Nafeesa Attari, a teacher at Neerja Modi School Udaipur, had put out a picture of Pakistani players with the caption, "Jeeeet gayeeee... We wonnn". After screenshots of her WhatsApp status went viral on social media, the school management terminated her. "Yes, we have taken a decision to terminate the teacher," said school chairman Mahendra Sojatia after a meeting of the Sojatia Charitable Trust, which runs the school. Amba Mata Police Station SHO Narpat Singh said a case has also been registered against the teacher under Indian Penal Code section 153 (provocation with intent to cause riot).

2006 OCS RECRUITMENT VALID: HIGH COURT

Cuttack: The Orissa High Court Tuesday declared the recruitment of 378 Odisha Civil Service (OCS) officers in 2006 as valid while quashing an earlier order of the Odisha Administrative Tribunal (OAT) on the matter. A bench of Chief Justice S Muralidhar and Justice BP Routray set aside the OAT order that had declared the 2006 OSC appointment as invalid. The Odisha Public Service Commission had issued a notice for the recruitment of 378 OCS officers in 2006. Successful candidates were appointed to the posts in 2010. Challenging the appointment, a few unsuccessful candidates had approached the OAT which declared the appointment as invalid in 2014.

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar, Oct 26: Protests demanding removal of Minister of State, Home, Dibya Shankar Mishra for his alleged involvement in the murder of teacher Mamita Meher are expanding to every nook and corner of the state and outside.

Keeping up pressure on the state government over the issue, opposition BJP and Congress have intensified their agitations.

The BJP Tuesday observed a 12hour dawn to dusk bandh in Sambalpur demanding a CBI probe into the murder of Mamita Meher and removal of the minister from the Council of Ministers. The party also demanded a compensation of ₹50 lakh to the family of the deceased school teacher.

The BJP had already observed Kalahandi bandh and Bolangir bandh on the issue and is planning to observe bandh in other districts in the state in the coming days to intensify its agitation. The two-day gherao of all SP offices across the state by the BJP Yuva Morcha in support of their demand began Tuesday.

Meanwhile, a 15-member BJP delegation led by state BJP president Samir Mohanty met Mamita's family at their residence in Jharani village of Bolangir district.

Holding a presser, Mohanty said there are hundreds of Gobinda Sahus roaming freely on the streets. The time is ripe to crush them before they could do any harm to another Mamita, he said.

Senior BJP leader and former DGP Prakash Mishra raised the questions on the police probe, saying the entire episode of Gobinda Sahu fleeing police custody to his being found from a sugarcane field reeks of conspiracy. "It's a cycle of conspiracy. Why was Gobinda brought to Titilagarh barracks and how did he manage to flee custody? Not only Gobinda but big fishes should be caught," asked Mishra. Bhubaneswar, Oct 26: To provide a conducive atmosphere to children who need police service, the state government has decided to set up 34 child-friendly police stations (PSes) across the state. Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik Tuesday directed officials to set up one such police station in each of 34 police districts of the state. The Chief Minister felt the need for a suitable atmosphere for children who need police assistance for various reasons and decided to set up the special police stations.

All these police stations will have special facilities like signage, logos and plaques as well as small libraries for children. The child-friendly police stations will feature a variety of interesting books, magazines, and newspapers.

Similarly, beds, chairs, and tables will be put up for the convenience of children. There will be a display-board carrying information on the rights of children, do's and don'ts for the police. There will be a special plaque for the name and other information to contact the child welfare officer. Besides toys, first aid kits for children will be kept in these police stations.

In 2017, the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) had released a guideline enumerating the details regarding required infrastructure, official set up for establishment of child-friendly police stations.

As per the guideline, "The police often being the first responders to a child and his exposure to the juvenile justice system play a very important role in the implementation of the child-friendly approach."

The guideline advised all the stake holders to create a separate corner at child friendly police stations where children narrate his or her ordeal before the police without fear and outside interference. These police stations should have a female police official or social worker who can talk to girls, both in conflict with law and in need of care and protection.

The NCPCR had further suggested installing CCTV cameras and audio visual setup in separate rooms or corners in order to 'ensure the child is treated properly' by the police and recording of the statement.

Fixing accountability of child friendly police stations is to organise community programmes to create awareness on child abuse--one of the major aims behind the establishment of child friendly police stations.

Child rights activist Benudhara Senapati said, the announcement was a welcome step but the government should strengthen the almost defunct Mahila and Sishu desks at police stations which were earlier declared by the government to be child friendly too.

When Rajkummar cried inconsolably

Mumbai: Actor Rajkummar Rao shared his feelings after watching the film Agneepath, especially when Amitabh Bachchan's character Vijay died in the movie. He will be seen as a special guest along with Kriti Sanon in the 'Shaandaar Shukravaar' episode of Kaun Banega Crorepati 13.

Raikummar shares: "As a child when I was watching Agneepath and when the movie ends where your character, 'Vijay' dies. Sir, after the film got over, I ran into my room and I covered my face with the pillow and started crying loudly."

"As I was convinced that Amitabh Bachchan had died and I was telling God, 'How can this happen, please bring back Amitabh Bachchan, God, How can God do this, he can't die. Then my mother came and told me that this is just a film and it's not real," he concludes. Apart from this Kriti Sanon will be seen going down

Research work may slow to a crawl today, but the offshoot is that it's an auspicious day to enter into new contracts. You might want to arrange that bit of business over lunch. Good food has a tendency to lead to successful end of negotiations. Just don't forget to compli ment the chef and leave a tip.

