POST NEWS NETWORK

Sohela, May 10: An undertrial prisoner (UTP), arrested on charges of killing his wife, committed suicide by hanging himself inside the toilet of the sub-jail here in Bargarh district Tuesday, an official said.

The deceased was identified as Manmohan Routiya, 26, of Petupali village in Sohela under Melchamunda police limits.

"Manmohan was under stress after the death of his wife-Manju. He might have taken the extreme step out of remorse," a senior police official said, adding that he had written 'I Love You Manju' on his palm before killing himself.

According to sources, Manmohan had married Jaydev Meher's daughter Manjulata a year ago. It was alleged that her in-laws often tortured her for dowry. Unable to bear the stress, Manjulata allegedly hanged herself to death May 6. On the basis of a complaint filed by Manju's parents, police arrested Manmohan on the charges of 'murder'.

Incidentally, Manmohan's name prefixed with 'I Love You' was also written on Manju's hand during the recovery of her body.

He was produced before a local court that remanded him to judicial custody. Since then, he had been lodged at Sohela sub-jail.

Around 4am Tuesday, Manmohan went to the toilet on the sub-jail premises and hanged himself with a towel. Fellow inmates spotted a lifeless Manmohan and informed the jail authorities, who rushed him to the nearest healthcare facility where doctors declared him 'dead upon arrival'.

A case of unnatural death has been registered in this connection and the body was sent for autopsy to Bargarh district headquarters hospital (DHH) in the presence of the magistrate-incharge, also the Sohela tehsildar, Biswajit Sahu, said an official.

Meanwhile, raising questions on his untimely demise, Manmohan's father Ashok Routiya Tuesday lodged a complaint with the police demanding an impartial probe.

ITI likely in Bolangir MDC building

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar, May 10: The Higher Education department Tuesday wrote to the Skill Development and Technical Education (SD&TE) department secretary to open a new industrial training institute (ITI) in lieu of the model degree college (MDC) at Jogimunda under Patnagarh subdivision in Bolangir.

Rajashree Mohanty, state proj-ect director of RUSA and special secretary to Higher Education department, said Bolangir collector had submitted a proposal to the director of Technical education and Training to convert the model degree college at Jogimunda into an ITI to enhance the skills and employability of the local youths.

In her letter to the SD&TE department secretary, Mohanty said, "A decision has been taken to make alternative use of model degree college buildings to provide skill development and vocational education to the youths. I would therefore request you to take action on the proposal of the Balangir collector so that our department can start the process of handing over the MDC building to Skill development and Technical Education department for the purpose."

Earlier, the Higher Education (HE) department had directed the Collectors of Gajapati and Kandhamal districts for alternative use of MDC buildings, constructed under RUSA 2.0.

The MDC buildings at Tamayapeta in Kashinagar tehsil in Gajapati district and K Nuagaon in Kandhamal district are being constructed with an expenditure of Rs 12 crore each under the Rashtriya Uchchattar Shiksha Abhiyan (RUSA 2.0). The two buildings are expected to be completed by the end of this month, sources said.

"Since a couple of general degree colleges are located nearby, it is not desirable to open another general degree college in shape of this MDC. The locals of both areas have also submitted a representation to the government requesting to use the MDC building for imparting skill development courses instead of general degree courses," Higher Education Secretary Saswat Mishra had said in the letter to the collectors. "In view of the above, you are requested to explore possibilities of alternative use of the aforesaid MDCs such as vocational or skill development centre, school/college hostel, Adarsha Vidyalayas, housing and any other government or public office, and submit your proposal to the department at earliest for further action," the letter read.

Patana: A female deer that had straved into Kumulabahal village under Patana forest range in Keonjhar district was beaten to death by villagers Monday. Sources said the herbivore had straved into the village in search of water. At least 20 villagers chased the deer after stray dogs spotted it and beat it to death with sticks. Later, they were about to organise a feast with the deer meat in a forest when forest officials conducted a raid and seized the carcass from their possession. A case has been registered in this connection. While one villager was arrested. others managed to escape. Notably, poaching of wild animals is going on in some forests under this range, it was alleged.

from the regional office of State Pollution Control Board (SPCB) has already completed the investigation into the pollution caused by Ramco Cement in Dharmasala area of Jajpur district and submitted the report, but no action has been taken against the errant industry, locals alleged.

They also alleged that the report has been hushed up under pressure.

Reports said scores of industries have come up in Kalinganagar and Dharmasala areas. The industrialisation is being pushed by the government to create job opportunities for local youths, but the performance of the industrial units on this count has been dismal. Rather most of them are polluting air and water.

While the state government insists on pollution control and protection of greenery, some administrative officials and the pollution watchdog wing have turned a blind eye to the pollution caused by Ramco cement plant near Haridaspur under Dharmasala tehsil. Air pollution in the area has been acute while people of 10 peripheral villages have been affected by it. Many locals have expressed their concern over growing pollution levels and said days

After repeated media reports about pollution from Ramco plant, a special team of scientists from the regional office of SPCB has taken stock of the situation. The team came to know that the level of particulate matter10 (PM10) in the air is more than 120. It was suspected that the bag filter of the plant might not be working properly. A thick cloud of smoke and dust envelopes the en-bodies. There are over 10 villages within the 500-metre periphery of the plant.

As per conditions of the SPCB there should be a green cover around the plant to ensure safety of the villages. Locals said that no such green cover has been created here. Besides, the plant has no solid waste management system as prescribed under Environment Protection Act.

About one and half months have passed since this report was submitted to the SPCB, Bhubaneswar, but the latter is sitting on the report.

Earlier, upset over pollution, locals have approached the sub-divisional magistrate by furnishing documental evidence and violation of norms by Ramco cement plant, March 23.

Hearing the case March 28, the magistrate had directed the managing director and the public relations officer of the Ramco cement plant to appear before the court April 12 along with necessary documents. However, the officials had not appeared before the court, locals alleged and expressed their anger over it.

When asked, SPCB regional officer Pramod Kumar Behera refused to say anything about the Ramco pollution issue.

Jajpur, May 10: Nagada that had hogged the headlines in 2016 following death of over 20 children due to malnutrition is once again in news for wrong reasons, a report said.

As per sources, the cluster of hillv villages under Sukinda block of this district still paints a picture of neglect with the lifestyle of Juang tribals remaining unchanged even after so many years of the incident where many children died due to malnutrition

The death of the children shook the state government, which announced a series of welfare programmes to bring in development in Nagada villages. Meanwhile, the hilly villages have been connected with a road but the tribal clusters still lag behind in terms of socio-economic development. The villages are witnessing rise in child marriages and the resultant population growth while malnutrition continues to haunt the primitive tribals of the hilly villages.

Reports said Nagada is a cluster of hilly villages comprising Tala Nagada, Majhi Nagada and Upar Nagada under Chingudipal panchayat of Sukinda block in Jajpur district. The existence of the village came to public knowledge after the media highlighted the death of over 20 children due to malnutrition in April 2016.

Cases have been filed before the Officials have failed to undertake Lokayukta over severe irregularities in awareness programmes for which drinking water supply and road 16 minor girls have been married construction projects off in the last two months

The tribals have returned to their old ways of shifting cultivation for which they are often bearing the brunt of forest officials. Their food habit remains unchanged

The reports that appeared in June 2016 rattled both the state government and Centre as senior officials made a beeline for Nagada.

