India takes over Presidency of G20

The G20 comprises 20 nations and accounts for over 80% of the global GDP and 75% of international trade

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 1: As India began its G-20 presidency from Thursday, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said it will work to further promote oneness, inspired by the theme of 'One Earth, One Family, One Future' and listed terror, climate change and pandemic as the greatest challenges that can be best fought together.

India's G20 priorities will be shaped in consultation with not just our G20 partners, but also our fellow-travellers in the global South, whose voice often goes unheard, Modi informed. India's G20 agenda will be inclusive, ambitious, action-oriented, and decisive, he added. "Let us join together to make India's G20 Presidency a Presidency of healing, harmony and hope. Let us work together to shape a new paradigm - of human-centric globalisation," Modi said in an article.

Meanwhile President Droupadi Murmu extended her best wishes to 'Team India' for a successful G20 presidency under the theme Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam. "India assumes the Presidency of #G20 today. On this occasion, I extend my best wishes to #TeamIndia for a successful Presidency under the theme Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam. In the time-honoured tradition of Atithi Devo Bhava, I welcome all the delegates to India," Murmu tweeted.

Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam means "the world is one family". The G20 or is an intergovernmental forum of the world's major economies. It comprises of Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, France, Germany, India, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, the Republic of Korea, Mexico, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, Turkey, the UK, the US and the European Union (EU).

KISS INVITES DOOM FOR GROOM

CALLING OFF WEDDINGS ON FLIMSY GROUNDS SEEM TO BE THE ORDER OF THE DAY WITH A NUMBER OF INCIDENTS REPORTED FROM UTTAR PRADESH

AGENCIES

Sambhal (UP) Dec 1: Who could have thought that kissing his soon-to-be wife would land a groom in trouble? However, that is what has happened in Bareilly. The bride called the police to the wedding venue and also lodged an FIR as she felt insulted that the groom kissed her in front of the guests, as per reports in a section of the media. She also called off the marriage despite pleas and requests not to take the drastic step.

The woman, a 23-year-old graduate, said she felt 'shocked and insulted' when her to-be husband kissed her after they exchanged garlands in front of nearly 300 guests in Bareilly. The woman said that the groom carried out such an act 'to win a bet with his friends'.

"He was touching me inappropriately while we were on stage, but I ignored it. Then he did something unexpected. I was shocked and felt insulted. He didn't care about my self-respect and acted badly in front of several guests.

How would he act in the future? I have decided not to go with him," the girl was quoted as saying by a couple of websites.

The girl's family tried to pacify her and to reason with her when she decided to call off the wedding. The police also tried to mediate between the two families, but to no avail. The girl stuck to her decision. Finally both the families decided to give it some time for the girl to cool off.

"She doesn't want to go with him," the bride's mother said. "We tried convincing her, but she didn't agree. We have decided to wait a few days and let her take some time. Hopefully by then things will calm down and she will see some reason in the development," the mother added.

The police have also said that as of now they will not act on the FIR. Bahjoi SHO Pankaj Lavania, under whose jurisdiction the case falls, said. "Technically the couple is married as rituals were done by the time the incident happened. But she rejected the groom, Vivek Agnihotri, 26. We will decide what to do after waiting for a couple of days for things to cool down."

It should be stated here that in the past couple of months there have been a number of weddings that have been called on 'flimsy' grounds across India.

A woman in Uttarakhnad called off her wedding in November because she was unhappy with the 'cheap' bridal outfit her in-laws presented her. Before that, there was a report about a bride in UP refusing to go through with the wedding because the groom had not hired a photographer.

However, it is not just the brides who are calling off marriages. A groom had walked out of his wedding in June at Allahabad over which side should pay the band playing at the ceremony.

Padampur bypoll: Tribal votes to decide outcome

Rajya Sabha member Niranjan Bisi are campaigning for the ruling BJD.

Similarly, BJP has engaged Union Minister Bishweswar Tudu, Arjun Munda, Giridhar Gamango and former Union Minister Jual Oram for canvassing in favour of Purohit.

The grand old party Congress has also engaged Bhujabal Majhi and women leader Sushila Tiria in its list of star campaigners. Some more names are there in the list of star campaigners of Congress party but they are yet to reach Padampur and campaign for the party candidate.

No party can rule out the importance of the tribal voters, if we take a close look at the general elections held in the past. It is claimed that the tribal votes are the vote bank of former MLA late Bijay Ranjan Singh Bariha.