CAPRICORN

You will starve for some free time, but will find it difficult to steal even a minute from your busy schedule, even if it is for unwinding your overworked soul, says Ganesha. In times like these, one can hardly think straight, let alone be innovative. You will, however, work your way out by prioritising matters. By the end of the day, your efforts may get paid off, leaving you with the thought that it was all worthwhile after all!

Bhubaneswar; Oct 26: The Odisha State Commission for Protection of Child Rights (OSCPCR) has sought an action-taken report (ATR) from Kalahandi district administration in connection with the alleged violation of child rights at Sunshine Public School and Anchalik Mahavidyalaya of Mahaling, instituted by Gobinda Sahoo, the prime accused in Mamita Meher case.

In a letter to the Kalahandi MAHALING Collector and Superintendent of Police (SP), OSCPCR chair-SHAME person Sandhyabati Pradhan said the commission has taken suo motu cognizance of the issue. According to Pradhan, the Women and Child Development department had issued a set of guidelines for ensuring a safe environment for children in educational institutions. Apart from that, the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights has also a regulatory guideline for educational institutions.

"Now, the OSCPCR has an impression that these guidelines are not adhered to by both these institutions. In this context, the commission directed the Collector and SP of Kalahandi to produce an ATR in compliance with the above mentioned guidelines in the two institutions. The two officials have also been asked to appraise the implementation of the guidelines in other institutions in the district," Pradhan said.

Pradhan for MITRA park in state

Bhubaneswar, Oct 26: Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan has urged Textile Minister Piyush Goyal to set up a greenfield Mega Integrated Textile Region and Apparel (MITRA) park in Odisha.

In a letter to Goyal, Pradhan said, 'Odisha has a long and rich history of textiles and the handlooms of Odisha have gained world-wide acclaim for their design and quality. Various designs have existed here, such as Sambalpuri, Bomkei and Berhampuri. Odisha is also famous for its Tkat type of weaving. With this rich history and locally available competence in this area, Odisha is uniquely positioned to attract investments in the textiles and apparel sectors.'

Informing about the availability of skilled workforce in the state, Pradhan said that Odisha has emerged as the knowledge and skill hub in the presence of globally recognised institutes of higher learning, research and skill development, including CIPET, IIT, IIM, IIIT, NIT, AIIMS, NISER, Skill Development Institute, Indian Oil - ICT Odisha Campus.

Textiles and Apparel Parks are currently under construction – one near Dhamra port and another at Malipada in Bhubaneswar

Industrially too, "Odisha has a wide network of 10,000 km of highway, Paradip, Dhamara and Gopalpur ports, proximity to industrial hubs and Jagdishpur-Haldia and Bokaro-Dhamra Pipeline (JHBDPL) gas pipeline passing through the state," he added

Odisha also has an Industrial Policy and Apparel Policy in place to ensure smooth clearance of the project and provide adequate incentive to the industries.

Under the Apparel Policy of Odisha, capital grant of 20 per cent of project cost up to Rs 20 crore and interest-free loan up to 10 per cent with maximum limit of Rs 10 crore is available to the industries presently, the minister said.

Textiles and Apparel Parks are currently under construction, one near the major port of Dhamra and another near Bhubaneswar at Malipada, both with ready availability of facilities including power, water, and boundary walls.

In addition, a Technical Textiles Park is being developed in Bhadrak, Pradhan further stated.

Recently, the Union Ministry of Textiles has announced setting up of seven MITRA parks in India.

The parks will be developed by a special purpose vehicle (owned by state and Centre) in a PPP mode.

Sporadic nesting activities of the Sturtles and their mortality would be monitored through a web portal - 'manage.odishawildlife.org' isheries and Animal Resources Development Secretary R Raghu Prasad said a mobile app has been developed for the fishermen and the officers at the ground level. Fishermen can see the no fishing zone in the app itself

The Chief Secretary directed all officers engaged in the conservation operation to download the app for asserting the location of the fishing boats

munication and intelligence sharing among the coast guard, patrolling ship, and various camps and marine police.

Armed police force would be deployed for patrolling and enforcement activities. Sporadic nesting activities of the turtles and their mortality would be monitored through a web portal -'manage.odishawildlife.org'.

Soon after mass nesting, the rookeries would be fenced to protect the nests and eggs. Patrolling would be intensified further. Mahapatra directed the departments of Forest & Environment, Fisheries & Animal Resources Development, Police, Marine Police, Coast Guard and Port authorities

rience and the state is investing huge amounts of money for the purpose, we must deliver the best in saving these species for the world community," he said.

Mahapatra also directed the officials to ensure strict enforcement of the conservation rules along the nesting coasts. The coast guard was requested to have real time intelligence sharing with the departments about illegal fishing.

Institutions like DRDO, Dhamra port, Gopalpur port and Paradip port authorities were requested to follow the blackout and light deeming practices to prevent turtles from possible delusion. They were asked to provide necessary support for joint patrolling in the sea and berthing of the vessels.

Additional Chief Secretary (ACS), Forest and Environment, Mona Sharma said that four wildlife divisions of the state - Bhadrak, Rajnagar, Puri and Berhampur are in readiness for conservation operations this year.

These divisions have been equipped with 5 high speed boats, along with 13 trawlers and support boats for chasing the illegal activities in the sea, she said.

The Chief Secretary directed all officers engaged in the conservation operation to download the app for asserting the location of the fishing boats.