Initially, the then state health and family welfare secretary Arti Ahuja had visited Nagada July 13, 2016 and recommended both short and longterm plans for the development of the tribal villages. Meanwhile, many short-term plans are being implemented here but the fruits of the developmental initiatives have remained a far cry, thanks to the negligent officials. The long-term plans include construction of an all-weather road, educational institutions, power lines, drinking water and housing facilities. In her report, Ahuja also recommended for inclusion of the residents under Mamata scheme, Integrated Child Development Scheme (ICDS), healthcare facilities, Mahatma Gandhi National Employment Guarantee Scheme (MGNREGS), National Food Security Act (NFSA) and agricultural schemes and adopt Nagada as a focus village.

Among these, some schemes have been implemented while healthcare services, agricultural schemes and MGNREGS still elude the residents. On the other hand, cases have been filed before the Lokayukta over severe irregularities in drinking water supply and road construction projects. Officials have failed to undertake awareness programmes for which 16 minor girls have been married off in the last two months.

Meanwhile, the state government has implemented food security scheme in Nagada, Ashram school, Anganwadi centre and Biju Pucca Ghar Yojana while supplying free seeds and agricultural equipment to farmers. These apart, kitchen garden scheme and easy bank loan facilities are also available for the residents.

Similarly, the population of Nagada is spiraling day by day. The total population of Nagada was 543 by June 2016 which has now reached at 760. This has happened due to lack of awareness programmes.

The Juang tribals were urged to undertake mushroom and vegetable cultivation for better earning and self-sufficiency. However, now the tribals have returned to their old ways of shifting cultivation for which they are often bearing the brunt of forest officials. Their food habit remains unchanged. They are still dependent on rice and wild tubers available in the jungles and are not consuming vegetables for which women and children are suffering from malnutrition and stunting.

FOCUS GLOBAL AFFAIRS

END OF HYPER-GLOBALISATION

The post-1990s era of hyperglobalisation is now commonly acknowledged to have come to an end. The COVID-19 pandemic and Russia's war against Ukraine have relegated global markets to a secondary and at best supporting role behind national objectives - in particular, public health and national security. But all the talk about deglobalisation should not blind us to the possibility that the current crisis may in fact produce a better globalisation.

In truth, hyper-globalisation had been in retreat since the global financial crisis of 2007-08. The share of trade in world GDP began to decline after 2007, as China's export-to-GDP ratio plummeted by a remarkable 16 percentage points. Global value chains stopped spreading. International capital flows never recovered to their pre-2007 heights. And populist politicians openly hostile to globalisation became much more influential in the advanced economies.

Hyper-globalisation crumbled under its many contradictions. First, there was a tension between the gains from specialisation and the gains from productive diversification. The principle of comparative advantage held that countries should specialise in what they were currently good at producing. But a long line of developmental thinking suggested that governments should instead push national economies to produce what richer countries did. The result was the conflict between the interventionist policies of the most successful economies, notably China, and the "liberal" principles enshrined in the world trading system.

Second, hyper-globalisation exacerbated distributional problems in many economies. The inevitable flip side of the gains from trade was the redistribution of income from its losers to its winners. And as globalisation deepened, redistribution from losers to winners grew ever larger relative to the net gains. Economists and technocrats who pooh-poohed the central logic of their discipline ended up undermining public confidence in it.

Third, hyper-globalisation undermined the accountability of public officials to their electorates. Calls to rewrite globalisation's rules were met with the retort that globalisation was immutable and irresistible - "the economic

With the end of post-1990s hyper-globalisation, scenarios for the world economy run the gamut. In the best case, achieving a better balance between the prerogatives of the nation-state and the requirements of an open economy might enable inclusive prosperity at home and peace and security abroad equivalent of a force of nature, like wind or water." as US President Bill Clinton put it. To those who questioned the prevailing system, UK Prime Minister Tony Blair responded that, "You might as well debate whether autumn should follow summer.'

Fourth, the zero-sum logic of national security and geopolitical competition was antithetical to the positive-sum logic of international economic cooperation. With China's rise as a geopolitical rival to the United States, and Russia's invasion of Ukraine, strategic competition has reasserted itself over economics.

With hyper-globalisation having collapsed, scenarios for the world economy run the gamut. The worst outcome, recalling the 1930s, would be withdrawal by countries (or groups of countries) into autarky. A less bad, but still ugly, possibility is that the supremacy of geopolitics means that trade wars and economic sanctions become a permanent feature of international trade and finance. The first scenario seems unlikely - the world economy is more interdependent than ever. and the economic costs would be huge – but we certainly cannot rule out the second

Yet, it is also possible to envisage a good scenario whereby we achieve a better balance between the prerogatives of the nation-state and the requirements of an open economy. Such a rebalancing might enable inclusive prosperity at home and peace and security abroad

The first step is for policymakers to mend the damage done to economies and societies by hyperglobalisation, along with other market-first policies. This will require reviving the spirit of the Bretton Woods era, when the global economy served domestic economic and social goals - full employment, prosperity, and equity -rather than the other way around. Under hyper-globalisation, policymakers inverted this logic, with the global economy becoming the end and domestic society the means. International integration then led to domestic disintegration.

Some might worry that emphasising domestic economic and social objectives would undermine economic openness. In reality, shared prosperity makes societies more secure and more likely to countenance openness to the world. A key lesson of economic theory is that trade benefits a country as a whole, but only as long as distributive concerns are addressed. It is in the self-interest of well-managed, well-ordered countries to be open. This is also the lesson of actual experience under the Bretton Woods system, when trade and long-term investment increased significantly.

A second important prerequisite for the good scenario is that countries do not turn a legitimate quest for national security into aggression against others. Russia may have had reasonable concerns about NATO enlargement, but its war in Ukraine is a completely disproportionate response that will likely leave Russia less secure and less prosperous in the long run.

For great powers, and the US in particular, this means acknowledging multipolarity and abandoning the quest for global supremacy. The US tends to regard American predominance in global affairs as the natural state of affairs. In this view, China's economic and technological advances are inherently and self-evidently a threat, and the bilateral relationship is reduced to a zero-sum game.

Leaving aside the question of whether the US can actually prevent China's relative rise, this mindset is both dangerous and unproductive. For one thing, it exacerbates the security dilemma: American policies designed to undermine Chinese firms such as Huawei are likely to make China feel threatened and respond in ways that validate US fears of Chinese expansionism. A zerosum outlook also makes it more difficult to reap the mutual gains from cooperation in areas such as climate change and global public health, while acknowledging that there will necessarily be competition in many other domains.

In short, our future world need not be one where geopolitics trumps everything else and countries (or regional blocs) minimise their economic interactions with one another. If that dystopian scenario does materialise, it will not be due to systemic forces outside our control. As with hyper-globalisation, it will be because we made the wrong choices.

Beijing & HK

or the first time in its history since the former British colony was handed d over to China in 1997, Hong Kong has got a police officer of China as its new Chief Executive through an election May 8. The 64-year-old John Lee will take charge July 1. The election is not a democratic exercise through universal suffrage, but the product of Hong Kong's new electoral policies unveiled last March. Under the new system, the voting was done by a 1.500-member Electoral Commission stacked with nominees from Beijing. Lee is a favourite of Beijing for his repressive measures taken during pro-democracy protests in 2019 to stifle the voice of protest. Predictably, he got 99 per cent of the votes. He was the deputy chief of Hong Kong's police force and was instrumental in the brutal crackdowns on pro-democracy activists and closure of some media outlets known for taking a stance independent of Beijing.

