving finishing touches to the idols at Old Station Bazar puja mandap in Bhubaneswar, Sunday

Rasulgarh Durga Puja Committee secretary Pradeep Jena said they are organising the festival with strict adherence to the Covid-19 restrictions. "Devotees can witness the puja through live streaming in our website. The festival is being organised without any decoration or cultural events. The immersion ceremony will also be conducted without any gathering," Jena added.

Many devotees, meanwhile, said that they would miss the gathering and lavish Dussehra celebration this year too. "Like last year, we will miss the eye-catching decorations, huge crowds and cultural events during this year's Dussehra too. We cannot visit the pandals with our friends and relatives due to the Covid-19 restrictions. For our own safety, we should obey the guidelines laid down by the government," said Piyush Ranjan Rout, a city resident.

Notably, the Bhubaneswar Municipal Corporation (BMC) has asked the puja committees to keep the height of idols below 4 ft as part of its Covid-19 restrictions on Dussehra celebration. This apart, the civic body has banned any type of gathering during the festival.

Congress 'Mukt' Odisha may land BJD in trouble

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Bhubaneswar, Oct 10: When BJP leader Narendra Modi gave 'Congress Mukt' India call before 2014 General elections, many non-Congress parties including Odisha's Biju Janata Dal (BJD), who had seen the grand old party as its main rival had seemingly applauded the plan.

The regional outfit headed by Naveen Patnaik joined hand with BJP and became part of the NDA with the objective of ousting if not marginalising Congress from power. The BJD-BJP alliance ran a coalition government from 2000 to 2009 in Odisha. However, the bonhomie between the BJD and BJP ended over some disputes and the electoral partners struck different roads.

Twenty years after joining the anti-Congress movement and steadily eroding the country's oldest party's base at the grass root level, the ruling BJD now finds itself in a different position where BJP has emerged as its major rival, pointed out a senior vice-president of BJD.

The BJD insiders now realised that making Odisha 'Congress Mukt' has not benefited the regional party, rather it has helped BJP grow in the state. The BJP now takes home a majority of the tribal, dalit, backward classes votes in elections, which at one time formed the voter base of the Congress. While the minorities who also formed the voter base of the Congress has eluded the BJD.

Not getting support of minority community in Odisha is not at all an issue for the BJP as Christians are only 2.77 per cent and Muslims just 2.17 per cent of the state's population. Therefore, the BJP's Hindutva policy is enough to help the saffron party to grow in Odisha. In its bid to counter BJP's Hindutva image, BJD president Naveen Patnaik in his fifth term starting from 2019, has adopted a policy where the places of worship of different religions are being developed, opined many political observers.

The state government has launched

Rs 3,200 crore Jagannath Temple Heritage Corridor project. Patnaik called Lord Jagannath the symbol of Odia esteem and pride. The CM has also announced a Rs 200-crore package for the development of Sambalpur's Maa Samaleswari Temple. In the 2021-22 Budget, the state government also announced Rs 742 crore allocation for the development of Jagannath shrine in Puri and Lingaraj Temple in Bhubaneswar.

There have also been announcements of support for temples in Mayurbhanj and Kendrapara. Patnaik, who will turn 75 October 16, 2021, and has been the CM since 2000, has never been known as overtly religious though he visits the Jagannath Temple during the launch of poll campaigns and after winning elections, just as his legendary father Biju Patnaik used to. However, after 2019, Patnaik have been focusing on the religious issues and taking up policies for the popularisation of Odia language and culture, as part of the effort to counter the BJP.

"Naveen Patnaik in his 5th term has started practicing soft Hindutva," pointed out CPI (M) leader Ali Kishore Patnaik. The results of the recently held Pipli by-elections saw the Congress candidate losing its deposit by getting only 4,261 votes (2.37%) out of 1,80,930 votes polled. Though Naveen's BJD retained the Pipli seat and won it at a margin of 20,916 votes, it had a tough fight. BJP candidate secured 42 per cent of votes against the BJD's 53.8 per cent. "Securing 42 per cent vote is not a small achievement," pointed out BJP's state president Samir Mohanty.

As the state's three major parties—the BJD, BJP and Congress, are preparing for the ensuing three-tier panchayat elections and urban polls in 2022, Patnaik's regional party sees a difficult time ahead. "In the absence of Congress or minimal presence of the oldest party in the race, it will be a one-to-one fight between BJD and the BJP in the rural and urban polls. Therefore, it is natural that BJP may get advantage in many seats," pointed out political analyst Braja Kishore Mishra.

According to political observers, the results of the rural polls will show how the political winds may blow in 2024 General elections. The BJP which raised its Zilla Parishad member strength from 36 seats in 2012 to 297 in 2017 rural polls, finally emerged as the state's principal opposition party after the 2019 General elections. The Congress which functioned as the main opposition party from 2000 to 2019, finished third.

The BJP secured 23 Assembly seats and 8 Lok Sabha seats in the 2019 General elections while Congress reduced its number to 9 in Assembly and 1 in Lok Sabha. While Patnaik's party had secured 651 ZP seats in 2012 rural polls, it got 473 seats in 2017 elections. Though the BJD could maintain its seats tally in Assembly by winning in 113 constituencies, it lost eight Lok Sabha seats. Its candidates could win in only 12 LS seats against 20 seats in 2014 General elections.

Odisha has 147 members in the State Assembly and 21 seats in Lok Sabha. The panchayat polls are a major indicator for all the parties for the next General elections and therefore carry a lot of importance. Keeping in view the ensuing rural polls, the ruling BJD has already started working in the field and its star campaigner Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik, has now started touring different districts.

Breach in water supply pipe creates crater at Badambadi

POST NEWS NETWORK

Cuttack, Oct 10: Several commuters had a narrow escape when a huge crater was created at the busy Badambadi square here due to a breach in the water supply pipe Sunday evening.

A few days ago, there was a similar incident on the Ring Road in the Rajabagicha area of the Silver City. The breach in the water supply pipe threw traffic out of gear at Badambadi for quite some time, sources said. The locals, meanwhile, blamed sub-standard work of the drinking water project under the AMRUT Mission for the breach in the water supply line. They also alleged lack of coordination between the officials of Cuttack Municipal Corporation (CMC) and the Public Health department on the issue. "There was no one to discontinue the water supply soon after the breach in the pipe. The incident interrupted traffic at Badambadi for quite some time," said a local. Notably, a drinking water project is being implemented in the city under the AMRUT Mission to supply surface water to the residents. A water treatment plant has been set up and pipes have been laid for the project, sources said. "The breaches in the water supply pipes have occurred during the trial run. There was nothing unusual in it. We are analysing the issue and soon steps would be taken to rectify it," said Watco general manager Debabrata Mohanty.

The locals blamed substandard work of the drinking water project under the AMRUT Mission for the breach in the water supply line.

WORLD MENTAL HEALTH DAY

Cases soared in state during pandemic: Health director

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar, Oct 10: Odisha Health Director, Sunday, said cases of depression and anxiety soared during pandemic, which took a toll on the mental health of a large number of people in state.

Speaking to media, state Health Director Niranjan Mishra said that many people lost their jobs and family members, and went through serious financial crisis during the pandemic which gradually led to a spike in depression and anxiety cases in state.

"The state government had taken several measures to address the issue amid the pandemic. Mobile mental health units were set up in all the districts. The officials used to visit various quarantine, isolation and health centres to spread awareness on mental health. Call centres were also set up to enable the people to take advice from professionals regarding the mental issues," Mishra said.

"Despite formidable challenges, we have ably dealt with the situation and the Union government has also awarded us this year for our efforts to address the mental health during pandemic," he added.

When asked about the probability of a third wave of Covid, Mishra said that the virus is not going anywhere. However, the transmission outbreak will transform from pandemic to endemic. Cases and deaths due to the virus will eventually come down.

"With festive season around, the next three months are going to be crucial for us. We need to be more cautious. Similarly, we must follow basic Covid norms like use of mask, avoiding crowd and washing hands in regular intervals to check the spread of the virus during the period," he stated.

emotions and body sensations associated with the trauma in a safe and measured way and allowing the natural healing powers of the brain to play the part. While PTSD is a psychiatric disorder that may occur in people who have experienced or witnessed a traumatic event such as a natural disaster, a serious accident, a terrorist act, war/combat or rape, or who have been threatened with death, sexual violence or serious injury. Bombs hurled at Keonjhar MLA's car

Koraput DM reviews devpt works in Kotia

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Keonjhar, Oct 10: BJP's chief whip in the Odisha Assembly Mohan Charan Majhi had a narrow escape Sunday when two unidentified miscreants hurled bombs at his car in Keonjhar district, police said.

Majhi and his security officer were not injured in the incident but the lawmaker's vehicle was partially damaged, a senior officer said.

The blast occurred near Mandua area under the Keonjhar Town Police limits when the saffron party's legislator was returning home after attending a labour union meeting, he said.

Majhi lodged an FIR and alleged that the motorcycle-borne miscreants hurled two handmade bombs at his vehicle.

The legislator along with his security officer chased the two persons but they managed to escape from there, the officer said. "I was returning after attend-

BJP workers blocked the NH-49 demanding immediate arrest of those who are involved in it ing a meeting when two persons riding a motorcycle overtook my car and hurled two bombs at my vehicle. It happened around 11.50 am. I might have developed political enmity in my career spanning over 20 years. But I don't have any enemy in my personal life," Majhi, a tribal MLA from Keonjhar, said.

He alleged that local leaders of the ruling BJD orchestrated the attack. Meanwhile, BJP workers blocked the National Highway-49 that connects Raipur in Chhattishgarh with Kolkata in West Bengal, demanding immediate arrest of those who are involved in it.

An investigation into the bomb attack on the saffron camp legislator has been initiated, the police officer said. Odisha Congress president Niranjan Patnaik was also attacked by a group of miscreants near Kashipur under the Keonjhar Town Police Station limits in January this year.