The scientists opined that as per the natural behaviour of the turtles, this year there might be buffer nesting along Odisha coast. It was decided that the RCFs would monitor the operations in their respective jurisdictions in close coordination with district administration, police and other concerned departments.

Scientists like K Sivkumar of Wildlife Institute of India (WII) and Priyambada Mohanty (Hejmadi) said, "Odisha has contributed significantly towards preservation and growth of this endangered species. Odisha model for conservation of the species has been applauded in international forums.

Analysts point out that certain forces seem to have found the communal

FOCUS WORLD BANK

CASH-TRANSFER ALGORITHM

ince its founding, the World Bank has evolved to perform three main functions: provide global public goods, generate valuable data and independent analysis, and transfer mostly concessional resources to poorer countries. Having recently undermined its credibility with regard to the first two objectives, the Bank should now focus on the third.

Arvind

RELUCTANT SPEAKER OF TRUTH TO STILL HAS A VITAL, ROLE TO FILL

Start with global public goods. The COVID-19 pandemic presented the World Bank with an ideal opportunity to burnish its credentials. But the Bank's performance standing on the sidelines as the COVID-19 Vaccine Global Access (COVAX) facility unraveled and failing to release money it had pledged for vaccine procurement -fell short on both health and economic grounds. For now, at least, we must therefore temper our expectations of the Bank's willingness to provide global public goods, particularly in the face of more difficult challenges such as climate change.

Now consider data and analysis. Over the years, the data collected and compiled by the Bank - including the World Development Indicators, estimates of global poverty and purchasing power parity, and various surveys - have been some of its major contributions. But revelations that the Bank's senior management had manipulated data in multiple editions of the flagship Doing Business report (in order to improve the rankings of China and Saudi Arabia in particular) risk undermining confidence among policymakers and researchers.

In the wake of these stumbles. the Bank's redemption - or at least its relevance - will increasingly depend on its financing function. But that requires recognising how much the world has changed. For starters, the share of the world's population living in low-income countries has plummeted from nearly 60 per cent in 1990 to around 10 per cent today. Rapid economic growth in developing countries over the past three decades – especially in China and India – has gradually reduced the number of low-income countries from 48 in 1990 to 34 in 2019. And the total population living in poor countries has fallen from three billion to just over 760 million.

the damaging 'Doing Business' scandal, the World Bank should focus on getting money to poor countries. Here, the Bank can distinguish itself by providing governments with both concessional loans and untied aid Tapping private markets is still These dramatic changes mean that the resource-transfer reless common: total private finance, including sovereign bonds and The ongoing talks about responsibilities of the rich world in general, and the World Bank in particular, are now confined to a small share of humanity in a narrow set of countries. For countries like China, India, Indonesia, or Vietnam, which have graduated to middle-income status since the 1990s, the Bank's relevance has shrunk. This is largely because, according to our estimates, private credit grew six-fold over this period, doubling its share of these economies' total external finance to roughly two-thirds.

But the share of the world's poor living in low-income countries, which fell from about 93 per cent in 1990 to a low of just over 30 per cent in 2010, has since rebounded rapidly, to over one-half, as the poorest countries lag behind fastgrowing emerging markets. Lowincome countries' financing needs thus remain central to helping poor people.

For countries such as Ethiopia, Mozambique, Afghanistan, and Nepal, foreign aid in the form of grants still accounts for about half of gross external financing, and World Bank loans comprise another 15 per cent or so. The overall level of foreign aid to low-income countries has risen from about $8 billion a year in 1990 to roughly $30 billion, driven largely by a surge in funding for public health. Meanwhile, the Bank's share of these countries' external financing has remained fairly constant. Non-concessional financial flows to these countries remain small.

commercial loans, accounts for only about 10% of their governments' external inflows. These governments have increasingly obtained resources from China just under $4 billion a year in the 2010s, according to research by AidData - but most Chinese overseas projects benefit slightly wealthier countries.

The World Bank should base its financing on two principles: low-income countries need a lot of concessional resources, and their governments should exercise more agency ('country ownership' in aid argot) in their policy choices. Private finance is costly and still beyond their reach; Chinese lending appears both expensive and heavily tied to infrastructure; and concessional aid seems to be tied to health. The Bank can therefore distinguish itself by providing both concessional financing and untied aid that strengthens local policymakers' agency.

Accordingly, the Bank should align its priorities with the growing trend in poor countries to adopt cash transfers and a universal basic income. In a caricatured version of this idea, a simple algorithm based on 'need' could determine the resource transfers required for each country over a time horizon of, say, 5-10 years. This approach would not only transfer agency back to borrowing governments, but also should be a step toward simplifying the large and complicated international aid architecture and restraining the excesses of its selfperpetuating bureaucracy.

plenishing the International Development Association, the Bank's concessional lending arm, offer an opportunity to codify this idea. The Bank's recent failures are no excuse for the United States, the European Union, and other donors to be stingy toward the IDA. Rather, they are a reason to be clear-eved about what the Bank can do, and to ensure that it is fully funded and focused on its most important remaining function: getting money to poor countries.

The fact that institutions such as the World Bank are losing their relevance is more cause for celebration than lamentation, because it is a sign that poorer countries have less need for outside help. But losing relevance need not imply looming extinction. The Bank may be only a limited provider of global public goods, and a reluctant speaker of truth to power, but it still has a vital, if narrowing, financing role to fill.