As the sole Beijing-approved candidate to replace the incumbent Carrie Lam, Lee's victory was a foregone conclusion the moment he announced his candidacy. Previous elections had seen multi-cornered contests with several candidates for Hong Kong's top job. But this year, Lee was the only person Beijing apparently deemed sufficiently loyal to China's Communist Party under its new electoral policies for Hong Kong.

Since 2019, the Chinese government has instituted laws and policies which have eroded the relative autonomy that Hong Kong enjoyed after the territory was returned from the UK to China. Protests erupted against changes to extradition laws that would allow Hong Kong residents involved in alleged crimes to be extradited to mainland China for trial. The protesters were infuriated since that form of extradition only meant they would be subjected to China's autocratic laws contrary to the freedom they had so long enjoyed. Those protests were effective and they delayed the extradition laws. But, eventually a National Security Law was enacted and pro-democracy activists, Opposition politicians and business leaders were arrested. Since then a "climate of fear" has been prevailing in the city, breaking the backbone of democratic resistance movement.

The government in mainland China also instituted several reforms to Hong Kong's governing structure, which only strengthened China's iron grip over Hong Kong. Twelve pro-democracy candidates were barred from running in the 2020 Legislative Council (Hong Kong's legislature) elections, which were then postponed until December 2021. In the meantime, China's Standing Committee of the National People's Congress (NPC), with Lam's help, instituted changes to Hong Kong's Basic Law — the city's governing charter — ensuring that a greater proportion of seats would be allocated to those friendly towards China. The Standing Committee of the NPC also created an institution to vet potential political candidates. This is called the Candidate Eligibility Review Committee (CERC). Lee was the chair of the CERC till April 7.

Lee had worn more than one hat for managing affairs in Hong Kong as Beijing's most trusted hand. After performing the tasks he had been assigned as deputy chief of police force, he was elevated to the position of Chief Secretary for Hong Kong Administration. This was the second-most powerful position in the government. During his tenure, Hong Kong police were strongly criticised for using excessive force, such as deploying rubber bullets, tear gas, and water cannons, while occasionally using live ammunition against protesters. Of course, Lee had his defence and made it clear that the use of force and the response to the protest, including the National Security Law, had helped "restore stability from chaos." He has spelt out his plan to enact legislation that will "prohibit any act of treason, secession, sedition, subversion," which is legal under Hong Kong's Basic Law, to banish the thoughts of "Hong Kong independence, violence and extremism."

For his coercive policies undermining Hong Kong's autonomy and restricting freedom of expression or assembly of the citizens of Hong Kong, the US Treasury Department imposed sanctions on him, Lam and other government officials. His role in arresting, detaining and imprisoning individuals as per the provisions of the National Security Law was widely condemned.

As Chief Executive, Lee will have to rebuild Hong Kong's economy reeling under the effects of the National Security Law and the COVID-19 pandemic restrictions. His lack of experience in such tasks may be a great handicap for him. The American Chamber of Commerce last year showed that 40 per cent of expatriates were considering leaving Hong Kong due to the National Security Law and many international companies moved their operations elsewhere. The pandemic shut off the city. The zero-COVID policy employed by the Chinese government has added to the exodus, with more than 150,000 people leaving since the beginning of 2022.

As per indications. Lee is said to try and tide over these difficulties by link ing Hong Kong to the trade and commerce circuits of mainland China far more aggressively than before. It appears the Sinofication of Hong Kong will be accelerated under Lee. However, historically Hong Kong has occupied a unique position in global trade and commerce for centuries. The geographical position of the island and its status as an independent territory had helped it achieve the coveted position that it was known for. When the British left the administration of the island after the expiry of the term of agreement with China, the world hoped that Hong Kong will be safeguarded by Beijing. The policies of the People's Republic of China looked more relaxed and tolerant two decades ago. The situation seems to have changed for the worse. An intolerant China in relation to Hong Kong seems similar to a war mongering Russia in relation to Ukraine.

It his term dates back to the 1920s and is originary and many and appears first in the obvious sense of something, often food, that is below the highest quality or grade, inferior. By the 1970s it had begun to be linked with finance, at first in the sense of a commercial lending rate lower than the prime rate, one that was typically offered only to the most desirable borrowers. At that time to be offered a subprime loan was a mark of your creditworthiness and financial stability, ironic in view of what happened later. The word began its slide into notoriety in the early 1990s. It started to mean a loan, often on unfavourable terms, to borrowers who didn't qualify because of a poor credit history or other circumstances - those who in plain language would be called bad risks, who had court judgements against them, who had financial problems due to redundancy or divorce, or who were simply poor. Though subprime could be used for borrowing money for any purpose, the most significant use has been for mortgages. There have always been firms who were prepared to lend money to people in these groups, at a price, but in the nineties established lenders moved into this market. A surprisingly large number of euphemisms were coined, including sub-standard, impaired credit, B-paper, non-conforming, near-prime, and second chance, but subprime has become the most common. Lenders wanting to offset the risks of such loans began to package them into complex and ingenious financial instruments which they sold on to banks and hedge funds, who were keen to acquire them. Unfortunately, the rising levels of mortgage foreclosures in the US during 2006 and 2007 has left many of these instruments valueless and created a worldwide crisis in banking. Shares in Bradford & Bingley today tumbled 13% after it admitted to larger-than-expected losses from investments on the subprime mortgage market. -- Evening Standard, 13 Feb. 2008 Immortalized as the practice of making loans to borrowers with deficient credit histories, subprime lending has led to more than 100 major mortgage lenders closing their doors. -- La Prensa (San Diego), 16 Nov. 2007 just took a 15-minute afternoon nap and feel amazingly refreshed. I'm ready to tackle the rest of my day-iust as soon as I take another 15-minute nap.

Thirty minutes seems ideal for a nap, don't you think?

Actually, my favourite naps are about an hour long. But naps as short as 15 minutes have refreshed me, especially when they're perfectly placed during half-time of a football match.

That's why I applaud the initiative of Wakefit Solutions, the Bangalore-based startup company that offers mattresses, beds and other furnishings. Wakefit cofounder Chaitanya Ramalingegowda recently sent an internal email to employees telling them that they will now be granted the "right to nap" from 2 to 2.30 pm. This time slot will be blocked off as "official nap time" on employee calendars, making Wakefit mv "official favourite company' in the mattress industry. If I were seeking a mattress-related job, there is no other company I would want to nap for.

I wouldn't be surprised to learn that Wakefit has been inundated with millions of job applications. Who wouldn't want to work for a company that allows you to sleep on the job? Even government workers don't get an "official nap time."

Research has shown that afternoon naps help with memory, concentration, creativity and productivity, as Ramalingegowda noted in his email. "A NASA study reveals that a 26-minute catnap can enhance performance by 33 per cent, while a Harvard study shows how naps prevent burnout," he wrote, adding that Wakefit is planning to introduce "cozy nap pods and quiet rooms in the office to create the perfect nap environment for employees.'

The company conducted a survey in 2019 and found that 70 per cent of respondents did not have a nap room at work. The survey also found that 80 per cent have felt sleepy at work for at least one day a week. I usually get sleepy between 2 and 4 p.m., so the "official nap time" at Wakefit would be perfect for me. But for it to be truly effective, Wakefit will need to impose some "official nap time rules": 1. Employees may engage in solo or group naps, but must maintain a safe distance from each other. Any type of touching, whether consensual or not, is strictly prohibited, even with eyes closed.