Koraput, Oct 10: Amid ongoing border dispute with Andhra Pradesh, Koraput Collector Abdaal M Akhtar Saturday reviewed ongoing developmental works at a number of villages under Kotia panchayat. He also held discussions with the residents about issues being faced by them. This comes days after Andhra Pradesh officials conducted a gram sabha at Ganjeipadar under this panchayat.

According to an official, developmental works are underway at several villages including Madkar, Doliambo, Phatuseneri and Phagnaseneri under Pottangi block in the district. Akhtar visited a British-era road in a remote village of Kotia panchayat.

The Collector also assessed damages caused by cyclone Gulab. He inspected a dilapidated bridge at Madkar and another at Tadibalsa which were washed away in the cyclone-triggered rains.

Project director of District Rural Development Agency (DRDA), Pottangi Block Development Officer (BDO), Panchayat Extension Officer (PEO) of Kotia, Integrated Tribal Development Agency (ITDA) officials and Rural Development department engineers held discussions with Akhtar during his visit to Kotia.

Some days back, the officials of Salur Mandal in Andhra Pradesh had conducted a gram sabha at Ganjeipadar and tried to lure villagers by assuring them that the Andhra government will take up several development projects in the region.

Union Minister Dharmendra Pradhan Wednesday wrote a letter to Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister

YS Jagan Mohan Reddy seeking his urgent intervention to hold bilateral talks with Odisha for an amicable resolution of the border disputes between the two states.

In the letter to the Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister, Pradhan suggested measures such as withdrawal of cases, retreat of armed police forces, and putting on hold non-essential structural construction in the disputed areas, to create an environment conducive for talks.

The dispute over the ownership of 21 of the 28 villages under Kotia panchayat had first reached the Supreme Court in 1968. In 2006, the apex court held that inter-state boundaries did not fall within its jurisdiction and only the Parliament could resolve them, as it imposed a permanent injunction on the disputed area.

In August, the Odisha government deployed police and erected barricades at Kotia after the Andhra Pradesh administration attempted to launch several schemes in the area claimed by both states. The southern state had recently announced the results of the panchayat polls it held in Kotia.

Villagers risk lives to collect coal from river

POST NEWS NETWORK

Mahakalapada, Oct 10: Earning a few bucks to keep the hearth burning is no mean business for the residents of Pitapata village under this block in Kendrapada district as they risk their lives and dive deep into the Ghanagalia river to collect coal dust for a living, a report said.

The residents were identified as members of Bengali community in Pitapata village under Ramnagar panchayat of Mahakalapada block.

Coal is transported to Paradip through trains and later exported to various countries by ships from Paradip Port. A substantial part of the coal gets washed away in rain and flows into the sea as well as into nearby Ghanagalia river and creeks. The sediments after flowing into rivers and creeks get deposited in the water.

These men and women go inside the river on a boat and dive around 5 to 10 feet deep to collect coal dust in a strainer. They prepare coal blocks for use as fuel in kitchen and sell the rest of the blocks in hotels and eateries to earn a few bucks for a living. The daily grinding of the people poses serious threats to their lives and it is fraught with various health hazards. Villagers Thakur Sardar, Pushpa Sardar, Pabitra Sardar said when it rains more, the coal dust flows into Ghanagalia river from Paradip. The coal dust gets deposited in water and flows into the seas during tides. They said that they take a boat into the river and collect the coal deposits.

The coal dust often gets inside their mouth and nose while collecting it in a strainer after diving inside the river water. The work is life threatening and is fraught with serious health hazards but they have to do it to earn a livelihood for their family.

This is not an isolated case but poor villagers of Kharinasi,

Hardcore Maoist surrenders

POST NEWS NETWORK

Phulbani, Oct 10: A hardcore Maoist involved in many offensives in past surrendered before the Superintendent of Police (SP), Kandhamal district Sunday.

The surrendered ultra was identified as Rahul Mushaki, 24, alias Pintu, a resident of Talat village under Kanta police limits of Sukma district in Chhattisgarh.

Pintu had studied till class-VIII and was involved many offensives carried out by the ultras in past after joining the Maoist outfit in 2015. He was associated with Vamshadhara-Ghumusar-Nagabali division in Sukma district of Chhattisgarh.

In 2017, he was transferred to Odisha cadre and joined the KKBN division of Maoists. He was working under the leadership of Maoist leader Shivaji in Kandhamal district. Police suspect he might be involved in various offensives launched by the ultras in the district in past.

The main reason for his surrender was the developmental activities undertaken by the state government. He said that he realised the futility of the violent path of Maoists and thus decided to join the main stream.

The Maoists while opposing development are also using the gullible tribals to serve their vested interests and killing them on the slightest pretext on suspicion of being a police informer, he said.

There has been an increase in regular anti-Naxalite operation in interior areas of Kandhamal district and subsequent continuous fear of police action also contributed to his surrender.

He also admitted that he had been fed up with the unnecessary civilian killings by the party, even after the protests by the locals. He has also appealed to the Maoists cadres to give up arms and join the main stream.

Musaki will get monetary assistance as per the surrender and rehabilitation scheme of the state government. He will also get financial assistance for building house, pursuing studies and getting trained for an occupation of his will, SP Vinit Agarwal said.

FOCUS HUMANITY

THE HINGE OF HISTORY

Marx's vision of communism as the goal of all human history provided Lenin and Stalin with a justification for their crimes, and the goal of a 'Thousand-Year Reich' was, in the eyes of the Nazis, sufficient reason for exterminating or enslaving those deemed racially inferior we, the inhabitants of this pale blue dot at this particular moment, are making choices that will determine whether billions of stars are populated, for billions of years, does seem wild. But it could be true. Granting that, however, what should we do about it?

Karnofsky does not draw any ethical conclusions from his speculations, other than advocating "seriousness about the enormous potential stakes." But, as Phil Torres has pointed out, viewing current problems—other than our species' extinction—through the lens of 'longtermism' and 'existential risk' can shrink those problems to almost nothing, while providing a rationale for doing almost anything to increase our odds of surviving long enough to spread beyond Earth. Marx's vision of communism as the goal of all human history provided Lenin and Stalin with a justification for their crimes, and the goal of a "Thousand-Year Reich" was, in the eyes of the Nazis, sufficient reason for exterminating or enslaving those deemed racially inferior.

I am not suggesting that any present exponents of the hinge of history idea would countenance atrocities. But then, Marx, too, never contemplated that a regime governing in his name would terrorise its people. When taking steps to reduce the risk that we will become extinct, we should focus on means that also further the interests of present and near-future people. If we are at the hinge of history, enabling people to escape poverty and get an education is as likely to move things in the right direction as almost anything else we might do; and if we are not at that critical point, it will have been a good thing to do anyway.

Twelve years ago, during the International Year of Astronomy that marked the 400th anniversary of Galileo's first use of a telescope, I wrote "The Value of a Pale Blue Dot"—a reflection on how astronomy has revealed a vast universe filled with an unimaginable number of stars, thus shrinking the significance of our sun and our planet. The "pale blue dot" refers to how the Earth appears in a 1990 photograph taken by the Voyager spacecraft as it reached the outer limits of our solar system. The essay suggests that the knowledge gained from astronomy "forces us to acknowledge that our place in the universe is not particularly significant."

A recent blog post by Holden Karnofsky has led me to reconsider that thought. Karnofsky is co-CEO of Open Philanthropy, a foundation that researches the best opportunities for philanthropic grant-making, and publishes the reasons for its decisions. Thinking about the long-term significance of today's philanthropic decisions is therefore part of Karnofsky's role. He is thinking very long term indeed.

Karnofsky points out that we could be living "at the very beginning of the tiny sliver of time during which the galaxy goes from nearly lifeless to largely populated." That "tiny sliver of time" began, we might say, with the first use of tools by our ancestors, around three million years ago. It will end when our descendants—who might be digital minds, rather than biological organisms—inhabit the entire galaxy, perhaps ushering in a civilisation consisting of an enormous number of conscious beings that would last for tens of billions of years. There is a good chance, Karnofsky argues, that this process of populating the galaxy will begin during this century. By 2100, we could develop the technology to construct self-sufficient settlements on other planets.

This thought echoes one expressed in 2011 by the late philosopher Derek Parfit, who wrote, near the end of the second volume of On What Matters: "We live during the hinge of history." Like Karnofsky, Parfit was thinking of the arrival of technologies that, if used wisely, would enable our species to survive "its most dangerous and decisive period," and our descendants to spread through our galaxy. Parfit refers to "the next few centuries," rather than just this one, as the time it may take before humans can live independently on other planets, but even that will be only a sliver of time compared to what is to come. Our most significant contribution to this development would be to ensure the survival of intelligent life on our planet.

Perhaps, though, the idea that we are essential to this process is merely the latest version of the self-important delusion that humans are the center of existence. Surely, in this vast universe, there must be other forms of intelligent life, and if we don't populate the Milky Way galaxy, someone else will.

Yet, as the physicist Enrico Fermi once asked fellow scientists over lunch at Los Alamos National Laboratory, "Where is everybody?" He wasn't commenting on empty tables in the lab's dining room, but on the absence of any evidence of the existence of extraterrestrials. The thought behind that question is now known as the Fermi Paradox: if the universe is so stupendous, and has existed for 13.7 billion years, why haven't other intelligent forms of life made contact?

Karnofsky draws on a 2018 paper by researchers at the University of Oxford's Future of Humanity Institute to suggest that the most likely answer is that intelligent life is extremely rare. It is so rare that that we may be the only intelligent beings in our galaxy, and perhaps in the much larger Virgo supercluster to which our galaxy belongs.