Doing that will require the Bank to become less of a sprawling bureaucracy and more of a mean-and-lean global cash-transfer algorithm. The governments of 2-3 dozen poor countries, and several hundred million people, stand to benefit.

WORDSWORTH

Pitmatic

Pitmatic is a vernacular once used by miners in the north-east of England. Its name is hardly known even in the area in which it was once best known, though it has received attention from dialectologists and was featured in Melvyn Bragg's The Routes of English BBC Radio 4 series back in 2000. It was in the news in 2007 as a result of the publication of a book on it by Bill Griffiths. It was the language of colliers and pitmen, miners in the coal seams of Durham and Northumberland, once the capital of coal (not for nothing was the saying carrying coals to Newcastle coined to refer to a useless undertaking). It has gradually died out as the deep pits of the area have progressively closed. Pitmatic is full of mining terms: at bank, on the surface; cavil, to choose your underground coal hewing station by lot; hoggers, footless socks that made it easy to clean coal from between the toes, later a type of flannel drawers: cracket, a stool on which a pitman sat while hewing coal; kenner, the end of the shift; and arse-flap, a loop attached to the winding rope in a shaft on which a man sat while carrying out repairs. Many of the terms can be traced back to Scots, Old Norse and Low German. Trying to classify it isn't so easy. It isn't a dialect, because it's principally vocabulary, lacking grammatical features that separate it from other types of speech (the main dialect of the area is the one commonly called Geordie). It isn't just a workplace jargon, though that's where it comes from, because some of the terms have escaped into the wider community, such as greaser, a device to lubricate the wheels of the coal tubs, which led to the expression "gan canny ower (go carefully over) the greaser", meaning "mind how you go"; It can't be called an argot, which is a semi-secret vocabulary with criminal associations, or a patois, which is a low-status dialect, which Pitmatic certainly wasn't. Call it a vernacular. The term is first recorded in print, in a slightly different form, in an article in The Newcastle Weekly Chronicle back in 1873: A great many of the lads, especially from the Durham district, had evidently never been in Newcastle previously, and the air of wonder with which they gazed at the crowds, at the buildings, and especially at the fine folks who occupied the windows. was very amusing. If the quality criticized and quizzed them, the lads returned the compliment, and it was entertaining enough to catch snatches of criticism on the manners and customs of the upper ten thousand of Newcastle, reduced to the purest "pitmatical", shouted across the streets, as the men and lads belonging to collieries swept by where I stood in the crowd...That fuller form. Pitmatical. soon abbreviated, gives the clue to its origin. It's a compound of pit and mathematical, which may have been intended to stress the skill, precision and craft of the colliers' work.

SEVEN IS A LUCKY NUMBER FOR DIRECTOR M. NIGHT SHYAMALAN: THE CRITICS LOVE EVERY SEVENTH MOVIE

popularised the 10,000-hour rule, which states that it takes 10,000 hours of intensive practice to master a complex skill. If you play the guitar for 10,000 hours, you'll be good enough to join a band and perform for others. If you practice writing for 10,000 hours, you'll be good enough to write a novel and get it published. And if you lift weights for 10,000 hours, you'll be good enough to win an Olympic medal-or get a job in a Flipkart warehouse. The number 10,000 shows up in other areas too. For example, fitness tracking devices have convinced people that taking 10,000 steps a day can make a big difference in their health and longevity. But according to New York Times writer Gretchen Reynolds, the 10,000 figure has no scientific basis.

Walking 10,000 steps a day is equal to about 5 miles (8 km), but several studies have shown that you don't have to walk that long to enjoy significant benefits. A study last year involving almost 5,000 middle-aged participants found

The author Malcolm Gladwell that taking 8,000 steps a day makes you half as likely to die prematurely as taking 4,000 steps a day, especially if you aren't taking those steps in Ranthambore National Park.

We love some numbers but not others

Reynolds attributes the 10,000 figure to a Japanese clockmaker who mass-produced a pedometer with a name that translated to "10.000-steps meter." He didn't call it an "8,000-steps meter," because he knew that consumers would have more affinity for the number 10.000.

For similar reasons, Gladwell did not publicise the 9,000-hour rule or the 8.500-hour rule. He knew that 10,000 was a figure that everyone would love, even if it meant a lot more practice.

Our love for some numbers—to the detriment of others-has always fascinated me

My sister, Irene, and brother-inlaw, Santosh, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary in 2014. It was a very significant anniversary, and like many couples who are lucky enough to reach the milestone, they had a big party to mark the occasion

Did they celebrate their 30th anniversary in 2019 with as much excitement? Nope. The 30th anniversary, by tradition, isn't quite as significant as the 25th and neither are the 35th and 40th. When they reach their 50th anniversary in 2039, however, they will be showered with congratulatory messages from all seven continents, as well as the human settlement on Mars.

The 25th anniversary is bigger than the 20th anniversary because we like to divide one of our favourite numbers, 100, by four, not five. We love the number four. It's the number of years we usually spend in college to earn a degree, the number of seasons in a year, the number of weeks in a month. Four is the number of grand slam tournaments in tennis and major championships in golf. It's also the number of years we have to wait between Olympic Games, World Cups, and Charlie Sheen marriages.

Another number we love is seven, perhaps because it's the number of days in a week and the number of dwarfs who helped Snow White. The National Basketball Association (NBA) and several other sports leagues follow a best-of-seven format in their playoff rounds. Seven is a lucky number for director M. Night Shyamalan: The critics love every seventh movie he makes.