2. Employees who choose not to nap may use the time to snack, read or pray, but must refrain from working, as this may result in other employees feeling like "slackers."

3. Employees who choose to pray or use their phones during nap time must do so quietly. The only sound permitted during nap time is the sound of snoring.

4. Anyone who snores too loudly may be asked to nap in a special room with other snorers. Please do not take this personally. No record of your snoring will be entered in your official personnel file. 5. We will supply mattresses to all employees to use during nap time. A new mattress will be provided each day, so we can sell mattresses to the public using a special label: "Employee-Tested."

6. Nap time must begin no earlier than 2 p.m. and end no later than 2:30 p.m. Anyone who naps too early or too late will be deemed to be "sleeping on the job." A record of such violations will be entered in your official personnel file. Any appeals may be made in writing to either the Director of Human Resources (HRD) or the Employee Napping Director (END).

7. Anyone who has trouble napping may seek assistance from department heads or go all the way to the END. Sleeping pills will not be permitted at work, but at the discretion of the director, napping pills may be allowed.

8. If pills are not effective, the director may organise special meetings during nap times, as many of our employees have shown a strong inclination to fall asleep during meetings.

Lankan lessons

Sir, This refers to 'Mahinda steps down,' Orissa POST, May 10. The months of protests by civilians in the island nation turned ugly - resulting in killings of several civilians including a ruling party's MP. The unprecedented civilian violent protests have been triggered by the acute shortage of essentials including food, fuel and cooking gas. The Sri Lankan government hasn't been able to import the commodities in the wake of plummeted forex reserves. Add to this, the governance at the top was very unusual, to say the least. Four brothers became the President, the Prime Minister, and Ministers for Finance and Agriculture, and a fifth -- the Minister for Sports -- was a nephew. How can one expect sound democratic governance in an atmosphere of nepotism like this? The economic turmoil in Lanka, however, should hold lessons for other nations in the region, including India. India's 1991 crisis itself was the culmination of profligate fiscal policies tipped over by the Gulf War of 1990, high oil prices leading to a full-fledged currency crisis. And, some of the debt and deficit policies pursued by individual state governments are becoming unsustainable, if not outright crisis-prone. Also, it is a cause for concern as the Centre's debt-to-GDP ratio is now at 61.7% and interest payments were 45% of revenue receipts in 2021. While populism and large welfare spending is rising, we can't ignore what happens to economic resilience when fiscal caution is thrown to the winds. Policymakers need to recognise that populism and N Sadhasiva Reddy, BANGALORE fiscal recklessness have no happy ending.

Outdated law

Sir, Authorities have brought sedition charges against citizens on flimsy grounds in the last five years. A law originated in the colonial era is now abused by governments to quell dissent and free speech. Chief justice of India NV Ramana had expressed his concern about its misuse. Arbitrary enforcement of such an outdated law has sparked off a debate. What is the logic of using a law used by the British to suppress dissent and imprison freedom fighters in the post-Independent India? Critics of sedition law say that such a draconian law is a threat to democracy. People have the right to free speech and expression. Instead of trying to suppress public criticisms, a democratic government must introspect, realise its mistakes and move in the right direction. Punishing people who oppose wrong policies is against democratic principles. It is worrisome that several sedition cases have been filed after protests against wrong policies of the government. Panaji, May 10: Citing an example that during the recent visit of Union Home Minister Amit Shah, when he asked for Himalaya mineral water and the bottle cost ₹850, Goa Civil Supply Minister Ravi Naik said that in future water will be as expensive as gold and diamonds.

Naik, who also holds the agriculture portfolio, was speaking during the inauguration of the administrative building for agriculture in Ponda, south Goa. "One of the American newspapers has published that in the future the rate of water will come at the same level of gold and diamonds. Hence, we need to preserve water." he said.

He said that the state records around 120 inches of rain every season, hence it won't be difficult to preserve water. "The government can build dams across the state wherever there are mountains and store water," he said. Ravi Naik had earlier said that water could be supplied to the rest of the country and could even be exported to other countries. "When Amit Shah was in Goa, he asked for a Himalaya water bottle. It was then brought from Mapusa (around 15 km from Panaji). It cost ₹850,' Naik said.

The case was registered against the "unscrupulous persons" by the State Investigation Agency (SIA) on July 27, 2020.

They were hand in glove with some educational consultancies for arranging admission of Jammu and Kashmir residents in MBBS and other professional courses in various colleges, institutions and universities in Pakistan, officials said.

9 pilots, 32 cabin-crew members failed alcohol tests

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, May 10: Nine pilots and 32 cabin-crew members failed their pre-flight alcohol tests between January 1 and April 30, India's aviation regulator DGCA said Tuesday.

"Of them, two pilots and two cabin-crew members have been suspended for a period of three years for being positive for the second time," the Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) said in a statement.

The remaining seven pilots and 30 cabin-crew members were suspended for three months as they tested BA (breathalyser) positive for the first time, it added

Le

According to the DGCA, four pilots and 10 cabin-crew members of IndiGo, one pilot and five cabincrew members of Go First, one pilot and six cabin-crew members of SpiceJet, one pilot of Air India Express and four cabin-crew members of AirAsia India failed the preflight alcohol tests in the said period. One pilot and two cabin-crew India resumed full scheduled international flights March 27 after 2 years of Covid-induced suspension members of Vistara, one pilot of Alliance Air and five cabin-crew members of Air India also failed the test, the aviation regulator said. The DGCA had stated last month that airlines must ensure that 50 per cent of their cockpit and cabincrew members are subjected to preflight alcohol tests on a daily basis.

Before the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic, all crew members were required to undergo preflight alcohol tests. When the pandemic struck, the tests were suspended for a couple of months. Subsequently, the tests were resumed but for only a small percentage of crew members.

"During the period of four months commencing from January 1, the DGCA has carried out 48 enforcement actions for violations of various requirements of the regulation regarding testing of crew for the consumption of alcohol." the aviation regulator said. Apart from the action against the 41 crew members (nine pilots and 32 cabin-crew members), the DGCA has also acted against seven crew members for "missing BA tests or not furnishing the declaration".

"This has been done on a trial basis and will be expanded once we get positive feedback from passengers. Once we try it out more and record the feedbacks, we will put the necessary details on CRIS (Centre for Railway Information Systems) where it can be booked on request," an official of the Northern Railway said.

'The (booking) system will be like the one we currently use to offer senior citizens lower berths. So, once, a passenger says yes to travelling with a child, we will offer the berth to them. However, it is now at a nascent stage," the official said.

Currently, there is no mechanism to book the lower berth for women who are travelling with infants

ITBP to induct women canine squad handlers among CAPFs

THE EIGHT WOMEN ARE PART OF A 25 PERSONNEL TEAM WHO WILL JOIN TRAINING IN THE LAST WEEK OF THIS MONTH AT THE ITBP-RUN NATIONAL TRAINING CENTRE FOR DOGS (NTCD) IN THE BHANU AREA OF HARYANA'S PANCHKULA

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, May 10: Border guarding force ITBP has decided to induct a batch of eight women personnel who will be the first among the central paramilitary forces to be trained as handlers for canine squads deployed in various security theatres, including anti-Naxal operations.