This is what Karnofsky means when he says that the future of humanity is 'wild.' The idea that

Nobel & Journalism

It is interesting to note that in the first place, there never was no Nobel Prize for Journalism or Freedom of Expression. Yet, the Norwegian Nobel Committee awarded November 8 two journalists—Maria Ressa of the Philippines and Dmitry Muratov of Russia—the Nobel Peace Prize. Free speech is not only a key element of democracy, it is integrally connected with a tolerant society. The choice this time is unlike several other previous winners of this segment of Nobel Prize that were mired in controversy. The selection of some of the earlier winners raised eyebrows as their credentials for advancing the cause of peace were called into question by many. But, this time, there has been no opposition to the selection since the threat to freedom of speech and expression has assumed serious proportions across the world. This is the biggest danger to peace. No wonder the Nobel Committee Chairwoman Berit Reiss-Anderson, while announcing the names of the winners, said the two journalists represent all journalists who stand up for freedom of the Press in a world "in which democracy and freedom of the Press face increasingly adverse conditions." Peace becomes threatened in the absence of free, independent and fact-based journalism that act as a bulwark against abuse of power, lies and false propaganda by a repressive regime.

Conscientious journalists and social activists all over the world have been championing the cause of freedom and democracy for years. Scores of them have been persecuted and murdered for their unflinching devotion to truth, justice and fairness. The brutal murder of Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi is the most prominent example of recent times, while many others lost their lives defending their right to tell the truth about repression by the Taliban in Afghanistan during the past two decades. Such journalists try to remain steadfast to their lofty goals even when the odds are heavily stacked against them. Authoritarian regimes put up insurmountable obstacles before them in the form of threats, false cases, abuse of the laws and torture in the lock-up. This has been the modus operandi used by enemies of peace and democracy over the years. Indian journalists and civil rights activists have a good measure of such experience, especially, in recent times. The most recent example is of Raman Kashyap, a journalist who lost his life in the Lakhimpur Kheri incident where the car of Union minister of State for Home Ajay Mishra's son Asish Mishra drove through a gathering of mostly farmers and allegedly killed Kashyap along with farmers.

Maria Ressa and Dmitry Muratov have been chosen for the Nobel Peace Prize for having braved the fury of leaders of the Philippines and Russia after exposing corruption and misrule in their respective countries. To underscore the need for journalists closing ranks in the cause of peace and democracy, Muratov dedicated his award to six contributors to his Novaya Gazeta newspaper who had been murdered for their work of exposing human rights violations and corruption. He recited the names of the slain reporters and activists whose portraits hang in the newspaper's Moscow headquarters. Interestingly, the only other Russian who had won the Nobel Peace Prize before Muratov was the former President of the erstwhile Soviet Union Mikhail Gorbachev who contributed some of his Nobel Prize money to help Muratov launch his newspaper in the early post-Soviet days.

Ressa, who shares the prize with Muratov, is the first individual winner of a Nobel in any field from the Philippines. She is the co-founder of the Rappler which has grown into a prominent voice through investigating journalism against large scale killings during a campaign against drugs. As is the pattern autocrats have been following in different countries, the administration of President Rodrigo Duterte filed several cases against her because of her writings against the President. She was named Time Magazine Person of the Year in 2018 for standing up against media intimidation. Her legal battles have caused global concern about the harassment of the media in the Philippines which was once a standard bearer for Press freedom in Asia. To put the perspective most emphatically, she told the media the Nobel Prize she has won is "a global recognition of the journalist's role in repairing, fixing our broken world."

Likewise, Muratov has announced he and his paper will leverage the prize in the interests of Russian journalism which "(the authorities) are now trying to repress." Strengthened further by the recognition, he has decided he would try to help his countrymen who have been branded as agents of foreign powers, treated like dirt and exiled from the country. Curiously, the Russian government has lauded Muratov for winning the prize.

The Nobel Peace Prize for the two journalists will surely boost the morale of fearless critics of abuse of power. Reiss-Anderson said the Nobel committee intended the award to send a message about the importance of rigorous journalism at a time when technology has made it easier than ever to spread falsehood. It is common knowledge how the media can influence people for which the Press and fact-based, high-quality journalism are more and more restricted. The last time a journalist got the prize was eight decades back in 1935 when the German Carl von Ossietzky received it for revealing his country's secret post-war rearmament programme. Incidentally, it was an expose on a fascist regime and now fascism is rearing its ugly head in many countries in different garbs.

WORDSWORTH

Phenology

Recording the dates each year when plants flowered or birds nested was a popular hobby in Victorian times. It continued the tradition of close observation of natural phenomena that had been pioneered by eighteenth century British naturalists such as Gilbert White at Selborne in Hampshire. But he never knew the word phenology that describes his methodical recording, as it was not invented until almost a century after his death; it's based on phenomenon plus -logy, the suffix denoting the study of some subject. Someone who makes such observations is a phenologist. Although the vogue for recording died out among amateurs at the end of the nineteenth century, scientists continued to use the word for the recording of such seasonal happenings, especially in areas like crop research. Both the word and the concept have recently gained new popularity and significance because global warming is causing plants to come into flower and crops to ripen earlier than before.

Philanthropreneur

This turned up in an article in the New York Times as a term to describe "young billionaires who have reaped the benefits of capitalism and believe that it can be applied in the service of charity". It turns out not to be a neologism, but one that has had a few earlier outings. It is claimed that the difference between old-style philanthropists like Carnegie or Rockefeller and the new philanthropreneurs is that the latter combine active money-making with a willingness to tackle social problems of the kind that have previously been thought to require governmental action. It is in essence capitalism that aims to do good at the same time, a hybrid activity that is causing some classically trained economists to scratch their heads in disbelief. Cases quoted in the New York Times article include Jeffrey Skoll, the former president of eBay, who has invested in a firm that makes waterless urinals to save water in arid countries; Stephen Case, the founder of America Online, whose charitable foundation pays to install water pumps in African villages but also operates a for-profit firm that ensures that they continue to be maintained; and Richard Branson, founder of the Virgin brand, who is investing in a scheme to combine mine-disposal in Mozambique with opportunities for Africans to grow sugar cane to make ethanol for fuel.

SPECTRUM WORLD BANK

After 'Doing Business'

Earlier this year, the World Bank commissioned me and five fellow academics to develop recommendations on how to improve the methodology behind its annual Doing Business report, which ranked countries on the quality of their business regulations and their overall business environment. The report had been a lightning rod for controversy since its inception in 2003. While it generated glowing coverage in the global business media, it was also subject to constant criticism for its perceived anti-regulation, anti-union, and anti-tax slant.

September 1, we submitted our final recommendations, calling for a major overhaul of Doing Business including ending the practice of ranking countries. Two weeks later, the World Bank announced that it was scrapping the report entirely after a separate investigation by an outside law firm concluded that data had been deliberately manipulated in order to alter some countries' rankings, notably those of China and Saudi Arabia.

Setting aside the debate over what really happened in the past, the end of Doing Business has important consequences. We have no doubt that the world needs a tool to measure countries' conditions for business development and attractiveness for foreign direct investment, and that the data from such a project are highly relevant to both researchers and business and government leaders.

The World Bank has already declared its intention to keep working on business-climate issues. But to re-establish itself in this domain, it will have to overcome a deep trust deficit and take drastic steps to restore public confidence in its data. Our ideas about how to fix Doing Business could now serve as minimum criteria that any new effort in this area should meet.

First, the World Bank should not build a new index to rank countries, as Doing Business did. Such aggregate indices are inevitably arbitrary, and the rankings invoke normative judgments that go far beyond the available evidence. Even prior to the recent data manipulation scandal, it was clear that the methodology behind many of the individual Doing Business indicators needed to be overhauled.

The core problem was that Doing Business did not actually survey businesses, or measure the real-world costs of doing business for a representative set of small and medium-size enterprises. Instead, it relied on subjective judgments from a small group of experts, who were invited to assess the costs of regulation for a hypothetical firm that was often quite unrepresentative in many of the countries the Bank evaluated.

As luck would have it, separate World Bank surveys have periodically asked actual firms' managers some of the same questions posed by Doing Business: about the time required to register a business, get a construction permit, clear goods through customs, and so on. Firms' own answers, it turned out, bore no relation to those of the Doing Business experts. If there is a successor to Doing Business, it has to start from real data, not hypotheticals.

A second set of issues concerns assumptions about the right policies or regulations, which are implicit in any business-environment ranking. For some indicators, such as delays in registering a business, less is clearly better. But for others, like the corporate tax rate, the optimal policy is the subject of vigorous academic debate.

The tax issue became increasingly awkward for the Doing Business report in recent years. As 130 countries finalised plans this year for a global minimum corporate tax rate, the index continued to encourage a race to the bottom in corporate taxation.

Third, any serious attempt to measure a country's business environment must consider government efforts to fix market failures and provide essential public goods. But the World Bank's broad vision of how to promote a good business climate, as embodied in the Doing Business index, suffered from some severe blind spots. For the private sector to flourish, apparently, government mostly needed to get out of the way. This view made no allowance for public investments in basic infrastructure such as roads, telecommunications networks, and power grids, all of which are fundamental to doing business but were entirely absent from the report. Absent, too, was any reference to crime prevention and public order, a skilled workforce, or investments in research and development.

Finally, there is the question of data credibility: Greater transparency would be a good start. The raw data underlying the Doing Business report were never publicly available, so the analysis could not be independently replicated. Excessive focus on rankings and lack of access to the data resulted in a product that was vulnerable to political pressures and data haggling.

Arguing that the scandal was unfortunate but that the methodology was right won't cut it. The Doing Business rankings—that result from the aggregation of indexes—were always dubious, because they did not provide an accurate picture of conditions on the ground and left no place for crucial public investments, sensible taxes, or necessary regulations. Any future effort to assess the business environment in member countries must address these shortcomings.