It goes without saving that we love the number 10 and its multiples. We feel a lot older when we turn 30 than when we turn 29, and not just because we're stuck on 29 for several years.

Perhaps our favourite number of all is 100. It's so significant that a batsman with 99 runs feels so little joy compared to one who attains a century. Nobody cares who is the fastest runner in the world over 90 meters or 110 meters. You need to beat the field over 100 meters to be the king.

It's truly an honour to be in a list of 100, whether you're a Top 100 tennis player, one of the "100 Most Influential People in the World" or the first 100 people to spend 10 minutes in outer space. Not 8 minutes, of course.

In some states, offline school classes have started. Other states are too cautious and have cancelled offline classes till November 15. State governments should assess the risk and reopen schools. Fake war

Sir, If Aryan Khan is found guilty then he must be punished. But what about the 3000kg of Afghan heroin seized from Adani-operated Mundra Port in Gujarat? Does this not affect people? Does this not pose a threat to national security? India is a large market for illegal substances, as per the Ministry of Social Justice and Empowerment. As per a United Nations report, illegal substance usage has increased by 30 per cent in India over the last decade. According to Vidhi Centre for Legal Policy, most arrests are related to possession for personal use. Of 10,000 cases under the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act, 99.9 per cent were related to personal consumption. Where is the big breaking news on arrest of large suppliers? As per official reports, three crore people are using cannabis. Will they all go to jail? Today Aryan Khan is in news, while big suppliers are unscathed. It is urgently required to break the supply chain in the first place. Who exactly sent the 3000kg of heroin and to whom? Until then this will be a fake war.

Murky politics

Sir, Unfortunately, the extortion racket in the cruise ship drugs case has taken a religious flavour, with Nationalist Congress Party (NCP) spokesperson and chief Maharashtra's Minority Affairs Minister Nawab Malik alleging that Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB) zonal director Sameer Wankhede is a Muslim by birth. Malik also went to the extent of accusing Wankhede of forging his caste certificate. The latter has come under a cloud for seeking bribery in the Aryan case, though the allegation is yet to be proved. The murky politics has given a new spin to the ongoing drugs case. NJ Ravi Chander. Man impersonating RTO held in Bargarh

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bargarh, Oct 26: Police Tuesday arrested a man for posing as a Regional Transport Officer (RTO) and duping vehicle owners in Bargarh district.

The accused imposter was identified as Bikram Behera.

Behera usually targeted vehicle owners commuting on the National Highway. He would stop the vehicles introducing himself as a Regional Transport Officer (RTO) and collect information about owners of the vehicles from the drivers. Then he would contact the owners over phone, asking them to make an online payment for the challan amount to avoid action.

Sailesh Ram, a truck driver duped by Behera came across the real RTO Monday.

After hearing everything from Sailesh Ram, the real RTO informed the police.A team was formed. It laid a trap and Behera was nabbed by police.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Baripada, Oct 26: The police detained at least six JMM activists Monday for disrespecting the statue of former chief minister Biju Patnaik here while protesting against the alleged attack on their supporters by BJD activists.

The incident took place Monday afternoon when a group of JMM activists staged a demonstration at the Biju Patnaik Gole Chhak in Baripada town.

Some of the protesters attempted to climb over the statue while some others placed placards against the ruling party on the barricade surrounding it.

The policeman on duty was also allegedly threatened when the former asked the demonstrators not to show disrespect to the statue of the former chief minister, police said. Based on an FIR lodged by a BJD leader, the police picked up six persons and kept them in detention at the Town Police Station, Baripada. Herds refuse to take back jumbo calf FOREST DEPT TO SEND IT TO KAPILASH SHELTER

Keonjhar, Oct 26: A female elephant calf, which was rescued by the forest department after its herd abandoned it at Champua range in Keonjhar, will be sent to Kapilash elephant shelter, said DFO DD Hanumat.

Notably, the jumbo calf had fallen into a well at Nidhigotha of Basantpur panchayat. Forest officials rescued it and released near its mother. The mother elephant did not accept it. The safety and survival of the calf has become a headache for the department.

"The baby elephant needs proper feeding and treatment at this stage. In case of negligence, it will face life threat," it was said.

The calf was earlier set free near the elephant herds, but the latter refused to accompany it. The department has engaged a veterinary doctor and some staff for its care. The baby elephant is being fed with lactogen. But it is only drinking water. It is usually seen that when an elephant falls into a ditch or in any such situation, others come to its rescue. This did not happen in case of the baby elephant. The forest department started an investigation into the reasons why the herds do not accept it. As the baby has come in contact with humans, its body might have human odour which may be keeping other elephants away. Meanwhile, forest officials have applied elephant dung on its body in a bid to remove human odour from its body. The forest department has sent its blood sample for tests

Congress General Secretary Priyanka Gandhi Vadra leaves after attending a meeting of AICC General Secretaries/In-Charges and Pradesh Congress Committee Presidents, at the party headquarters in New Delhi

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 26: In a candid message to top Congress leaders, party president Sonia Gandhi Tuesday said strengthening the organisation must override "personal ambitions" and emphasised the need for discipline and unity for both collective and individual success.

Chairing a meeting of party leaders to evolve a strategy for assembly elections in five states early next year, she said there is "lack of clarity and cohesion" on policy issues even among state leaders and expressed concern that the messages on key issues were not percolating down to the grassroot cadres.