Dog handlers in the central armed police forces (CAPFs) are an all-male domain right now. The selected women Indo-Tibetan Border Police (ITBP) personnel are in the rank of constable and belong to the 'animal transport' cadre of the mountain-warfare trained force that was raised in the wake of the 1962 Chinese aggression along India's eastern front.

The force is primarily tasked to guard the 3,488-km-long Line of Actual Control (LAC) with China, apart from rendering a variety of duties in the internal security domain like conducting anti-Maoist operations and carrying out antisabotage checks during high-profile events and VVIP visits.

The eight women are part of a 25 personnel team who will join training in the last week of this month at the ITBP-run National Training Centre for Dogs (NTCD) in the Bhanu area in Haryana's Panchkula

"This will go a long way in breaking barriers, changing mindsets and proving that there is absolutely no job in the security forces that women cannot do. The ITBP has truly broken the proverbial glass ceiling by inducting ladies in the K9 (canine) wing," ITBP Deputy Inspector General (Veterinary) Sudhakar Natarajan said.

He said the eight women personnel, in an average age bracket of early to mid-20s, would be first put under training for two to three months as they begin rearing the Malinois breed of pups. This initial course will be followed by another three months of a 'tactical obedience course' and the final leg would be to undergo three to four months of 'dual purpose dogs' or PEDD (patrol and explosive detection dogs) training.

The officer said he feels women "would be more successful in the dog handling domain due to their motherly instincts and feeling of empathy"."I have seen during my stint in the United Nations with NATO forces that dogs were more receptive to the feminine voice, as a dog processes the commands based on frequency alone and therefore, a female voice frequency will enhance trainability,' Natarajan said.

A senior CAPF officer said this was probably the last work profile where women were not engaged in the central forces."Police forces of Himachal Pradesh and Maharashtra have already inducted women as dog handlers in their canine wing. The performance of these women personnel should encourage more and more forces to do the same," the officer said.

The ITBP also has the credit to be the first security force in the country to have inducted the Malinois breed of dogs, a litter of an Israeli male Malinois crossed with an American bitch, in 2009.

The coarser looking breed is the most preferred by security forces for infantry patrol duties and commando operations because of its ability to perform and deliver good results in challenging, difficult terrain and harsh climate areas.

Lucknow, May 10: Major political parties in Uttar Pradesh are 'headless' even after it has been two months since the Assembly results were announced.

The BJP, Congress, Rashtriya Lok Dal are among the parties that do not have a state head at present.

Most parties are working out caste arithmetic for the next Lok Sabha elections before they appoint a state head. Some are even waiting for rival parties to announce their state presidents before they do so.

The BJP, for instance, is working out caste equations before it announces the name of its state president.

Thiruvananthapuram, May 10: The election to the office of President is likely to be held in the last week of July, and there is no suspense on how Kerala will vote as it will be against the candidate fielded by the NDA.

In Kerala, the Left with 99 seats is ruling the state while the opposition UDF led by Congress has 40 seats in the 140- member assembly. One seat has fallen vacant after the death of Congress legislator PT Thomas and the by-election to the Thrikkakara seat which he represented is to take place May 31.

Senior leader of the CPM and special invitee of party Central Committee, S Ramachandran Pillai told IANS, "The CPM is a political party that is stiffly against the BJP. We will be taking a stand for the president election according to our policies. However, the party has to take a decision on the same office in the days to come.3

The senior leader, however, said that the party committees have to finalise the decision. He did not comment on whether the party will be voting along with the Congress from Kerala.

While the CPM and the Congress are jointly opposing the BJP at the Centre, in Kerala, the two are opposed to each other and hence the CPM and the Left parties will have to tread a cautious line while voting in the presidential elections. Alappuzha(Ker), May 10: Wasps prevented a suicide attempt by a woman in Kerala's coastal district of Alappuzha a day ago.

The woman Monday evening had climbed a BSNL mobile tower in Kavamkulam here threatening to jump off it if her baby was not returned by her husband.

Attempts by the police and the fire force personnel to talk her out of it did not fructify and that is when nature intervened.

Visuals of the incident on TV channels showed that as the woman was busy climbing to the top of the mobile tower, she disturbed a wasp nest there and predictably, sensing a threat to them, the wasps swarmed around her with some stinging her.

Panicked and stung, the woman abandoned her suicide attempt and started to rapidly climb down the ladder on the side of the tower, screaming all the way as the wasps swarmed around her. As she neared the bottom, she jumped the last few feet into the rescue net being held at the base of the tower by the fire force personnel. The rescue personnel were heard saying in the video that if not for the wasps, the woman would not have come down. An officer from Kayamkulam police station said the woman, a native of Tamil-Nadu, was hospitalized after the incident and was under observation.

Mann said nobody would be allowed to disturb the peaceful atmosphere in Punjab, adding that a few inimical forces are constantly trying to foment trouble across the state, but they will never succeed in their nefarious designs. During the meeting, the DGP apprised the chief minister that a few suspects have been taken into custody for interrogation. "Some arrests have been made and more will be made," Mann said after the meeting, apparently referring to the people who have been rounded up for questioning.

"Whoever tries to spoil the atmosphere of Punjab will not be spared and the strictest punishment will be given to them, which their coming generations will remember," the chief minister said. Later, after a meeting with senior officials at the intelligence wing headquarters, Bhawra told reporters in Mohali that a projectile had hit the building and the explosive used in it seems to be TNT (trinitrotoluene).

'There was nobody in the room when the incident occurred. The impact was on the wall." he said. "But it is a challenge and we are making all-out efforts to solve the case," the DGP added. To a question on whether it was a terror attack or there was a Khalistani angle in it Bhawra said whatever comes out of the investigation, "we will let you know"."We have leads and we will soon solve the case," he said.

A preliminary investigation pointed towards the involvement of two men who came in a car and fired the RPG at the building.

The incident is being seen as a major intelligence failure as the building houses the state counterintelligence wing, the special task force, the anti-gangster task force and some other units. Police are also suspecting the involvement of gangster-turned-terrorist Harvinder Singh Rinda, who is believed to be in Pakistan, in the incident.

Rinda has been taking the help of local gangsters to carry out antinational activities here, police sources said. His name figured when a terror plot was foiled recently with the arrest of four suspected Pakistan-linked terrorists in Haryana's Karnal.

Rinda's involvement was also detected in a hand-grenade attack at the Crime Investigation Agency (CIA) office in Nawanshahr last month.

The incident took place days after the arrest of the four suspected Pakistan-linked terrorists in Karnal and the arrest of two people that led to the recovery of an Improvised Explosive Device (IED) packed with 1.5 kg RDX from Punjab's Tarn Taran district.

Chandigarh, May 10: In a major reprieve to BJP leader Tajinder Pal Singh Bagga, the Punjab and Haryana High Court Tuesday ordered continuation of his interim protection.

But Justice Anoop Chitkara questioned Punjab on filing of a habeas corpus plea in the case. The case will come up for final hearing July 5 after the summer break. Additional Solicitor General Satva Pal Jain refuted the allega tions of illegal detention and said not even a single officer was detained.

An affidavit in this regard has already been filed by the Delhi Police. The High Court last week stayed the arrest of Bagga and directed the Punjab government to not take any coercive action against him until the next hearing which was scheduled for May 10. The BJP leader moved the High Court while challenging a non-bailable arrest warrant issued against him by a Mohali Court on May 7.