The BJD decided to give party ticket to Bariha's daughter after the members of the Binjhal tribe met the Chief Minister. The tribals have also taken a pledge to vote in favour of Barsha, the official party candidate of BJD.

On the other hand, the saffron party is leaving no stone unturned to grab the tribal votes and win this election. In the 2014 general election, BJP's Pradip Purohit had defeated his nearest rival BJD's Bijay Ranjan Singh Bariha by 4,513 votes and won the election from this Assembly segment.

However, then a known tribal leader Gobardhan Bhoje contested as an independent and managed to get 5,456 votes. Later, Bhoje joined BJP and is now campaigning for the party candidate Pradip Purohit. Only time can tell how far Bhoje's joining the BJP and campaigning for Purohit will benefit him and the saffron party.

On the other hand, Congress has claimed that the tribal and scheduled caste votes are its traditional votes. The claim is not fully unfounded as Congress managed to get satisfactory votes of 49,847 in 2009; 31,179 in 2014 and 32,787 votes in 2019 general elections. In this situation, it remains to be seen which way the tribal votes will swing and that will be known only after publication of the results.

constitutes of Rajborasambar, Paikamal and Jharbandh blocks as well as the Padampur NAC. The constituency has around 2,57,474 voters. Among them, 1,27,965 are women, 1,29,497 are men and the rest 12 belong to the other gender. What is noteworthy is that, out of the total voters 71,365 voters belong to tribal community. Their number is 27.82 per cent of the total voters.

The tribal people can be mostly found in Bilashpur, Dabha, Bhainshadarha, Kandadangan, Gothaguda, Laudidarha under Jharbandh block, Jamseth, Jharbandh, Baratunda, Mandosil, Jhitiki and Temri under Paikamal block and in Jamartala, Buden, Dahita, Khaliapali, Kansar villages under Rajborasambar block. The maximum numbers of kendu leaf pluckers are from this community. Political analysts claimed that though all communities will vote in this election, the votes of tribal community will decide the outcome of the polls.

In this election, all the principal political parties have engaged 40 star campaigners to manage their campaigning. Every party has appointed some tribal leaders in the list of star campaigners as they know that they cannot ignore the tribal leaders if they want to get the tribal votes and win this election.

MP Ramesh Chandra Majhi, MLA Manohar Randhari, former MP Pradip Majhi, state tribal welfare minister Jagannath Sarka and

The disease is spreading fast and has sparked concern among the dairy farmers. # CULTURE FOR DIPLOMACY

The dividends from cultural diplomacy are many. Yet, foreign policies of many countries focus more on trade and security issues than cultural aspects

On my visit last week to Jakarta, Indonesia, I accompanied the international delegation to sight-seeing in the capital city of Jakarta. About 20 of us from 14 countries were taken to the old town where we were exposed to a puppet show. To my utter delight as well as surprise, the show was about Ramayana. In a Muslim-majority country in the capital city, not in Bali, where people of Indian origin populate, a Hindu epic embraced in cultural events like puppet show was indeed amazing. There are similar Indian spiritual-cultural influences on other South-East Asian countries, indeed in many other parts of the world where Indians have migrated to in the past and are a sizeable population now.

Another anecdote, I was told by a diplomat friend that an old lady in Tanzania walked some four kilometres to watch a video on an Indian feature film. Mumbai-produced feature films are quite popular across the world. On one of my visits to Kabul, I met youngsters who knew about Sanjay Dutt and Shahrukh Khan more than about anyone else in India. Both these experiences signify the soft power that India possesses, which emanate from India's culture. Is India using this soft power effectively or engaging in cultural diplomacy?

Obviously, the dividends from cultural diplomacy are many. Yet, foreign policies of many countries focus more on trade and security issues than cultural aspects. The cultural affinity between two countries creates a climate of confidence, trust and understanding. Why is culture then underplayed in diplomatic negotiations? This is perhaps due to uncertainty on the part of leadership, which culture, or particular aspects of a culture should be projected.

Cultural diplomacy is a way of presenting a country to the world, using the cultural riches of that country. Following from the above premise, what are the cultural assets? Different countries have specific cultural riches and, in some cases, similar ones, if they had a shared history. In the Indian case, it is the co-existence of several identities creating diversity and harnessing the power of that diversity. The politics of identity, however, is a pejorative concept. Alarmingly, people have been divided into various segments based on religion, race, gender and nationality. The right-wing populists are exploiting these divisions to gain political support. Aggravated by pandemic, financial crises, and wars, insecurity among majority of population fuels nationalism and extremism.