Former party chief Rahul Gandhi along with Congress general secretaries, in-charges and pradesh presidents attended the meeting that also comes amid growing factionalism within the party's state units. Sonia Gandhi said the party also wishes to focus on training its cadres to counter BJP's "false propaganda" and will work out modalities for the upcoming training programmes."The fight to defend our democracy, our constitution and the Congress party's ideology begins with being fully prepared to identify and counter false propaganda. We must fight the diabolical campaign of BJP/RSS ideologically. We must do so with conviction and expose their lies before the people if we are to win this battle," she said.

The meeting to chalk out a strategy ahead of assembly elections in Uttar Pradesh, Punjab, Goa, Uttarakhand and Manipur also comes ahead of the party's new membership drive starting November 1. Stressing on training programmes for party workers, the Congress chief said it should be taken up on priority. Noting that new members are the "lifeblood" of any political movement, she said the young men and women across the nation seek a movement to give voice to their aspirations and it is the Congress' duty to provide them with a platform.

Navy officer held for leaking information

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Mumbai/New Delhi, Oct 26: The legal team of Aryan Khan told the Bombay High Court Tuesday there was no evidence against him in the drugs-on-cruise case and was wrongly arrested as he distanced himself from the raging allegations of extortion attempt against NCB zonal director Sameer Wankhede, who came under a fresh round of attack from Maharashtra minister Nawab Malik.

There was no immediate relief for Aryan Khan (23), the jailed son of Bollywood superstar Shah Rukh Khan, as the HC adjourned to Wednesday the hearing on his bail plea after several hours of argument by the defence team headed by former Attorney General Mukul Rohatgi. Outside the court, Malik continued his tirade against Wankhede and levelled a new set of allegations, including illegal phone tapping, against him, while the under-fire IRS officer's wife came out in support for her husband, who landed in New Delhi and visited the NCB headquarters, where he spent over two hours. In another development related to the cruise drugs case, a special NDPS Act court granted bail to two accused arrested in the case -Manish Rajgaria and Avin Sahu. They are the only accused who have been granted bail so far in the much publicized case, in which 20 people, including Aryan Khan, were arrested since the alleged seizure of drugs on a cruise ship off the Mumbai coast early this month. In the HC, Aryan Khan's lawyers Rohatgi and Satish Maneshinde argued before Justice N W Sambre that the Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB) had no evidence against him. Aryan Khan also distanced himself from allegations of extortion attempts against Wankhede, who had supervised the raid on the ship on October 2. "Aryan has no complaints whatsoever against any officer of the NCB, including its zonal director Sameer Wankhede. Aryan is not concerned with these unsavoury controversies. He completely denies any relation to this,' senior counsel Rohatgi told the court. The NCB and Wankhede on Monday had said the extortion allegations were part of vendetta by a political leader whose son-in-law had been arrested by the NCB in the past, the lawyer said.

"But today, the NCB is putting this on Aryan Khan and saying he is tampering with witnesses. This is affecting my client's case," Rohatgi argued. He contended that the "legislative intent" behind the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act, under which Aryan Khan and others were arrested, was reformation in cases involving small quantities of drugs. The Act intends that young persons be treated as victims and not as accused, he added. Aryan Khan is a "young boy with no prior antecedents," Rohatgi added. "Section 64A of the Act provides immunity to those persons who have been accused of possessing small quantities. If these persons are agreeable to be sent to rehab then that should be allowed. Aryan's case is not even of possession or consumption," Rohatgi said, adding he cannot be held responsible for some other person's alleged possession of drugs.

The 23-year-old has been wrongly arrested and kept in jail for over 20 days, he said.

'The state is directed to file separate replies in the cases," the bench said and fixed the plea for further hearing on November 8. During the hearing, the bench raised the question over the number of eve witnesses made by the prosecution in the case and said, 'The case is that thousands of farmers were going on and a rally was going on. Only 23 witnesses are eve witnesses?

Salve said that out of 68 witnesses, statements of 30 witnesses have been recorded under Section 164 of the CrPC and some more testimonies will be recorded.

A call about the fire was received at around 4 am and four fire tenders with 16 fire-fighters were rushed to the spot, said Atul Garg, director Delhi Fire Services. Domestic articles in a room on the third floor of the house caught fire, resulting in the death of four people. The victims were found dead on the spot. The building comprised ground plus three floors and situated in an area of about 25 square yards, he said, adding that it was a minor fire. The fire officer, however, has ruled out any incident of shortcircuit and based on their preliminary inquiry, they suspect that either a mosquito coil or an 'agarbatti' (incense stick) kept in the room could have sparked the fire which spread to the clothes kept on the table and later to the curtains. Deputy Commissioner of Police (Shahadra) R Sathiyasundaram said. "Our police team and Delhi Fire Services staff reached the spot immediately and the fire was brought under control. The crime team, officials from Forensic Science Laboratory and other senior officials also visited the scene of incidence.' Police said the fire might have broke out and spread across the third floor of the building. The victims did sustain burn injuries and might have died due to suffocation after inhaling smoke, but only the post-mortem report will be able to ascertain the exact cause of death and ascertain the extent of burn injuries.

New Delhi, Oct 26: The CBI has arrested five persons including a commander-rank Navy officer for allegedly leaking confidential information related to an ongoing submarines project in return for illegal gratification, officials said Tuesday

Besides the officer, two retired navy personnel and as many private persons were taken into custody under relevant sections of the Indian Penal Code and the Prevention of Corruption Act after the agency initiated action last month, the officials said.