The Punjab government, in its habeas plea, had moved two applications: one for making the Centre a party to the case and the second for direction to Delhi and Harvana Police to preserve the CCTV cameras.

The state had filed the habeas corpus petition against the Haryana government, alleging that 12 Punjab Police officers involved in the arrest of Bagga have been detained by Haryana police in Kurukshetra. Punjab also sought the custody

India will need 1 lakh drone pilots: Scindia

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, May 10: A total of 12 central ministries are trying to boost the indigenous demand for drone services and India will need approximately one lakh drone pilots in the coming years. Aviation Minister Jyotiraditya Scindia said Tuesday.

"We are taking the drone sector forward on three wheels. The first wheel is of policy. You have seen how fast we are implementing the policy." Scindia said at a Niti Aayog event here. The second wheel is to create incentives, he said.

"The PLI (production-linked incentive) scheme, which has been implemented under the leadership

One in four adults have hypertension in India: Report of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, will give a fresh boost to manufacturing and services in the drone sector," the minister added.

The PLI scheme was introduced in September 2021 as a followthrough of the liberalised Drone Rules, 2021 released by the ministry on August 25 last year. Scindia said the third wheel is to create indigenous demand and the 12 ministries have tried to create that demand.

Today, someone who has passed the Class-12 exam can be trained as a drone pilot and no college degrees are required for it, he pointed out. "With two-three months of training, this person is in his or her job as a drone pilot with a monthly salary of around Rs 30,000," the minister said.

'We need close to a lakh drone pilots in the years to come. So the opportunity is tremendous," he added. Scindia had, on September 16 last year, said the Indian drone industry will see a turnover of up to Rs 15,000 crore by 2026

He was then charged under IPC Sections 153 A and 295 A and just the other day George repeated the same mistake while speaking at Vennala, near here at a Thrikkakara by-election meeting. Nagaraju said it's only natural to arrest George again as he done the same crime, for which a case has been registered.

The police are now looking into the audio and video recordings of the meeting. Meanwhile, George is understood to have approached a lower court, here to seek anticipatory bail but the Kerala Police has filed a petition seeking cancellation of his bail granted on May 1 and will be heard in the state capital on Wednesday. On May 1, after securing the bail, George told mediapersons: "The Judiciary in India is for justice and the Honourable Chief Minister of Kerala, Pinarayi Vijayan, and his police had arrested me as a Ramzan gift to Islamic terror groups."

George, who has been a legislator for seven terms, had lost the 2021 Assembly elections from his home constituency Poonjar and the one major reason why he lost is he antagonised the Muslim communityin his constituency, who for long has been his mainstay.

New Delhi, May 10: It is estimated that at least one in four Indian adults have hypertension in India, but only about 10 per cent of them have their blood pressure under control, according to a report. The India Hypertension Control Initiative report, released by Indian Council of Medical Research Director General, Dr Balram Bhargava, emphasised at making hypertension a national priority. The IHCI is a multi-partner initiative with the Union Health Ministry, the ICMR, and WHO Country Office for India, which was launched to achieve the government's goal of 25 per cent relative reduction in raised blood pressure in 2017. In the first year, IHCI covered 26 districts across the states of Punjab, Kerala, Madhya Pradesh, Telangana, and Maharashtra. By October 2021, it was expanded to 100 plus districts across 19 states.

We compared the key indicators in 2020 and 2021 for the initial 26 Phase I districts. The quarterly cohort blood pressure control rates declined in the second and third quarters of 2020 due to Covid-19-related disruptions; control rates started improving in the first quarter of 2021," the report underlines. The community-level hypertension control improved in 21 project districts in 2021 compared to 2020. Among the estimated 46 lakh hypertensives across initial Phase I 26 districts, BP control increased more than four-fold, although from a very low baseline 6.1 per cent achieved BP control in first quarter of 2021 compared to 4.9 per cent in Q1 of 2020 and 1.4 per cent in Q1-2019. Overall, the number of patients with controlled BP continued to increase over three years (2,83,457 in Q1-2021; 2,18,340 in Q1-2020 and 64,704 in Q1-2019). The numbers declined in Kerala due to poor documentation during the pandemic and inability to provide medication refills at the subcentre level, the report said, adding that six districts achieved more than 10 per cent community level BP control.

The report also highlights scalable key strategies, which include patient centred care, standard treatment protocols, access to drugs, simple information system to ensure treatment and control of high BP.

Kharkiv, Ukraine, May 10: Ukraine said Tuesday its forces had recaptured villages from Russian troops north and northeast of Kharkiv, pressing a counter-offensive that could signal a shift in the war's momentum and jeopardise Russia's main advance.

Tetiana Apatchenko, press officer for the 92nd Separate Mechanized Brigade, the main Ukrainian force in the area. confirmed that Ukrainian troops had recaptured the settlements of Cherkaski Tyshky, Ruski Tyshki, Borshchova and Slobozhanske, in a pocket north of Kharkiv in recent days.

Yuriy Saks, an adviser to Defense Minister Oleksiy Reznikov said the successes were pushing Russian forces out of range of Kharkiv, Ukraine's second largest city, which has been under perpetual bombardment since the war began. "The military operations of the Ukrainian armed forces around Kharkiv, especially north and northeast of Kharkiv, are sort of a success story," Saks told Reuters. "The Ukrainian army was able to push these war criminals to a line beyond the reach of their artillery.'

The counterattack could signal a new phase in the war, with Ukraine now going on the offensive after weeks in which Russia mounted a massive assault without making a breakthrough. By pushing back Russian forces who had occupied the outskirts of vasion, the Ukrainians are moving into striking distance of the rear supply lines sustaining the main Russian attack force further south. "They're trying to cut in and behind the Russians to cut off the supply lines, because that's really one of their (the Russians') main weaknesses," said Neil Melvin of the RUSI think-tank in London. North Korea's advancing nuclear program is a vexing security challenge for Yoon Suk Yeol, who won the March 9 election on a promise to strengthen South Korea's 70-year military alliance with the United States and build up its own missile capability to neutralise North Korean threats

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seoul, May 10: Yoon Suk Yeol, a conservative political neophyte, took office Tuesday as South Korea's new president with a vow to pursue a negotiated settlement of North Korea's threatening nuclear program and an offer of "an audacious plan" to improve its economy if it abandons its nuclear weapons

Yoon is starting his single fiveyear term during one of the most challenging situations of any recent new president, facing a mix of significant security, economic and social problems that are besetting the world's 10th largest economy. There's widespread skepticism that an increasingly belligerent North Korea will give his offers much consideration, and South Korea's deep political and social divides, as well as growing worry about the state of the pandemic-hit economy, are reflected in a recent poll showing that Yoon faces lower popularity numbers than the departing liberal president, Moon Jae-in. Yoon had promised a tougher stance on North Korea during his campaign, but he avoided harsh rhetoric during his inaugural speech amid growing worries that the North is preparing its first nuclear bomb test in nearly five years.

North Korea has rejected similar overtures by some of Yoon's predecessors that linked incentives to progress in its denuclearization.

'While North Korea's nuclear weapons programs are a threat, not only to our security but also to Northeast Asia, the door to dialogue will remain open so that we can peacefully resolve this threat," Yoon told a crowd gathered outside parliament in Seoul.

"If North Korea genuinely embarks on a process to complete denuclearization, we are prepared to work with the international community to present an audacious plan that will vastly strengthen North Korea's economy and improve the quality of life for its people," he said.