Enzo Traverso, Italian scholar of European intellectual history, described this trend as an attempt to destroy democracy. He suggested that the rise of the far-right also underscores the increasing importance of identity politics in the early 21st century. Meant as a form of collective action, identity politics seeks to articulate the needs and demands that arise from the shared experiences of certain social groups. In the West, immigration has caused the consolidation of majoritarianism as a reaction to globalisation and to the multicultural world that it is creating. As national economies integrate through trade and direct foreign investments, profound demographic changes are taking place as migrants move to the West to either study or work. This is causing considerable anxiety among the white majorities who are fearful that growing religious and ethnic diversity may overshadow their own established identity.

In Asia, where India has considerable cultural influence, diversity has long been a hallmark of their cultures. Asia has given birth to five major religions and has hundreds of ethnic groups scattered across 48 countries and 11 different time zones. Despite their obvious differences, most ethnic and religious groups have lived in harmony with one another, enriching the arts, traditions and culture of the region.

Sadly, in recent years, various conservative and populist parties have come to power by weaponising identity. In India, the concern exists in some quarters that the majority is threatening the country's cultural and religious minorities and upending the multi-cultural structure of the society. Malaysia has recently experienced polarisation. Indonesia has been experiencing ethnic and religious pluralism insulating identity-based conflicts and politics. Progressives across the world have stayed away from identity politics. That is precisely the issue and challenge that India can address. Also, this is where India can contribute to the world politics with its culture of pluralism and synthesis. Multiple identities are the essence of diversity, which in turn, sustains democracy. Identities need not conflict and can easily co-exist as they are always contextual. An individual can embody multiple identities on the basis of language, ethnicity, race, gender, region, profession, religion and in Indian case, caste.

There are two kinds of identities – ascribed, which people are born into, the other, acquired, which can change. However, identities can be transcended into newer and higher forms depending on the context. For instance, your language identity can operate in the same language group, but you need to shed it and acquire another language while communicating with a person outside your language group.

Indian culture, composed of religions and traditions, is inherently diverse containing multiple identities. It has survived for centuries using the practice of co-existence as well as synthesis. India can use the unique traits of harmony, pluralism and synthesis in its culture and harness it in cultural diplomacy. This will enhance India's chance of emerging as a global power, a super power. Trade and security issues are led by US and China at present. What is missing in the world, which is divided and polarised, is a new political culture discussed here. Will India fill the void?

World Cup Syndrome

As the world's most popular sport, football ("soccer" to Americans) is often a pillar of national identity and a source of collective pride. That is why the FIFA World Cup can trigger intense emotions in a way that no other sporting mega-event can. This year's tournament in Qatar is no different.

The 1998 World Cup, which took place in France, is instructive. A 2012 study identified a significant decline in France's suicide rate during the month-long tournament and a dramatic 19.9 per cent decrease in the days following the French team's matches. France ultimately won that cup, but one's team does not need to win to provoke an emotional response. A 2015 study found a substantial shift in the ratio of male-to-female births nine months after the 2010 games in South Africa, which the researchers suggested was the result of an increase in sexual activity during the tournament. And in Brazil, heart attacks spiked during the 1998, 2002, 2006, and 2010 World Cups, particularly on days when the Brazilian team played.

Similarly, several studies have found that international football tournaments can significantly affect markets. A 2016 study found that the Italian team's performance has influenced domestic stock-market returns. National-level sporting victories, the authors concluded, can produce a sense of euphoria among investors. Losses, on the other hand, tend to depress investors, particularly non-institutional retail investors. Another study showed that losses tend to have a bigger negative impact on stock markets in countries with relatively more successful national teams, such as Spain and the United Kingdom. In countries with moderately successful teams, like Chile and Turkey, traders' appetite for risk increased after a win.

Expectations may have something to do with this. It is possible, the latter study's authors concluded, that losses had a greater effect on Spain and the UK because local football fans had grown accustomed to their national teams winning. In other words, the more you expect your team to lose, the more it will cheer you up when they win, and vice versa. Judging by their wild celebrations, Saudis were clearly cheered by their team's stunning victory over Argentina.