So far, the agency has conducted searches at 19 locations in Delhi. Mumbai, Hyderabad and Visakhapatnam among others from where important documents and digital evidence have been seized and are being examined, they said. It is alleged that the commander, has been serving at the Western Naval Command in Mumbai, had discussed crucial details about the ongoing modernisation project of

India, UK conduct mega tri-services wargame in Arabian Sea

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Oct 26: India and the UK are carrying out a series of complex military drills as part of a tri-services wargame in the Arabian Sea, billed as the most ambitious exercise by the two countries ever. The UK's Carrier Strike Group (CSG) led by its largest warship HMS Queen Elizabeth and several other frontline ships of the two navies are participating in the week-long 'Konkan Shakti' exercise that began on October 21, officials said.

A carrier battle group or carrier strike group is a mega naval fleet comprising an aircraft carrier, accompanied by a large number of destroyers, frigates and other ships. The UK is only the third country after the US and Russia with which India is conducting a tri-services exercise.

Indian Navy's MiG 29K jets, the Royal Navy's F-35B aircraft and Indian Air Force's SU-30 and Jaguar fighters were among the key assets deployed for the exercise, the officials said. Indian Navy Spokesperson Commander Vivek Madhwal said the sea phase of the maiden tri-service exercise commenced off the Konkan coast in the Arabian Sea on Sunday after the completion of an exhaustive harbour phase. The British High Commission said personnel of all three services from both countries were participating in the tri-service exercise and described it as the "most ambitious conducted by the two countries to date". It said the exercise is another step in deepening bilateral defence and security ties and boosting strategic cooperation in the Indo-Pacific region.

РТІ РНОТО

The high commission said the exercise provides an opportunity for the armed forces of two outwardlooking, confident democracies to work in synergy and uphold our shared commitment to peace and security

"The CSG's engagement with India showcases the deepening comprehensive strategic partnership. Both the Indian and the Royal Navy are blue-water, multi-carrier navies, which places us in a very exclusive club." said First Sea Lord Admiral and Chief of Naval Staff of the UK Admiral Tony Radakin.

"Our growing interactions are a testimony to the shared commitment to a rules-based international system, a belief in the values of open trade, and in the importance of the freedom of the high seas -a right conveyed on all nations," he said. Elaborating on the sea phase of the exercise, Commander Madhwal said all participating units were split into two opposing forces with the aim of achieving 'sea control' to land Army ground-troops at a pre-designated site. He said one force comprised INS Chennai, other warships of the Indian Navyas well as HMS Richmond, the Royal Navy's Type 23 frigate.

No nod for Covaxin yet, WHO seeks 'additional clarifications': Report

The Covaxin has demonstrated 77.8% effectiveness against symptomatic Covid and 65.2% protection against the new Delta variant

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

United Nations/Geneva, Oct 26: The World Health Organisation's technical advisory group Tuesday sought "additional clarifications" from Bharat Biotech for its Covid-19 vaccine Covaxin to conduct a final "risk-benefit assessment" for Emergency Use Listing of the vaccine.

The technical advisory group will now meet November 3 for a final assessment. Hyderabad-based Bharat Biotech, which has developed Covaxin, had submitted EOI (Expression of Interest) to the WHO April 19 for the vaccine's Emergency Use Listing (EUL). The technical advisory group met Tuesday to review data on Covaxin for the emergency use listing of India's indigenouslymade vaccine.

"The TAG met today (26 October 2021) and decided that additional clarifications from the manufacturer are needed to conduct a final EUL risk-benefit assessment for global use of the vaccine," the WHO said in an email response to a question by PTI on the decision regarding the Emergency Use Listing of Covaxin. "The TAG expects to receive these clarifications from the manufacturer by the end of this week, and aims to reconvene for the final risk-benefit assessment Wednesday, 3 November," it added. The Technical Advisory Group for Emergency Use Listing (TAG-EUL) is an independent advisory group that provides recommendations to WHO on whether for emergency use under the EUL procedure. Earlier Tuesday, WHO spokesperson Dr Margaret Harris had said that on COVAXIN, the technical advisory group that reviews all the data for a potential emergency use listing was reviewing that data. In June, the company said it concluded the final analysis of Covaxin efficacy from Phase 3 trials. Bharat Biotech's Covaxin and AstraZeneca and Oxford University's Covishield are the two widely used vaccines in India

The WHO has so far approved Covid-19 vaccines of Pfizer-BioNTech, AstraZeneca-SK Bio/Serum Institute of India. Johnson & Johnson-Janssen, Moderna, and Sinopharm for emergency use. Last week, the WHO had said it is expecting one additional piece of information from Bharat Biotech regarding Covaxin and emphasised that it has to thoroughly evaluate to ensure vaccines are safe and "cannot cut corners" before recommending a vaccine for emergency use. WHO has said the timeframe for its Emergency Use Listing procedure is dependent on how quickly a company producing the vaccine is able to provide the data required for WHO to evaluate the vaccine's quality safety. efficacy and its suitability for lowand middle-income countries. "When the information provided addresses all questions raised, WHO and the Technical Advisory Group will complete the assessment and come to a final recommendation whether to grant Emergency Use a Covid 19 vaccine can be listed Listing to the vaccine," it has said.