THE RESEARCHERS INVOLVED IN THIS INTERNATIONAL COLLABORATION HAVE DECLINED TO DISCLOSE THE NATURE OF THEIR ANNOUNCEMENT AHEAD OF SCHEDULED NEWS CONFERENCES BUT ISSUED A NEWS RELEASE CALLING IT A "GROUNDBREAKING RESULT ON THE CENTER OF OUR GALAXY"

Washington, May 10: Residing at the center of our spiral-shaped Milky Way galaxy is a beast - a supermassive black hole possessing 4 million times the mass of our sun and consuming any material including gas, dust and stars straying within its immense gravitational pull.

Scientists have been using the Event Horizon Telescope (EHT), a global network of observatories working collectively to observe radio sources associated with black holes, to study this Milky Way denizen and have set an announcement for Thursday that signals they may finally have secured an image of it. The black hole is called Sagittarius A*, or SgrA*.

The researchers also have focused their work on Sagittarius A*, located about 26,000 light-years - the distance light travels in a year, 5.9 trillion miles (9.5 trillion km) from Earth.

"One of the objects that we hope to observe with the Event Horizon Telescope... is our own black hole in our own backyard,' Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics astrophysicist Sheperd scientific presentation. Black holes are extraordinarily dense objects with gravity so powerful that not even light can escape. There are different categories of black holes. The smallest are so-called stellar-mass black holes formed by the collapse of massive individual stars at the ends of their life cycles. There also are intermediatemass black holes, a step up in mass. And finally there are the super massive black holes that inhabit the center of most galaxies. These are thought to arise relatively soon after their galaxies are formed, devouring enormous amounts of material to achieve colossal size. The EHT project

REUTERS

Bangalore, May 10: India's retail inflation likely surged to an 18-month high in April, largely driven by rising fuel and food prices and staying well above the Reserve Bank of India's upper tolerance limit for a fourth consecutive month, a Reuters poll found.

The jump has been long anticipated following the Indian government's decision to wait until after key state elections in March to hike fuel prices. Energy prices globally have soared since Russia's invasion of Ukraine in late February.

Food inflation, which accounts for nearly half the consumer price index (CPI) basket, reached a multimonth high in March and is expected to remain elevated due to higher vegetable and cooking oil prices globally.

These factors likely pushed inflation in Asia's third-largest economy to 7.5% on an annual basis in April, according to a May 5-9 Reuters poll of 45 economists, from 6.95% in March. If realised, that would be the highest inflation rate since October 2020 and well above the RBI's upper 6% limit.

Forecasts for the data, due to be released at 1200 GMT May 12, ranged between 7.0% and 7.85% "CPI inflation appears to have surged higher still in April on the back of higher food and fuel prices. The bulk of the impact of the recent fuel prices hikes will be felt in April," said Shilan Shah, senior India economist at Capital Economics. 'We wouldn't be surprised if core inflation has risen too. The risk is that sustained higher inflation drives up inflation expectations, which push core inflation even higher.' To make matters worse, the local price of oil, India's biggest import, has also been subject to upwards pressure from the roughly 4% drop in the rupee this year, with the currency touching a record low on Monday.

The elevated price outlook pushed the RBI - which only recently changed its focus to price stability from growth - to hike its repo rate for the first time since 2018, lifting it 40 basis points to 4.40% in a surprise unscheduled meeting last week, with more expected to follow. The move came just ahead of the US Federal Reserve's 50 basis point rate hike later the same day. "Inflation could remain above the RBI's target band for three consecutive quarters, marking the first official 'failure' of the monetary framework," noted Rahul Bajoria, chief India economist at Barclavs.

Govt warns taxi aggregators over unfair trade practices

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, May 10: Cab aggregators, including Ola and Uber, have been warned of strict action unless they improve their systems and redress rising consumer complaints, a senior government official said Tuesday.

The government held a meeting Tuesday with the ride-hailing platforms amid a rise in consumer complaints of alleged unfair trade practices by them, including ride cancellation policy, as drivers force customers to cancel trips after accepting bookings, which results in customers paying cancellation penalties. "We told them about the rising consumer complaints against their platforms. We gave them the statistics also. We have asked them to improve their system and redress the consumer complaints otherwise the competent authority will take strict action, Consumer Affairs Secretary Rohit Kumar Singh said after the meeting unhappiness against the cab aggregators, he said the complaints on the Jago Grahak Jago helpline are just the tip of the iceberg.

Central Consumer Protection Authority (CCPA) Chief Commissioner Nidhi Khare said the cab aggregators should immediately come out with solutions.

New Delhi, May 10: Sustaining positive momentum for the 14th straight month, equity mutual funds attracted a net sum of ₹15.890 crore in April amid heightened volatility in stock market and consistent selling by foreign portfolio investors.

This was 44% lower compared to a record net inflow of ₹28,463 crore seen in the preceding month, data from the Association of Mutual Funds in India (AMFI) showed Tuesday.

The lower quantum of net inflow from the previous month could be attributed to investors going slightly cautious given the ongoing challenges to the investment environment, Himanshu Srivastava, Associate Director – Manager Research, Morningstar India, said.

Akhil Chaturvedi, Chief Business Officer, Motilal Oswal AMC, said that it will be interesting to see ongoing investment trends, given the intensity of volatility being very high, and expect positive trend to continue going forward though.

Equity schemes have been witnessing net inflow since March 2021, after the second wave of COVID-19 resulted in the correction in the markets, highlighting the positive sentiment among investors.

Mumbai, May 10: Equity indices failed to hold on to their gains in see-saw trade Tuesday, ending in the red for the third straight session despite a tentative recovery in global equities.

VIL losses narrow to ₹6,563 crore

New Delhi: Telecom operator Vodafone Idea Tuesday reported narrowing of its consolidated losses to ₹6,563.1 crore for the fourth quarter ended March compared to same period of the previous year, while its realisation per user or ARPU improved sharply on a sequential basis. The losses were at ₹7,022.8 crore in the year-ago period, according to a company filing. Its revenue from operations rose 6.6 per cent year-on-year to ₹10,239.5 crore in Q4 FY22. Seen sequentially, the revenue was up 5.4 per cent, supported by tariff hikes effective November 25, 2021, the company said in a statement. The realisation per user measured in terms of ARPU came in at ₹124, rising from ₹115 in the prior quarter. This resulted in sequential increase of 7.5 per cent in Average Revenue Per User (ARPU). For the full year FY22, the losses narrowed sharply to ₹28,245.4 crore, from ₹44,233.1 crore in the previous financial year. Revenue from operations for the year ended March 2022 came in at ₹38.515.5 crore.

The firm, which competes with apps including SoftBank's Paytm and Google Pay in India's booming payments market, came under intense investor and media scrutiny after co-founder Ashneer Grover sought damages from Uday Kotak, head of Kotak Mahindra Bank, alleging that the bank declined him financing for a personal investment.

In January, Reuters had reported that the audit would assess if BharatPe's senior executives are making proper internal disclosures about personal investments and check for conflicts, leading to a new code of conduct. After a detailed review of a report to determine wilful misconduct and gross negligence by a former founder over the last two months. the board of BharatPe has recommended several decisive measures that are being implemented, the firm said in a statement. BharatPe said it was introducing a new vendor procurement policy to mitigate any risk of em-transactions to enrich themselves.