Football can also have a positive effect on economic perceptions. A 2006 study, based on telephone surveys conducted the day after every match played by Germany's national team during that year's World Cup, found that the team's better-than-expected performance boosted confidence among Germans. According to the authors, these findings confirm that psychological factors drive much economic activity. The primary proponent of this view was British economist John Maynard Keynes, who famously anticipated the market effect of mob behaviour, noting that "it may often profit the wisest to anticipate mob psychology rather than the real trend of events, and to ape unbecome."

Keynes' observation that savvy financial speculators could profit from market irrationality driven by mob psychology is supported by a 2010 study that examined the effect of the World Cup on the US stock market. While no one can predict the outcome of every football match, the authors identified a consistent trend that savvy investors could exploit: because a large proportion of investors in any given country hold US stocks, the negative effect on that market is more pronounced. The average US market return during the World Cup, they found, declined by 2.6 per cent, compared to an average 1.2 per cent increase in comparable periods. As the number of losing countries increases, the aggregate effect on the US stock market grows larger, resulting in a market slowdown.

Given this trend, shrewd investors may want to decrease their US equity exposure during the FIFA World Cup period. But if many investors adopt this strategy and reduce their exposure to US stocks simultaneously, a market decline could become a self-fulfilling prophecy. Another possibility is to short stocks just before the games start, but that would only aggravate price drops and may even precipitate earlier declines.

World-Cup-induced market irrationality is unlikely to disappear anytime soon. The reason is that football fans are infamously impervious to the indisputable fact that whatever teams you support, and no matter how successful they are, they will all inevitably lose in the long run.

But when your team does pull off the impossible, as Japan did when it defeated Germany and Saudi Arabia did when it beat Argentina in this year's tournament, the subsequent euphoria makes all those previous decades of humiliation worth it. It is this hope for a miracle in the face of long odds that drives sports fans, investors, voters, and those planning to have children or getting engaged to be married. None of it is rational. But it is part of what makes life as beautiful as the "beautiful game."

WORDSWORTH

Dauncy

It might seem to be American, but it's actually from the British side of the Atlantic. It was formerly common as a Scottish and Northern English word in several senses, though much less so now. In Britain, the spelling was more often donsie or donsey, as it can also be sometimes in the US. It derives from Gaelic donas, bad luck, harm or ill will. The main sense was of somebody who was unfortunate, luckless, sickly or feeble. It turns up in a poem by Robert Burns addressed to an old mare. An example that's more easily understandable is in John Galt's The Ayrshire Legatees of 1821, "I promised that donsie body, Willy Shackle ... that when I got my legacy, he should get a guinea". It could also sometimes mean a person who was affectedly or fastidiously neat or trim, with a sense of self-importance attached. The American sense, in either spelling, has always been rather a regional term, and these days is rare. The usual meaning is of a person who is feeling sick, weak, lacking in vitality, or not completely well.

Deadhead

Back in the early part of the nineteenth century the term dead head (at first two words) was a theatrical term for a person who had been admitted without charge, perhaps because they had performed some service such as putting up a poster advertising the event. It was an obvious enough formation, as they were a dead weight, not contributing to the expenses of the production. It's just conceivable it could have been a translation of a well-known Latin tag, caput mortuum, literally "death's head" or skull. This was used by alchemists as their name for the residue in a flask after distillation was complete. Later it was used for any worthless residue.

SPECTRUM BHOPAL GAS TRAGEDY

Trauma continues to haunt

In the worst-ever industrial accident to date, a highly poisonous gas named Methyl isocyanate (MIC) leaked out from a chemical plant of a US-owned company in Bhopal on the night of December 2, 1984, that left around 25,000 people dead with nearly 2,500 people dying instantly. Many animals including cattle, sheep and birds also fell victim.

In the sixties, with an aim to increase foreign investments in the country for boosting the economy, the government liberalised the terms for entry of foreign companies into India. Accordingly, US-based Union Carbide Corporation established a pesticide manufacturing plant in Bhopal in 1969 over 15 acres of land under the name Union Carbide of India Limited. Being a centrally located place having well-established road and rail connectivity, Bhopal was the perfect location for the plant. The plant also gave employment to hundreds of people leading to the flourishing of the local economy.

The plant was using two chemical gases - MIC and Phosgene to produce an intermediate product called Methylamine. These two gases were, of course, highly toxic in nature. Methylamine was then reacted with another chemical called 1-Naphthol to produce the final product named Carbaryl which was then marketed as a pesticide under the name Sevin. The company was producing nearly 5000 tonnes of the pesticide annually.