PLA deploys new type of all-terrain vehicle on border

China continues to bully its neighbours to try to coerce them into behaviour that is more in keeping with its national security or economic interests, the Pentagon said

AGENCIES

Beijing/New Delhi, Oct 26: The Chinese People's Liberation Army (PLA) Xinjiang Military Command has received a new type of all-terrain vehicle, which is expected to ensure logistics support to plateau border defence troops as winter draws close and as China-India border tensions again risk rising after the latest military talks failed to reach an agreement due to "unrealistic Indian demands", Global Times

The delivery of the vehicle comes at a time when China and India failed to reach an agreement during the 13th round of corps commander-level talks over issues related to the western section of the China-India border, with the PLA Western Theater Command slamming India for its unreasonable and unrealistic demands on October 11, Global Times said.

Several Chinese experts reached by the Global Times warned at the time that China needs to brace for the possibility of further Indian military aggression, as India is risking a new round of conflict. The unit that commissioned the new vehicle is garrisoned at a high-altitude, snowy border region that is extremely cold, lacks oxygen and has a complex terrain, which causes difficulties in logistics support including the transport of supplies, the PLA Xiniiang Military Command revealed in a release published on its WeChat account.

After several on-the-spot investigations, the vehicle was tailored to suit the needs of the troops, as it uses caterpillar tracks that aren't made from metal.

These tracks are sturdy, do not damage road surfaces, have high mobility and can carry heavy loads, the command said.

UN chief laments 'leadership gap' ahead of climate talks reported.

Berlin, Oct 26: The head of the United Nations says a "leadership gap" is undermining the world's efforts to curb global warming, days before presidents and prime ministers from around the globe gather for a climate summit in Glasgow.

UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres told reporters Tuesday that time is running out to cut greenhouse gas emissions to meet the goals of the 2015 Paris accord and avert global warming that could damage the planet.

"The clock is ticking," he said in New York. "The emissions gap is the result of a leadership gap. But leaders can still make this a turning point to a greener future instead of a tipping point to climate catastrophe." Guterres spoke at the launch of a new report by the UN Environment Programme that found fresh pledges by governments to cut emissions are raising hopes but aren't strict enough to keep global warming from exceeding 1.5 degrees Celsius (2.7 degrees Fahrenheit) by the end of the century. The report concluded that recent announcements by dozens of countries to aim for "net-zero" emissions by 2050 could, if fully implemented, limit a global temperature rise to 2.2 degrees Celsius (4F). That's closer but still above the less stringent target agreed in Paris climate accord of capping global warming at 2 degrees Celsius (3.6 F) compared to pre-industrial times. The United States, the European Union and dozens of other countries have set net-zero emissions targets. However, the Environment Programme report said the net-zero goals that many governments announced ahead of a UN Climate summit in Glasgow next week remain vague, with much of the heavy lifting on emissions cuts pushed beyond 2030.

Guterres said scientists were clear on the facts of climate change, adding that "now leaders need to be just as clear in their actions." "They need to come to Glasgow with bold, time-bound, front-loaded plans to reach net zero," he said.

The report is one of several recent studies to examine the gap between what countries have pledged to do to cut emissions of planet-heating gases and what sci-

This is a historic peak, living up to the expectations of the nation during the increased coal demand. Refining its strategy in coordi-

The company has also recorded the highest ever despatch of 4.45 lakh tonne to the power producers. A total 99 railway rakes and 18 MGR rakes were loaded, besides despatch of 1.56 lakh tonne through road. PK Sinha, Chairman-cumManaging Director, said, "I congratulate all my Area General Managers, Team M&S and departments at headquarters for the close coordination to maximise supplies from the company."

Reiterating that MCL has sufficient coal to replenish consumers' stock, the CMD said the company would continue with its efforts to ensure maximum coal to the consumers.

The leading coal producer, MCL supplies about 20 per cent coal to the consumers across the country. To further enhance coal despatch capacity and rapid movement of dry fuel to consumers, the company is aggressively implementing FMC (First Mile Connectivity) projects with capital outlay of ₹3,600 crore by 2024. A section of people also hailed Dabur for its pro-LBGQTIA+ stance. Monday, Madhya Pradesh Home Minister Narottam Mishra had said he has directed the state police chief to convey to Dabur India to withdraw the 'objectionable' beauty product advertisement and take legal steps if the ad is not taken back by the consumer goods maker.

Earlier Sunday night, Dabur had responded to the social media backlash in a separate statement, saying, "Dabur and Fem as a brand strive for diversity, inclusion and equality, and we proudly support these values in our organisation and within our communities. Our campaigns too reflect the same. We understand that not everyone will agree with our stance, and we respect their right to hold a different point of view. Our intention is not to offend any beliefs, customs and traditions, religious or otherwise. If we have hurt the sentiments of any individual or group, it was unintentional, and we apologise."

Attacks on corporate houses on such progressive commercials are on the rise in recent times.

Earlier, Tata Group's jewellery brand Tanisho was forced to withdraw an advertisement that showed an interfaith couple at a baby shower organised for the Hindu bride by her Muslim in-laws.

It withdrew the advertisement after trolling soon spread to physical threats to company employees and stores

Clothing brand Manyavar too was at the receiving end when its advertisement featuring actor Alia Bhatt in wedding attire, appeared to question an old tradition.

New Delhi, Oct 26: Celebrated former captain Rahul Dravid is all but certain to be the Indian cricket team's next head coach after he formally applied for the high-profile position Tuesday.

Indian cricket will start with the home series against New Zealand where he will take charge. LAXMAN IN FRAY FOR NCA

Anil Kumble is another big name but it remains to be seen whether the BCCI would approach the former India captain. RATRA FOR FIELDING COACH POST