Validity of will

Sir, There are many occasions where the validity of the will executed by the deceased has been contested in courts by the heirs of the deceased. Cases are dragged in courts to determine whether the will executed by the person is genuine or fake. The Supreme Court has held "mere exclusion of a sibling per se from the will would not create a suspicion against it." Disputes on the authenticity of the will are adding to the fleet of cases in courts. It is strange that in some cases even the registered wills have been found to be false. If the registered wills are found to be the ones in which the signature of the executor is found to be false, registered deeds like sale deeds, partition deeds, gift deeds, release deeds may also be vulnerable for doubts. When the registered wills give room for suspicion in some cases, the unregistered will should not be recognised as a will. This would prevent cases of unregistered will coming into courts. Genealogy tree is prepared which the Notary Public attests. The Notary will sign for the information relating to the name of family members given by the applicant for the 'prescribed' fee given to him. Unless the applicant is honest in providing the names of all the concerned members, the genealogy tree with the attestation of the Notary cannot be always correct. No Notary Public has been held guilty for the false information provided by the applicants. If the Notary Public cannot be held responsible for the false information given by the applicants, the very purpose of signature of the Notary Public stands defeated. The rule making the signature of the Notary Public mandatory for genealogy trees would be redundant and does not serve any purpose beyond making it another source of earnings to the Notary Public. Implementation of some laws is just ritualistic.

Power crisis

Sir, India faces a huge power crisis. NTPC's coal reserves are at least, only one-day reserve available. This is opposite of the general norm of having 30 days stocks. There are several reasons for this—the economy is bouncing back, international coal prices are soaring, there are heavy rains in coal mines. The situation seems bleak, but it can improve easily, if all the power producing plants work with 100 per cent efficiency. PM Modi needs to personally take stock of this crisis and do the needful to resolve it.

spective MLAs at their residences and voiced their resentment over reservation of chairman posts for women.

Five blocks have been named in the non-reserve segment. They are Bhanjanagar, Belaguntha, Buguda, Purusottampur and Sheragad.

Besides, blocks like Khallikote, Dharakote and Ganjam have been reserved for OBC candidates while Chikiti and Digapahandi blocks have been reserved for people from the Scheduled Caste (SC).

The Hinjilicut Assembly constituency is represented by Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik. Two blocks of the constituency has come under the reservation policy. The Hinjilicut block is reserved for women while Sheragad is for the non-reserved category.

Many local frontline leaders from different segments have expressed their unhappiness, as their political aspirations have gone awry.

On the other hand, the ruling BJD has emphasised on Mission Shakti programme in the district, keeping in view the three-tier panchayat elections. The party has formulated strategies to increase the women's vote bank. SHGs are being given loans to take up various income-generating activities. Hence, more women leaders will be fielded for various posts in the coming panchayat elections, sources said. The Congress and BJP have also made their strategies to counter that of the BJD. Hence the upcoming polls can see tough triangular contests at many places.

It was also a lifeline for agriculture in the district as it was source of irrigation to large tracts of farmlands. A total of 110 wind-driven lift irrigation points was set up along its route. Sadly, the historic canal has lost its existence for lack of renovation, sources said.

However, after Independence, trade on this route lost its relevance. Both the Odisha and central governments neglected the waterway. At different places, the canal has lost its existence as silt has deposited over with the passage of time. At some places, it has been choked with weeds and hyacinths.

In 1974-75, the Odisha government took up renovation of the canal in some areas.

Sisodia blames Centre for Delhi's coal crisis

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICES

New Delhi, Oct 10: Blaming the Centre over the ongoing coal crisis, Delhi Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia Sunday said the Centre is running away from the issue of shortage of power production.

Referring to the oxygen crisis during the peak of second wave of Covid-19, the Deputy Chief Minister alleged that the Central government always neglects real issues.

"The coal situation is similar to the Oxygen crisis. However, the Centre won't accept it," he said.

Criticising Union Power Minister RK Singh, Sisodia said he is sad on the "irresponsible approach" of the Minister.

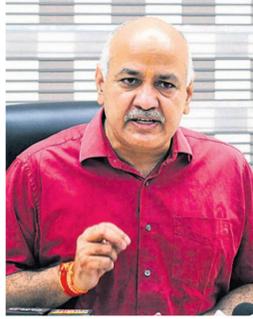

Several states, including Rajasthan, Delhi and Andhra Pradesh, have been raising concerns over the power shortage, Sisodia said.

He said that Chief Ministers including Arvind Kejriwal of Delhi and YS Jagan Mohan Reddy of Andhra Pradesh, have already written to Prime Minister Narendra Modi on the issue.

With the country running low on coal, power plants in Uttar Pradesh have stopped functioning, but the Central government is turning a blind eye towards it, he slammed.

Notably, Kejriwal Saturday wrote to Prime Minister Narendra Modi over the prevailing coal shortage situation that has struck the national capital for the third month in a row, affecting power generation in the city.

However, R.K. Singh had stated Sunday that Delhi will not face any energy crisis as sufficient fuel is being provided to power plants supplying the national capital, after reviewing the coal stock position in all thermal power plants.

Delhi BJP spokesperson Praveen Shankar Kapoor has said it is strange that the AAP government is repeatedly spreading fear of ensuing power cuts in Delhi but is not telling what alternate arrangements it has made to ensure proper power supply in the national capital.

This is despite the Union Power Minister's assurance that there is no shortage of fuel for power plants and the Centre will ensure proper power supply for Delhi, he added.

In some of these colleges there are acting officers on special duty working for five or more years. Under the University Grant Commission (UGC) regulations, tenure of principals in the varsity is fixed for five years but they are holding their position even after their term is over.

Hansraj Suman, teacher and DU's former Academic Council member, said the varsity administration is repeatedly giving extensions to the governing body in these 20 colleges while most of these colleges had put out advertisements to fill the principals post, but they don't have a proper governing body to do that.

The term of the governing body in all 20 colleges affiliated to DU year: Now to fill these posts of principals, the varsity administration will have to send a circular to all 20 colleges through advertisements seeking appointments. The various DU teachers associations have demanded from Delhi Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia to fill the vacant posts of Principals and assistant professors in all 20 colleges as soon as possible.

They said the time limit of the advertisements for the interview for the posts of principals in these colleges has expired. These teachers bodies say permanent teachers and principals can be appointed by means of advertisements only if there is a governing body in these colleges. Due to non-permanent appointment for the post of principals, the appointment of assistant professors is also not taking place in these colleges while appointments and promotions on non-academic posts are going on unabated.

The salaries of teachers in 12 out of 20 these colleges are still pending. Delhi University Teachers' Association President, Rajib Ray has raised this issue with the UGC. After meeting with the UGC authorities, Ray said a demand has been made before the statutory body to take over the control of these colleges.

Priyanka begins UP campaign with attack on BJP

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

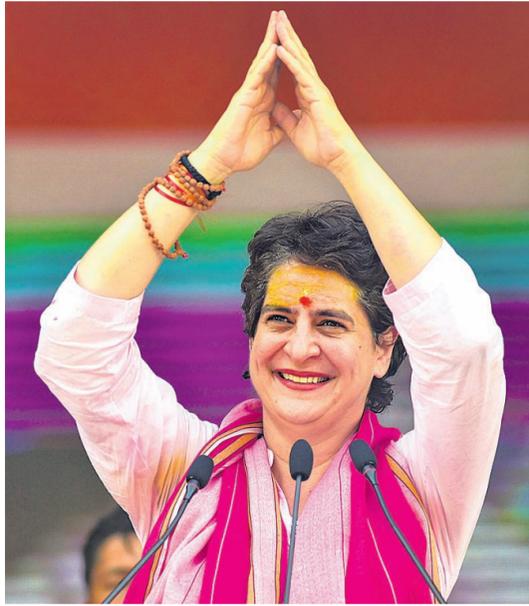

Varanasi, Oct 10: Congress general secretary Priyanka Gandhi Vadra Sunday kicked off her party's campaign for the upcoming UP assembly elections by mounting a blistering attack on the ruling BJP.

Addressing a mammoth rally in Varanasi, Priyanka took on the Centre and state governments on the issue of farmers and injustice to the poor.

"In the past two years, I have been working in UP. Two years ago, 13 adivasis were killed in a land dispute in Sonbhadra. Some leaders of the ruling BJP were involved and the people said that they had no hope for justice. I went there and each of the victims' families said that they wanted justice," she said.

Priyanka said that then came the pandemic and we saw people dying without oxygen, without medicines. People had hoped that the government would help but no help came and so many died in this hope.

"After this, Hathras happened and the government shielded the accused and there was no justice for the victim's family. The same has happened in Lakhimpur where farmers were mowed down by a minister's son and the government is shielding the accused," she said. Priyanka Gandhi announced that the Congress would continue to fight on the Lakhimpur issue until Union minister Ajay Mishra Teni submits his resignation to allow an impartial probe into the incident.

She said that nowhere in the world, does the police send an invitation to the accused to record his statement. "But in Lakhimpur, the minister's son was invited to give his statement. Is this how justice is done?" she asked.

In an attack on UP chief minister Yogi Adityanath, she said that he insulted Dalits who work as safai karamcharis.

"I went to a Valmiki temple in Lucknow and swept the floor. I met the residents of the Dalit basti and every family told me that though their children were educated, they had no employment. Today the Prime Minister's crorepati friends are earning thousands of crores every day but the people of this country are facing unemployment," she said.

The Congress leader said that the Prime Minister had bought two aircraft for himself, each costing Rs 8,000 crore. "The two aircraft cost the country Rs 16,000 crore but Air India has been sold for Rs 18,000 crore to benefit his friends," she stated.

She said that farmers were the real 'Ganga putra' of the country but the Prime Minister, who travels across the globe, has not found time to even talk to those who are sitting on Delhi borders.

Priyanka said that it was the sons of farmers who are protecting our borders, who ensure our safety and freedom.

"This country is a hope. Gandhiji had hope for freedom and justice for the poor and justice for the poor today, justice and hope are only for those who are with the BJP, its leaders and their friends. The country is being destroyed and the media is being used to create a campaign that shows all is well. We will fight against injustice and force them to give us justice just like we fought for Independence," she said.