Subsequently, as the demand for the product increased, the company later established its own MIC manufacturing unit in the same factory in 1979. The factory had three underground storage tanks placed side by side for storing MIC. The factory proved to be a boon for the local community as it was the only source of their livelihood. However, in the late seventies and early eighties, the demand for the product fell due to drought and low agricultural output of the country and also due to proven ineffectiveness of the pesticide. This resulted in the cutting down of investment by the company. This led to poor maintenance of safety systems of the factory including valves and gas pipes. Even, in 1981, a labourer died in the factory while on duty due to accidental exposure to Phosgene. Subsequently, a journalist Rajkumar Keswani, who happened to be a friend of the deceased worker, visited the site to find the dilapidated state of the factory and apprehended a catastrophe sooner. He reported that Bhopal was sitting over an exploding volcano which, of course, nobody paid any heed to at that time.

On the evening of 2nd December 1984, water accidentally entered one of these storage tanks of MIC while the employees were trying to clean a choked pipe attached to the tank. As it is well-known in Chemistry, the chemical reaction between MIC and water is highly explosive resulting in the production of a large quantity of heat. This resulted in the building of gas pressure inside the tank that reached a value as high as 50 PSI from 2 PSI in a matter of only 4 to 5 hours which was far beyond the safety limit. The old and poorly maintained tank was not able to withstand this high pressure with its concrete walls caving in with cracks resulting in the release of the gas into the open atmosphere.

Three safety systems of the factory designed to slow down the effects of gas leak were, unfortunately, non-functional at that time. The plume of gases belled from the tanks in an uncontrollable manner and got mixed into the air in no time. MIC, being heavier than air, settled to the ground level and did not disperse quickly given the slow surface wind conditions of the winter night. This resulted in far higher exposure to the gas in the local population. Gripped with panic, people started running here and there on the roads without knowing what exactly caused the disaster and how to manage it. In the morning, the nearby road was found to be littered with thousands of bodies of humans, animals and birds. Most of the hospitals of the city were overwhelmed with victims far beyond their capacities and doctors were totally unaware of a gas called MIC and, hence, had no antidote against it. Truckers carrying relief materials were reluctant to enter the affected area fearing a fresh gas exposure. The entire emergency system of a small city like Bhopal collapsed.

Thirty-eight years on, Bhopal still struggles to breathe out of this vicious gas cloud with many survivors narrating their horror stories with awe and agony. Even today, babies are born disabled or mentally retarded with soil and groundwater getting contaminated. The company and the government had tried to provide some mitigation measures to victims. However, the deep scar left in the minds of people who had lost their near and dear ones is never going to be erased by material help of any kind in days to come.

Major milestone

Sir, In a major milestone for the country's COVID vaccination programme, which was rolled out in January last year, decks have been cleared for the launch of the world's first intranasal vaccine, iNCOVACC. The breakthrough has also raised India's stature as a hub of coronavirus vaccines. According to Bharat Biotech, iNCOVACC has been designed for easy and pain-free administration. Also, the vaccine manufacturer has rightly initiated the development of variant-specific vaccines for future preparedness. Though COVID has subsided considerably in India, there is no room for complacency. The role of vaccination in controlling the virus is crucial. A patchy inoculation drive is one of the key reasons why China is witnessing a COVID resurgence, with Chinese vaccines not proving to be as effective as those manufactured in India or the West. What was worrying for India is the public hesitancy about taking the booster or precaution dose. Will the intranasal vaccine encourage people to shed indifference? Factors such as iNCOVACC's efficacy, safety, pricing and availability will determine the response. The fact that the vaccine has shown successful results in Phases I, II and III of clinical trials should suffice to dispel apprehensions. Nevertheless, the health authorities need to conduct the vaccine awareness campaign with renewed vigour. It's foolhardy to assume that the pandemic is over. We must remember that vaccines have largely averted severe infections in the past year and a half and will continue to do so in future.

Collegium conundrum

Sir, Appointment of judges has run into rough weather. The Supreme Court has sensed that the delay in considering the recommendations for the appointment of judges may be linked to the Centre's unhappiness over the National Judicial Appointments Commission (NJAC) failing to pass muster in the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court has asserted "once the name is reiterated, that's the end of the matter of the law as it stands. When recommendation is made, you cannot hold back the name without stating the reason." This is really the problem in many government departments and offices when the officers sit on files without stating any reason. Courts have to work in full swing. For that no vacancy should be left without being filled for long time. Expedient disposal of cases is of paramount importance. It is literally true "justice delayed is justice denied."