GT enter playoffs in style CAPITALS AIM TO BOUNCE BACK

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Pune, May 10: Gujarat Titans returned to winning ways after backto-back losses and became the first team to seal their place in the playoffs by defeating Lucknow Super Giants by 62 runs in an IPL match here Tuesday.

Even though LSG did a decent job with the ball to restrict GT to 144/4 after being asked to bowl, the KL Rahul-led side flopped with the bat as they were bowled out for 82 in 13.5 overs. Rashid Khan (4/24) starred with the ball for GT, while Yash Dayal (2/24) and R Sai Kishore (2/7) picked up two wickets each. Earlier, opening batter Shubman

Gill hit a fine half century (63 n o, 49b, 7x4) but LSG produced a disciplined bowling effort to restrict GT to the modest score.

Gill lacked support from the other end. He was left stranded as GT's next highest scorer was David Miller (26). Avesh Khan (2/26) picked up two wickets for LSG, while Mohsin Khan (1/18) and Jason Holder (1/44) scalped one apiece.

GT sealed their playoff berth, reaching 18 points from 12 games. The defeat snapped LSG's fivematch winning streak but they are still comfortably placed in the second spot with 16 points and need just a win to book their last-four berth.

LSG made a slow start to their chase and their problems were further compounded after they lost Quinton de Kock (11) and skipper

Rahul (8) in consecutive overs to slump to 24/2 after four overs. Debutant Karan Sharma didn't help his cause either.

Introduced into the attack in the eighth over, Rashid struck with his third delivery, outfoxing Krunal Pandya with a googly and Saha was quick to whip off the bails. With wickets falling in quick succession from the start, LSG never got any momentum to their chase. reaching 58/4 at the halfway stage.

The ever-rising asking rate led to the downfall of Ayush Badoni (8). LSG's scorecard cut a sorry figure as the likes of Marcus Stoinis (2) and Jason Holder (1) too failed to rise to the occasion. Deepak Hooda top-scored for LSG with a struggling 26-ball 27.

Earlier, GT's decision to bat first after winning the toss backfired big time as they lost Saha (5) and Matthew Wade (10) cheaply with the scoreboard reading just 24 inside five overs

With wickets tumbling from the other end, Gill went about his business cautiously and in the company of skipper Hardik Pandva shared 27 runs for the third wicket before the latter departed.

Gill then took the onus on himself and upped the ante. However, both Gill and Miller failed to open their arms as Mohsin and Krunal bowled tight line and length to stem the run flow.

Miller finally broke the shackles in the third delivery of the 16th over with a huge six off Holder over extra cover. Miller, however, perished in the final ball of the over, caught by Badoni as he slashed one straight to deep third man.

Gill, on the other hand, went about his innings in a smooth fashion. Once he reached his fifty, Gill opened up and struck Chameera for back-to-back boundaries to pick up 14 runs from the 17th over. Rahul Tewatia (22 n o) used the long handle to good effect in the final over, smashing Holder for three boundaries to take the score close to the 150-run mark

BRIEF SCORES

Gujarat Titans 144/4 (Shubman Gill 63 n o. David Miller 26. Rahul Tewatia 22 n o: Avesh Khan 2/26. Mohsin Khan 1/18) beat Lucknow Super Giants 82 (Deepak Hooda 27; Rashid Khan 4/24, R Sai Kishore 2/7, Yash Dayal 2/24, Mohammed Shami 1/5) by 62 runs.

In the batting department, David Warner has enjoyed a good run but the Australian has got little assistance from his opening partners, who have ranged from Prithvi Shaw to Mandeep Singh to Srikar Bharat.

This biggest downer for Delhi has been Rishabh Pant's form. He has shown glimpses of his destructive power but the team would want more from its skipper who can single-handedly turn around any game. The Capitals will have to fire on all cylinders against a formidable Rajasthan side. The Royals have arguably the best bowling side in the competition.

With 22 wickets at 14.50 Yuzvendra Chahal leads the bowling charts this season and alongside R Ashwin, Trent Boult and Prasidh Krishna, the Rajasthan attack has the ability to defend any total. # Pant should bat in Russell mode: Shastri

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, May 10: Former India coach Ravi Shastri says Rishabh Pant must bat in the "Andre Russell mode" in T20 format and not change the tempo once he gets going so that he can win more matches for his side, Delhi Capitals.

The Southpaw has collected 281 runs in 11 matches at a strike rate of 152.71 but has struggled to convert his starts into meaningful contributions.

The 24-year-old wicketkeeperbatter is having an underwhelming IPL season. He has shown glimpses of his destructive power but could not take the team over the line like he has done umpteen times in the past. "I feel once he gets the tempo going he shouldn't change, he should be in the Russell mould in this format of the game," Shastri said on ESPNcricinfo's 'T20 Time Out'.

"You get your eye in, you're striking it well - don't think too much. No matter who the bowler is, if it's there to be smacked, smack it. Who knows, you might win more matches than people expect you

Shastri feels what sets Rusell, one the most destructive batters in T20 cricket, apart from the other is the clarity of mindest, which will also serve Pant, who is capable of playing belligerent knocks, well. "Russell is very, very clear in his mindset. It is bang-bang-bang once he's in the mood. There's no stopping him, there's not even a negative thought that will peep through his system-it is (all about) smacking.

"Rishabh is totally capable of playing in that fashion, and I hope he thinks in that way because you'll see some special innings from him in T20 cricket.'

"He's getting off to starts and then getting out in a manner which he wouldn't like, but I don't think he should change his tempo," added Shastri.

Former New Zealand captain Daniel Vettori feels Pant is his best when he is reckless and pummelling the opposition. The Capitals have lacked a quality finisher and Pant has adopted a conservative approach out of a sense of responsibility.

The Capitals need to win all their three remaining matches to get to the playoffs and Shastri wants Pant to bat at No.3. "I'd like to see him bat at three for Delhi Capitals, especially now when the heat is on, when they've got to win. Let him go and smack it.

Nitu sparkles on debut at WWBC

Nitu (in red) lands a punch on her Romanian opponent during the bout

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, May 10: India's Nitu (48kg) put up a dominant display in her debut appearance at the IBA Women's World Boxing Championships (WWBC) as she outpunched Romanian veteran Steluta Duta to enter the round of 16 in Istanbul Tuesday.

The two-time former youth World Champion Nitu continued her sublime form from the Stradia Memorial tournament earlier this year, where she clinched the gold medal in her maiden appearance, as she dominated all three rounds to win her opening bout by unanimous decision.

Both the boxers were aggressive from the onset, landing punches on each other. But the young Indian proved too much for the 40-year-old Romanian. Nitu will take on Spain's Marta Lopez Del Arbol in the round of 16 Saturday.

The two continued to attack in the second round with Nitu using her height advantage as Duta, a three-time world championship silver medallist, struggled to keep her momentum going in the electrically charged round of 32 bout. The 21-year-old from Haryana then landed a flurry of punches in the third round as the last three minutes were closely-fought between the two. But Nitu defended tightly and looked in control to emerge victorious.

Incidentally, all three of Duta's silver medals at the event came from losses against the six-time World Champion MC Mary Kom, who withdrew from the tournament.

Wednesday, 2019 Asian Championships bronze medallist boxer Nikhat Zareen will fight against Mexico's Herrera Alvarez in the 52kg opening round match.

Manisha (57kg), Parveen (63kg) and Saweety (75kg) will also begin their challenge in the round of 32 on the third day of the prestigious event