Earlier, Priyanka visited the Kashi Vishwanath temple and the Durga temple where she offered prayers. She began her speech with a Sanskrit hymn on Navratri.

Lucknow, Oct 10: BSP supremo Mayawati at a recent rally promised not to derail the ongoing work of the BJP government in "Ayodhya, Varanasi, Mathura and other religious places", if voted to power.

Claiming that the BJP's government's works in the three holy cities are only the follow-ups of her government's initiatives, Mayawati went on to promise, in what is being seen as a subtle shift towards soft Hindutva ahead of the Uttar Pradesh assembly polls, to complete all those work on time.

She made the promise while addressing the 15th death anniversary of BSP founder Kanshi Ram here and asserting that if voted to power, she will not indulge in misappropriating the credit for work done by the preceding governments like the SP and the BJP regimes.

"The BSP, if voted to power, will not stop the developmental work of the current BJP government, which followed the footsteps of the BSP, in Ayodhya, Varanasi, Mathura and other religious places," said Mayawati.

"The unfinished works will not be stopped with a feeling of vengeance but will be completed," she promised.

"The drama of changing names of the work done by other governments will not be done by the BSP like the Samajwadi Party and the Bhartiya Janata Party did," she said.

"All the works of their governments will be honestly reviewed. The work which is appropriate and in the public interest will definitely be taken ahead and finished on time," she added.

Apart from the construction of a massive Lord Rama temple, a multi-pronged developmental work, including the construction of an international airport, is going in Ayodhya.

Developmental work in form of the construction of the Kashi Vishwanath corridor project is going on in Varanasi while several beautification projects have been undertaken for Mathura and Vrindavan.

Earlier while addressing a Brahmins conclave organised by the party on September 7, Mayawati had also promised that rather than building statues and memorials, she would, if voted to power, focus on changing the face of Uttar Pradesh through developmental works.

In the run-up to the Punjab assembly elections, which the BSP has decided to fight in alliance with Shiromani Akali Dal, Mayawati also took a dig at the Congress over the appointment of a Dalit chief minister in the state.

"Despite trumpeting about making a Dalit the Punjab chief minister and dramatics to woo the Sikhs, people of that community cannot forget the pain of the anti-Sikh riots under its rule," she said.

10-yr-old diesel, 15-yr-old petrol vehicles to be impounded in Noida

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Noida, Oct 10: In a measure to prevent air pollution, the Gautam Buddh Nagar administration has asked the district police to impound diesel vehicles older than 10 years and petrol vehicles older than 15 years in compliance with a Supreme Court order.

Police have also been asked to ensure that vehicles not destined for Noida or Greater Noida use by-passes or peripheral expressways, according to the 'winter action plan' issued by the Gautam Buddh Nagar district administration.

It stated that police have been asked to keep a strict vigil and show no tolerance for visible emissions by stopping 'visibly polluting vehicles' from plying by impounding or issuing fines to offenders.

The administration on October 6 released the 'winter action plan' to check pollution to various government agencies and authorities ahead of winters, during which air pollution in the National Capital Region (NCR), including Noida and Greater Noida, spikes to severe levels affecting human health.

The administration asked the police to list traffic hot-spots in the district and release it and an advisory accordingly.

"Deploy additional man power and civil defence volunteers to ensure smooth traffic flow at identified traffic hot-spots and impound diesel vehicles older than 10 years and petrol vehicles older than 15 years in compliance of the Supreme Court's order," the plan stated.

"Ensure that non-destined vehicles use by-passes or peripheral expressways, keep strict vigilance and no tolerance for visible emissions - stop plying of visibly polluting vehicles by impounding/fine," it said.

The police have also been asked to keep strict vigilance and enforcement of pollution under control (PUC) norms besides ensuring stoppage of encroachment on footpaths. "Check and resolve issues such as congestion and unusual dust emission due to traffic or parking, and ensure compliance of action plans on the identified pollution hotspots in the city," according to the plan.

The police have also been asked to ensure implementation of orders of the Supreme Court regarding prohibition or restriction in the sale and use of fire crackers in NCR.

"Ensure immediate redressal of complaints received on Sameer, Swachh Vayu, Twitter etc," it added. Earlier the Uttar Pradesh Pollution Control Board identified eight key air pollution hot spots in Noida and Greater Noida, according to the Gautam Buddh Nagar district administration, which has directed local authorities to ensure implementation of the action plan to check pollution during winters.

The hot spots identified are Sector 7X (a collective of group housing societies in sector 73 to 78 of Noida), Sector 150, the Yamuna Pusta area, the Noida-Greater Noida Expressway, the Dadri road, the underpass and building construction along Noida-Greater Noida Expressway, Greater Noida West and UPSIDC industrial areas, it said.

The major air pollution sources have been identified as road dust, construction and demolition (C&D) waste, industrial dust emissions, unpaved roads and traffic congestion, the administration said in a communication Wednesday to all three local industrial development authorities and other departments concerned.

Delhi to go green to reduce dust pollution

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 10: To reduce dust pollution, especially in winters, and to make city streets greener, the Delhi government has decided to enhance greenery on its roads and flyovers with the help of shrubs, hedges, creepers and a variety of flowering plants, government officials said Sunday.

According to senior officials of the Public Works Department (PWD), central and side verges of roads and flyovers and walls of overbridges will be spruced up with seasonal flowering plants and shrubs on a number of identified road stretches and flyovers.

"There are many flyovers and roads where greenery is less which results in dust. We have identified such stretches to enhance greenery there and beautify these streets. Some of these stretches include the Ring Road, Chirag Delhi flyover, IIT flyover etc. In the mega drive we will use decorative and seasonal flowering plants, shrubs, hedges for roads and flyovers," a senior PWD official told PTI.

He said that tenders have been floated for the procurement of plant saplings, shrubs and hedges.

The official said that the main aim of the project is to cut down dust pollution due to open spaces and dirt patches on roads. No dry and vacant space will be left on roads for the dust to fly, the official said.

The move comes after Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal last month directed PWD officials to improve greenery to reduce dust pollution in the city. According to PWD officials privy to the development, tenders have been issued for improving greenery and beautification of a number of flyovers.

These overbridges include IIT flyover, Munirka flyover, Africa

Avenue flyover, Chirag Delhi flyover, B-Avenue flyover, Masoodpur flyover and Panchsheel flyover.

Officials said that greenery beneath these flyovers will be improved and road footpaths will also be made encroachment free. "A variety of flowering plants

Central and side verges of roads and flyovers and walls of overbridges will be spruced up with seasonal flowering plants and shrubs on a number of identified road stretches and flyovers such as Bougainvillea, Clerodendrum Inerme, Ipomea, Tradescantia, Tasmanian Flax-Lilly (Dianella Variegated) Kamal Cactus along with hedge plants will be used to beautify roads and flyovers. We will also use creepers on the flyover walls and pillars to enhance greenery and beautification of the structure," another PWD official said.

Major arterial roads of the national capital are under the jurisdiction of the PWD. The department manages around 1,260 km-long roads in the city.

The officials said that at least 42,000 plants saplings, hedges and shrubs will be used to beautify roads and flyovers in PWD's south sub-division.

2 TRF 'operatives' held during raids in Kashmir

AGENCIES

Srinagar, Oct 10: The National Investigation Agency (NIA) Sunday carried out raids at several places in Kashmir Valley and arrested two 'operatives' of The Resistance Front (TRF), considered a shadow outfit of the banned Lashker-e-Taiba terror group, which has claimed responsibility for a spate of targeted civilian killings.

An NIA spokesperson said that the searches were carried with the assistance of CRPF and Jammu and Kashmir Police at seven locations in Kulgam, Srinagar and Baramulla districts.

A case was initially registered at Bahu Fort police station relating to the recovery of an IED from a Lashker-e-Taiba terrorist in Bathindi, Jammu on June 27 for indulging in terrorist acts in the Union territory. The NIA had registered the case again and arrested three terrorists.

Investigation has revealed that Pakistan-based handlers of LeT and their associates based in Jammu and Kashmir had conspired to cause extensive terror activities for harming the public, Friends, well-wishers and even people who hardly knew him, continue to pour into Bindroo's residence to express grief and anger at his murder by the terrorists. Bindroo's killing sparked fear and consternation among scores of Kashmiri Pandits who had continued to live in the Valley even after the majority of their community members migrated out in early 1990s.

Eastern Ladakh row: India, China hold talks

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 10: India Sunday pressed for an early disengagement of troops in the remaining friction points in eastern Ladakh at the 13th round of military talks with China that lasted for around eight-and-a-half hours, sources in the security establishment said.

It is learnt that a major focus of the Corps Commander-level talks was to complete the stalled disengagement at Patrolling Point 15 (PP-15). There was no official comment on the negotiations that took place on the Chinese side of the Chushul-Moldo border point in eastern Ladakh.

The talks, which started at 10:30 AM and ended at 7 PM, took place over two months after the last round of negotiations that resulted in the disengagement of troops from Gogra (Patrol Point-17A).

India has been insisting that the resolution of outstanding issues in all friction points including in Depsang is essential for an overall improvement in ties between the two countries. The Indian delegation is understood to have conveyed this view firmly at the 13th round of talks while pressing for bringing down tensions at Depsang.

The talks took place in the backdrop of two recent incidents of attempted transgressions by the Chinese troops - one in the Barahoti sector of Uttarakhand and another in the Tawang sector in Arunachal Pradesh. Indian and Chinese troops were engaged in a brief face-off near Yangtse in the Tawang sector of Arunachal Pradesh around 10 days back and it was resolved within a few hours following talks between commanders of the two

Indian and Chinese troops were engaged in a brief face-off near Yangtse in the Tawang sector of Arunachal Pradesh around 10 days back and it was resolved within a few hours following talks between commanders of the two sides as per established protocols.

Close to 100 soldiers of China's People's Liberation Army (PLA) transgressed the LAC in the Barahoti sector of Uttarakhand on August 30 and returned from the area after spending a few hours.

The two sides held the 12th round of talks on July 31. Days later, the two armies completed the disengagement process in Gogra, which was seen as a significant forward movement towards the restoration of peace and tranquility in the region.

The Indian delegation at Sunday's talks was led by Lt Gen PGK Menon, the Commander of the Leh-based 14 Corps. On Saturday, Chief of Army Staff Gen MM Naravane had said if the Chinese military continues with its large-scale deployment in the eastern Ladakh region, then the Indian Army too will maintain its strength on its side which he said is "as good as what the PLA has done." The border standoff between the Indian and Chinese militaries erupted on May 5 last year following a violent clash in the Pangong lake areas.

NC suffers jolt in Jammu

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Jammu, Oct 10: The National Conference suffered a major setback in Jammu as two prominent leaders Devender Rana and Surjit Singh Slathia resigned from the party Sunday.

They are likely to join the BJP in Delhi Monday. "Dr Farooq Abdullah has received & accepted the resignations of Mr Salathia & Mr Rana. No further action or comment is deemed necessary," a National Conference spokesman tweeted.

Rana, who was NC's provincial president of the Jammu region, also announced the decision to quit the National Conference during a brief interaction with media persons outside his house here, ending over week-long speculation about him leaving his party and joining the BJP.

"I along with (senior party colleague and former minister) S S Slathia resigned from the basic membership of the National Conference," he told reporters. Rana, a former MLA and younger brother of Union minister Jitendra Singh, had taken over the post of provincial president of the National Conference in 2011 after relinquishing his office as political advisor to the then chief minister Omar Abdullah.

"Now the voice of J-K will come from Jammu which should get its rightful place," Rana, who was considered as the backbone of the National Conference in Jammu province, said. He said his political philosophy would be based on the proposed 'Jammu declaration'.

Rana said his only concern is the interests of Jammu and the wishes and aspirations of the people of the region. The 'Jammu declaration' is an attempt in this direction where people from all walks of life including political parties need to come together, he added.

GOVT ALLOWS EXPORT OF SPUTNIK LIGHT VAX

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

New Delhi, Oct 10: India has allowed export of around 40 lakh doses of domestically-manufactured coronavirus vaccine 'Sputnik Light' to Russia, sources said Sunday.

Sputnik Light - the single-dose Covid-19 vaccine variant of Russia's Sputnik - has not yet been approved for emergency use in India. Hetero and Dr Reddy's Laboratories, the Indian partner of Russian sovereign wealth fund RDI, markets the Sputnik range of vaccines globally.

There were various view points among Indian experts about the single-dose vaccine's efficacy on Indians. In September, the Drugs Controller General of India had granted permission for the conducting Phase 3 bridging trials of Sputnik Light on the Indian population.

The nod comes after a recent study published in the medical journal The Lancet said that Sputnik Light showed 78.6 to 83.7 per cent efficacy against Covid-19, significantly higher than most two-shot vaccines.

The Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation's Subject Expert Committee had, in July, denied grant of emergency use authorisation to Sputnik Light, stressing need to Phase 3 trial of the Russian vaccine in the country.

Lakhimpur violence being made into a Hindu-Sikh battle: Varun

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 10: BJP MP Varun Gandhi Sunday warned against attempts to turn the Lakhimpur Kheri incident into a "Hindu vs Sikh battle", saying it is dangerous to create these fault lines and reopen wounds that have taken a generation to heal.

The Pilibhit MP, who was recently dropped from the BJP national executive, said the struggle for justice in Lakhimpur Kheri is about the "cruel massacre of poor farmers in the face of arrogant local power elite", and the issue has no religious connotations.

"To use the word 'Khalistani' liberally to describe the protesting farmers is not only an insult to the generations of these proud sons of the Tarai who have fought and shed blood on our borders, it is also extremely dangerous for our national unity if this provokes the wrong kind of reaction," he said. In a tweet, he said, "An attempt to turn Lakhimpur Kheri into a Hindu vs Sikh battle is being made. Not only is this an immoral & false narrative, it is dangerous to create these fault-lines & reopen wounds that have taken a generation to heal. We must not put petty political gains above national unity."

Police had arrested Ashish Mishra, son of Union Minister of State for Home Ajay Mishra, in connection with the October 3 Lakhimpur violence. Farmer organisations have blamed the father-son duo for the incident and are alleging that the minister had made a provocative speech while his son was inside a vehicle that hit farmers. Both have denied the allegations.

How Modi runs his govt

If one wants to know how the Prime Minister runs his government, one will have to attend his classes. Before going to the US last month, the Prime Minister held his 6-hour-long class as a headmaster at the newly built mega hall at the Rashtrapati Bhawan to ensure that all 70-odd secretaries and PM's staff could be seated. Modi has started using this facility at the Rashtrapati Bhawan after 2017 frequently. During this period, Modi spoke to each one of the 70-plus secretaries who were invited to a special review meeting. Since it was the first in-person meet with all of them together in two years, everyone was rattled. The PM had not held any meeting with them during the pandemic. Secondly, it was not a 'Chintan Shivir' (brain-storming session) either but an accountability session. All the secretaries heading ministries and departments were told to come prepared with their report card as to what they have done so far and what they plan to do during the next 100-days.

PM and his 70 secretaries

The Prime Minister had kept 70-plus sheets neatly typed on his right side and picked up one-by-one. Each sheet had every detail of the secretary concerned and his ministry. It gave a graphic account of how many ministries he had worked earlier and when he will superannuate. When a secretary spoke, Modi interjected and said, "I know you have joined the ministry only three days ago." When another secretary tried to take shelter saying he had been taking the directions of the minister concerned, Modi said that this meeting was about him and his ministry. "The ministers have many tasks to perform. You tell me what was the target set for your ministry in 2019 and how much has been achieved so far," Modi reported to have commented. "When a senior secretary pointed out that state governments were not cooperating in clearing certain files, the PM wondered as to why the PMO was not apprised of the problem. The PM issued instructions then and there that any project held up anywhere in the country, the PMO must be told in writing. He went on to say that he would talk to the concerned CM himself. This time, the PM did something unusual and asked them to send to the PMO a 'Daily Report'."

Yogi gives thumbs down to AK

It is no secret that Yogi Adityanath is on his own trip in UP. He is not like other BJP Chief Ministers in many states who pay obeisance to political masters in Delhi. Insiders in the BJP say that Central leadership is rather scared to make any request directly to him or even issue any directions which he may disregard. While BJP Chief Ministers in three states in a row have been shown the door, Yogi is different. It is said that Yogi doesn't even take the calls of many senior leaders and prefers to call back later. The Central high command was also upset after Yogi Adityanath had cut Sunil Bansal, the unquestioned king of Lucknow to run the affairs, to size. Sunil Bansal is a general secretary (organisation) and his writ used to run in UP for the past several years. He drew more crowd at his residence than at the residence of Chief Minister. But times have changed since 2017. Now Sunil Bansal has been cut to size. There was a time when the BJP high command wanted to remove Yogi. But that did not happen. Therefore, high command sent A K Sharma who was in the PMO and Modi's trusted man. Sharma was sent to MSME as Secretary and took voluntary retirement and became an MLC. It was suggested that he be made a minister and given the Home portfolio. Obviously, the high command wanted that UP should also be run like other states such as Gujarat where K Kailashnathan remains Chief Principal Secretary to the Chief Minister in Gujarat even after Modi left the state seven years ago. But Yogi did not even make AK a minister and he remains one of the dozens vice presidents of the party.

Amarinder not quitting Congress

None of the 77 MLAs including those who won from Patiala, his home district, are willing to quit the Congress along with Capt. Amarinder Singh at least for now. Even his wife Preetneet Kaur, Lok Sabha MP from Patiala and his son Raninder Singh are reluctant to leave the party. Captain Singh had told Amit Shah that he has adequate support of the Congress MLAs. But only three MLAs came to see him when he returned to Chandigarh. His supporters indicated that he may float Punjab Vikas Party (PVP) soon. But his support base is dwindling by the day and they are worried about their own prospects in Assembly polls due next February.

How babus react

The PM has come a long way in dealing with the bureaucracy. There were days when he used to get angry with the "babus" and used to call them "file-pushers". It is no secret that the PM has been upset with the bureaucracy who has everything in life during service and even after retirement and still they don't move their finger. They have become merely file pushers. But more than seven years into the office, the PM has started looking the other way. Earlier, the bureaucrats had shunned going to the Golf Club. They had even stopped eating out at 5-star hotels. But all this is changing. Modi is now keen to bring the bureaucracy on board if he has to deliver in time. Secondly, he has also started to bring talent from outside the government.

Taipei, Oct 10: Taiwan's president Sunday vowed to defend the island from China's rising pressure for reunification, after a week of unprecedented tensions with Beijing.

Speaking at the island's National Day celebrations, a rare show of Taiwanese defense capabilities in the annual parade underlined Tsai Ing-wen's promise to resist Chinese military threats. "We will do our utmost to prevent the status quo from being unilaterally altered," President Tsai said. "We will continue to bolster our national defense and demonstrate our determination to defend ourselves in order to ensure that nobody can force Taiwan to take the path China has laid out for us," the Taiwanese leader added. Tsai emphasised the island's vibrant democracy in contrast with Beijing's deeply authoritarian, single-party Communist state. "The path that China has laid out offers neither a free and democratic way of life for Taiwan, nor sovereignty for our 23 million people," Tsai said.

A choir of singers from Taiwan's various indigenous tribes opened the ceremony in front of the Presidential Office Building in the center of the capital, Taipei.

Surveys show Taiwanese overwhelmingly favor their current de-facto independent state and strongly rejects unification with China, which has vowed to bring the island under its control, by military force if necessary. Tsai rarely singles out China in her public speeches, but in this speech acknowledged the increasing tensions that Taiwan faces as Chinese military harassment intensified in the past year. Since September of last year, China has flown fighter jets more than 800 times towards Taiwan. Since last Friday, China has sent a record-breaking number of fighter jets towards international airspace close to Taiwan. The island has strengthened its unofficial ties with countries like Japan, Australia and the US in the face of these perceived threats.

"But the more we achieve, the greater the pressure we face from China," Tsai said in her speech. Following the address, Taiwan's Ministry of National Defense showed off a range of weaponry including missile launchers and armored vehicles while fighters jets and helicopters soared overhead. These included a formation of F-16, Indigenous Defense Fighters and Mirage 2000s, which left wide white contrails in their wake. The show of air power was followed by a group of CM32 tanks, followed later by trucks carrying missile systems.

Tsai said Taiwan wanted to contribute to peaceful regional development, even as the situation becomes "more tense and complex" in the Indo-Pacific. On Saturday, China's leader Xi Jinping said that reunification with Taiwan "must be realized", while claiming "peaceful" reunification was possible.

The parade Sunday in Taipei also featured Taiwan's Olympic athletes who won medals at the Tokyo summer games, as well as public health officials, including those who staff a daily press conference about the pandemic, wearing their distinctive neon yellow-

Why nCoV vaccines didn't win science Nobel this year

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

New York, Oct 10: Despite high hopes that one of the Nobel committees would recognise vaccination research that has saved countless lives by being delivered to billions of people, this year's science Nobels instead went to fundamental advances that had been tipped to win for years.

The timing didn't work in favour of a Covid-19 Nobel this year. Nominations for this year's prize had to be submitted by February 1.

This was more than two months after the first mRNA vaccines, and some others, proved their mettle in clinical trials, but before their impact on the pandemic was fully clear, said Goran Hansson, secretary-general of the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences in Stockholm, which selects the prize winners. "Follow-up is really still happening now," Hansson added. According to Nature.com, some scientists expressed surprise and disappointment at the omission of Covid-19 vaccines, particularly those developed using messenger RNA technology, which has launched a new class of vaccines.

But Nobel prize insiders and watchers say that timing, technical details and politics meant that a nod this year was a long shot. However, the impact of Covid-19 vaccines - and the underlying advances - indicate that it shouldn't be long before researchers behind the work get a call from Stockholm.

"The development of mRNA vaccines is a wonderful success story that has had enormous positive consequences for humankind. And we are all very grateful to the scientists," Hansson said. "This is a kind of discovery that will receive nominations. But we need to take time," Hansson added.

He could not survive after his lungs collapsed.

Britain, Ireland argue on Twitter

AGENCIES

London/Brussels, Oct 10: Britain and Ireland traded barbs on Twitter Sunday after British Brexit negotiator David Frost restated his view that the EU must agree "significant change" to the Northern Ireland protocol that governs trade and border rules in the province.

BREXIT DEAL

The protocol was part of the Brexit settlement Prime Minister Boris Johnson negotiated with the EU, but London has repeatedly said it must be rewritten less than a year after taking force due to the barriers businesses face when importing British goods into Northern Ireland.

Ireland's foreign minister Simon Coveney on Twitter asked: "Real Q: Does UKG (UK Government) actually want an agreed way forward or a further breakdown in relations?" That drew a rebuke from Frost: "I prefer not to do negotiations by twitter, but since @simoncoveney has begun the process..." Frost dismissed Coveney's argument that he was making new demands, saying that Britain's concerns over the European Court of Justice's role in the process were set out three months earlier," Frost said.

On Saturday, Frost had released extracts of a speech he is due to make this week again calling for change and signalling a desire to free the protocol from the oversight of European judges.

Countries must spend more to protect nature: UN

The United Nations wants countries to commit to protecting 30% of their land by 2030, a pledge already agreed to by the United States and others

AGENCIES

China, Oct 10: The global community must invest much more and raise the scale and speed of its pledges to protect nature and prevent species loss, a senior UN official said Sunday on the eve of a new round of global biodiversity talks. The first part of the twice-postponed "COP15" biodiversity negotiations begin in the southwestern Chinese city of Kunming on Monday, with the aim of generating momentum for an ambitious post-2020 agreement to reverse decades of habitat destruction caused by human encroachment and climate change.

David Cooper, deputy executive secretary of the UN Convention on Biological Diversity, told a briefing that ministers attending virtual meetings this week needed to show more ambition and give "clear political direction" to negotiators, who will thrash out a final deal in Kunming in May next year. Environmental groups say there is no time to lose when it comes to protecting habitats and slowing extinction rates, especially after governments failed to complete any of the 2020 biodiversity targets agreed in Aichi, Japan a decade earlier. However, Cooper said the level of urgency was still not enough.

Afghans flock to Iranian border, but few can cross

BEFORE THE TALIBAN CAME TO POWER IN AUGUST, AROUND 1,000 TO 2,000 PEOPLE CROSSED TO IRAN THROUGH THE ZARANJ BORDER STATION IN SOUTHWESTERN PROVINCE OF NIMROZ EVERY MONTH

AGENCIES

Zaranj, Afghanistan, Oct 10: The number of Afghans attempting to cross the border to Iran has soared since the Taliban swept to power almost two months ago, but few make it across, an official said. Before the Taliban came to power August 15, around 1,000 to 2,000 people crossed to Iran through the Zaranj border station in the southwestern province of Nimroz every month.

But the border commander for Nimroz province, Mohammad Hashem Hanzaleh, told AFP this week that the number of people attempting to cross has since soared to between 3,000 and 4,000 every day. The hike comes as devastating economic and humanitarian crises lash Afghanistan, with the UN warning that a third of the population faces the threat of famine.

But Hanzaleh said that very few had the papers required to cross. Traders and people holding residence visas, as well as those with visas to seek medical treatment, "are not prevented by Iranian forces," he said, adding that about 5-600 people were allowed across each day.

For those without their papers attempting to cross, the experience can be harrowing. Hayatullah, wearing a towel-like turban and a grey beard, showed off his in-

SAMSUNG, HUAWEI, LG AND SOME OTHER COMPANIES HAVE STARTED WORKING ON 6G TECHNOLOGIES WHICH IS SAID TO BE 50 TIMES FASTER THAN 5G AND IS EXPECTED TO BE COMMERCIALY LAUNCHED BETWEEN 2028-2030

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 10: Telecom Secretary K Rajaraman has asked state-owned telecom research and development organisation C-DoT to start working on 6G and other futuristic technologies in order to catch up with the market in time, Centre for Development of Telematics (C-DoT) said in the statement. According to Department of Telecom (DoT), 5G technology is expected to deliver ten times better download speed than that of 4G and up to three times greater spectrum efficiency. Telecom Regulatory Authority

The telecom secretary has stressed upon C-DoT to keep track of emerging technologies, aligned with the technology life cycle. He has asked C-DoT to start working on 6G and other futuristic technologies in order to catch up with the market in time, Centre for Development of Telematics (C-DoT) said in the statement. According to Department of Telecom (DoT), 5G technology is expected to deliver ten times better download speed than that of 4G and up to three times greater spectrum efficiency. Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai) has recorded the top speed of 4G at around 20 megabit per second in Reliance Jio network in the country.

The department has begun the process for commercial launch of 5G in India. It has sought Trai's views on the base price of spectrum to be allocated for 5G services. Rajaraman, who took charge as Secretary of DoT October 1, also advised C-DoT to focus on commercialization of technology and consider setting up incubators in C-DoT for faster technology commercialization. He visited C-DoT Saturday where he inaugurated its Quantum Communication Lab and unveiled the indigenously developed Quantum Key Distribution (QKD) solution.

QKD is essential to address the threat that rapid advancement in Quantum Computing poses to the security of the data being transported by various critical sectors through the current communication networks, the statement said. The government has allocated $1 billion for the National Mission on Quantum Technologies and Applications spanning over a period of 8 years.

Govt imposes stock limits on edible oils

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 10: The Centre Sunday imposed stock limits on traders of edible oils and oilseeds, barring importers and exporters, till March 31, in a bid to check rising domestic prices and give relief to consumers.

Already, futures trading in mustard oil on NCDEX platform has been suspended from October 8, it said.

"The centre's decision will soften the prices of edible oils in the domestic market, thereby bringing great relief to consumers across the country," the Food and Consumer Affairs Ministry said in a statement.

As per the order issued to all states, state governments and union territories will decide the stock limit to be imposed on edible oils and oilseeds after taking into account the available stock and consumption pattern of that particular state or UT. However, certain importers and exporters have been

The exemption is given to those exporters (being a refiner, miller, extractor, wholesaler or retailer or dealer) who have an Importer-Exporter Code Number issued by the Director General of Foreign Trade (DGFT) and are able to demonstrate that the whole or part of his stock are meant for exports and to the extent of the stock meant for export.

The exemption is also given to those importers (being a refiner, miller, extractor, wholesaler or retailer or dealer) who are able to demonstrate that part of his stock in respect of edible oils and edible oilseeds are sourced from imports, the ministry said.

According to the ministry, high prices of edible oils in the international market have a substantial impact on the domestic edible oil prices. However, the government has formulated a multi-pronged strategy to ensure that prices of essential commodities like edible oils remain controlled.

Measures like rationalisation of import duty structure, launching of a web-portal for self-disclosure of stocks held by various stakeholders had already been taken, it said. India meets more than 60 per cent of its edible oil demands through imports.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 10: Billionaire Mukesh Ambani's Reliance Industries Ltd Sunday announced two back-to-back acquisitions - a $771 million buyout of Norway-based solar panel manufacturer REC Solar Holdings and purchase of 40% stake in Shapoorji Pallonji Group's Sterling & Wilson Solar - as the oil-to-retail conglomerate moved to create a multi-billion-dollar clean energy portfolio.

Reliance New Energy Solar Ltd (RNESL), a wholly-owned subsidiary of RIL, acquired "100% shareholding of REC Solar Holdings AS (REC Group) from China National Bluestar (Group) Co Ltd for an Enterprise Value of USD 771 million (about ₹5,800 crore)," the firm said in a statement.

Hours later, it announced through another statement buying of a 40% stake in solar engineering, procurement, construction (EPC) firm Sterling & Wilson Solar Ltd (SWSL) in a multi-stage transaction for about ₹2,845 crore.

While REC makes solar grade polysilicon and solar panel and modules at facilities in Norway and Singapore, and has more than 1,300 employees globally, SWSL has expertise of executing 11-plus gigawatts of solar turnkey projects globally. Reliance will use REC's technology to manufacture metallic silicon and solar panels and SWSL's EPC expertise at its gigafactory at Jammagar in Gujarat, with initial annual capacity of 4 gigawatts, eventually rising to 10GW. The REC acquisition is an outright purchase while the 40% stake in SWSL would be done through "a combination of primary investment, secondary purchase and open offer."

Ambani had at the RIL annual general meeting announced spending of ₹60,000 crore on creating clean energy manufacturing capacity and ₹15,000 crore on the value chain and technology.

Having committed to net-zero carbon by 2035, India's largest company by market value plans to build solar photovoltaic panels, batteries, hydrogen fuel cells, and electrolyzers over the next three years. The plan comes as companies and investors globally switch to sustainable investments and seek suppliers with similar commitments to curb greenhouse emissions.

Auto retailers staring at huge losses this fest season

WITH THE 42-DAY LONG PEAK SEASON HAVING COMMENCED WITH THE FIRST NAVRATRA, DEALERS ARE FINDING IT DIFFICULT TO CONVINCE THE CUSTOMERS TO WAIT INDEFINITELY FOR THE VEHICLES OF THEIR CHOICE

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 10: Automobile retailers are staring at huge losses this festive season as manufacturers struggle with vehicle dispatches to dealerships amid the ongoing semiconductor shortage crisis, according to a top Federation of Automobile Dealers Associations (FADA) official.

With chip shortage continuing unabated, auto manufacturers are faced with production issues forcing them to curtail supplies to dealer partners. Amid robust demand for several models, dealers are witnessing booking cancellations and there is also a drop in on the spot buying due to dearth of inventory at their end.

"Festive season is the most important period in terms of sales for us. On an average, the two month period accounts for 40 per cent of our total sales during a year. This is the time when we actually earn and save for operations for the rest of the year. This year we are not getting adequate vehicles and are staring at losses," FADA President Vinkesh Gulati told PTI. He noted that in the passenger vehicle segment, the waiting period on most of the models has gone up drastically from the earlier period of 1-3 months. Gulati said with lack of inventory at the dealerships, spot purchases are hampered as well.

As per our data, while 50-60 per cent buyers go for prior booking etc,

We are staring at big losses. During the festive period our retail sales used to be in the range of 4-4.5 lakh units in the 42-day period but this time around it is going to be just around the 3-3.5 lakh sales mark. We would be lucky if we are able to achieve even such a sales number the rest 40 per cent are those who just come to the dealership and just buy a model. So this chapter is just closed for us as there are no extra units, he stated.

Gulati noted that while the PV segment suffers from robust demand and poor supply, the situation is quite opposite in the two wheeler segment where the inventory level is better but demand is uninspiring. There is an impact on the lower middle class and rural regions due to drop in income levels amid Covid related issues, which has impacted the demand. Also, the prices of two wheelers have gone up by around 30 per cent in the last one year alone. Besides, high petrol prices are also an impediment. So there has been an impact, he stated.

Automobile retail sales in the country witnessed a 5 per cent year-on-year drop last month amid a decline in two-wheeler and tractor dispatches during the period. As per Federation of Automobile Dealers Associations (FADA), total retail sales last month stood at 12,96,257 units, down 5.27 per cent, from 13,68,307 units in September 2020.

YELLOW ARMY RIDES ON SKIPPER'S KNOCK, ENTERS FINAL FOR THE 9TH TIME

AGENCIES

Dubai, Oct 10: When the going gets tough, the tough gets going... and who better to prove it than Chennai Super Kings (CSK) skipper MS Dhoni. When Rituraj Gaikwad (70, 50b, 5x4, 2x6) got out in the 19th over, CSK still needed 24 runs to win in 11 balls. In walked MSD, with not much to show for his efforts with the bat in the previous games. However, he turned back the clock and needed just six balls to score an unbeaten 18 runs (1x6, 3x4) to win the game for his side and seal CSK's place in the final with two balls to spare.

It was the vintage Dhoni of old and 'Captain Cool' once more demonstrated that he still remains one of the best finishers of the game. Chasing a score of 172 for five put up by Delhi Capitals, the Kings scampered over the line, just.

Earlier Gaikwad had set the ball rolling along with Robin Uthappa (63, 44b, 7x4, 2x6) and the two put on 110 runs for the second wicket to put CSK on a firm pedestal. Then they stuttered losing three quick wickets for just six runs. However, Moeen Ali (16) scored some vital runs and then Dhoni closed out the match.

The good thing for the Capitals is that they will have another chance to enter the summit clash round when they face the winners of the 'Eliminator' to be played Monday between Royal Challengers Bangalore and Kolkata Knight Riders.

After being put in by Dhoni, it was the turn of Prithvi Shaw (60, 34b, 7x4, 3x6) and skipper Rishabh Pant (51 n o, 35b, 3x4, 2x6) to take DC to a fighting total. Shimron Hetmyer (37, 24b, 3x4, 1x6) also contributed, but then they never thought that the vintage Dhoni would bail out the Kings.

After Shaw gave DC the perfect start, it was Pant and Hetmyer who consolidated the innings with some thrilling stroke-play. In the process, they put on 83 runs for the fifth wicket.

Brief scores

DC 172 for 5 (Prithvi Shaw 60, Rishabh Pant, 51 n o, Josh Hazlewood 2/29) lost to CSK 173 for 6 in 19.4 overs (Rituraj Gaikwad 70, Robin Uthappa 63, MS Dhoni 18 n o, Tom Curran 3/29) by four wickets.

For the Kings, pacer Josh Hazlewood (2/29) was the pick of the bowlers. All-rounders Ravindra Jadeja and Ali picked up a wicket apiece.

SAINA'S GROIN INJURY ONLY BLIP IN HARD-FOUGHT VICTORY

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Aarhus (Denmark), Oct 10: Ace shuttler Saina Nehwal was forced to retire midway through her opening match but India's young brigade produced a clinical display to notch up a fine 3-2 win over Spain and make a winning start to their campaign at the Uber Cup Final here Sunday.

Starting the proceedings for India, London Olympics bronze medallist Saina had to concede her match after losing the first game 20-22 against Spain's Clara Azurmendi as she developed discomfort in her groin area.

However, Malvika Bansod ensured India's recovery as she dished out a dominating 21-13, 21-15 win over former World No 20 Beatriz Corrales to bring India at level par with the Spanish team.

Tanisha Crasto and Rutaparna Panda then produced an equally impressive display, completely outplaying Spain's Paula Lopez and Lorena Usle 21-10, 21-8 as India grabbed a 2-1 lead in the five-match rubber. In the third singles, Aditi Bhatt gave ample display of her talent during the 21-16, 21-14 win over Spain's Ania Setien in the third singles as India sealed the contest 3-1.

However, it turned out to be a bad day for Commonwealth Games bronze medallists N Sikki Reddy and Ashwini Ponnappa. They lost to the World No 122 pair of Azurmendi and Corrales 18-21, 21-14, 17-21 in the second women's doubles match.

India will face Scotland in their second group B match on Tuesday.

"There was a certain catch in my groin. I was surprised at how it happened. I was trying to get back my rhythm and I couldn't get it and I had to give it up because it was hurting when I was taking long lunge," Saina said after the match.

At a glance

- Saina Nehwal (ret'd) lost to Clara Azurmendi 20-22
- Malvika Bansod bt Beatriz Corrales 21-13, 21-15
- Aditi Bhatt bt Ania Setien 21-16, 21-14
- Crasto & Rutaparna bt Paula & Lorena 21-10, 21-8
- Sikki Reddy & Ashwini lost to Azurmendi and Corrales 18-21, 21-14, 17-21

"I will monitor my injury. Let us see the next three, four days, how it is. There are two more matches, so I just want to see how it goes. I don't want to take any sudden decision at the moment because my body feels good but this groin issue has to go," Saina added.

Thakur slams HI OZ EVES WIN T20 SERIES

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 10: Sports Minister Anurag Thakur came down hard Sunday on Hockey India (HI) for unilaterally deciding to pull out of next year's Commonwealth Games. Thakur said the national federation is bound to consult with the government before taking any such step. He said that the government is the main financier of Olympic sports in India. So it has every right to take call on matters of national representation.

"I think any federation should refrain from giving such statements and discuss with the government first because it is just not their team, it's the national team," Thakur told reporters.

"In a country of 130 crore population, there are not just 18 players to represent country. It (CWG) is a global event. I feel that they (HI) should engage with government and concerned department.

The decision will be taken by the government," the sports minister added.

Thakur's strong statement came after HI pulled out Tuesday of next year's Birmingham Commonwealth Games, citing Covid-19 concerns and UK's discriminatory quarantine rules for travellers from India.

HI also reasoned that there is only a 32-day window available between the Birmingham Games (July 28-August 8) and the Hangzhou Asian Games (September 10-25), which is a direct qualifier for 2024 Paris Olympics.

The minister said there is no dearth of hockey talent in India and citing the example of cricket added that playing back-to-back tournaments are nothing new for professional sportspersons.

"I can understand Asian Games is being prioritised. I am just saying where the Indian team will be playing just doesn't lie with the federation, it lies with the government also," asserted Thakur.