PM hits back at 'Ravana' remark

Addressing a poll rally at Kalol town in Panchmahal district of Gujarat, Modi said such abusive words used for him were an insult of Gujarat and its people because he was raised by the people of this land

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Ahmedabad, Dec 1: Prime Minister Narendra Modi Thursday said there is a competition among Congress leaders as to who will use the most abusive words against him, referring to the opposition party president Mallikarjun Kharge's 'Ravan' jibe at him.

Before Kharge, another Congress leader had said the party will show Modi his 'aukat' (place), the PM said, apparently referring to Madhusudan Mistry's remark last month.

Addressing a poll rally at Kalol town in Panchmahal district of Gujarat, Modi said such abusive words used for him were an insult of Gujarat and its people because he was raised by the people of this land. He asked people to teach the Congress leaders a lesson by voting for the 'lotus' (BJP's symbol) in the state elections.

Kharge Monday night addressed a rally in Behrampura area of Ahmedabad city where he said the Prime Minister asks people to vote "looking at his face" in all elections. "Are you 100-headed like Ravan," he had said.

On Thursday, Modi said, "I respect Khargeji but he has to follow orders of the party high command. He was compelled to say that Modi has 100 heads like (demon king) Ravan."

"But, the Congress did not realise that Gujarat is the land of Ram Bhakts. Those who never believed in the existence of Lord Ram, have now brought in Ravan from Ramayana just to abuse me," the PM said. "And, I am surprised they never expressed repentance, forget about tendering an apology, after using such cuss words for

Chaos in Mumbai airport

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Mumbai, Dec 1: Chaos prevailed for nearly two hours at the Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj International Airport (CSMA) after a computer systems failure hit check-ins and other operations for all airlines, here Thursday, sources said.

The 'culprit' is allegedly said to be the ongoing infrastructure digging works of the Mumbai Metro line in the CSMA vicinity that reportedly snapped a main cable of a major utility company, the sources said.

Late on Thursday evening, an official spokesperson for Mumbai International Airport Ltd (MIAL) attributed the glitch to "a temporary network interruption outside the airport due to ongoing development work in the city".

"Our teams are present on ground and manual processing has been initiated to facilitate all passengers. They are requested to allocate additional time for check-in and also to connect with their respective airlines," the spokesperson said.

In a subsequent update, the MIAL said that "there was a network interruption resulting from a cable cut" during some construction work in the city. "This interrupted the various ticketing systems. All systems are now restored and working," said the spokesperson.

Meanwhile, manual operations were taken up to clear the passenger rush, though no flight operations were affected, the sources said.

The abrupt breakdown in the computer systems led to massive crowds of passengers who could be seen sitting or moving around with their luggage in the Terminal T2 for around two hours.

Many of the harried passengers took to social media to vent their ire and frustration over the unexpected delays, posted pictures of the overcrowding inside the terminal or queues of passengers building up outside.

Thakur and Kulkarni withdrew their petitions, filed in 2018, as the trial is in its fag end and 23 witnesses have been examined already. Another accused, Lieutenant Colonel Prasad Purohit, withdrew one of his petitions alleging defective sanction to prosecute him under provisions of Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA). Purohit's plea for discharge was heard by HC last week and is closed for orders.

Two held for harassing Korean woman

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Mumbai, Dec 1: Mumbai police Thursday arrested two men who harassed a South Korean YouTuber while she was live streaming in a Mumbai street.

A local court remanded the duo, arrested under IPC section 354 (assault or criminal force to woman with intent to outrage her modesty) to a day's police custody.

The men were arrested hours after a video surfaced on social media on Wednesday showing the woman being sexually harassed in Khar area of Mumbai.

The video showed a young man coming close to her and trying to pull her by holding her hand even when she protested.

As the woman began to walk away from the spot, the man again appeared on a motorbike with a friend, offering her a lift while she told him that she did not want it. The police took notice of the incident after receiving the video on their Twitter handle and registered an FIR and also started a probe into the incident, an official said.

After establishing the identity of the two accused, aged 19 and 21, the police nabbed them from Patel Nagar in suburban Bandra, the official said. Police had contacted the YouTuber, but she did not come to the police station saying she will come later, the official added.

Equalise to end AIDS epidemic: WHO

In the South-East Asia Region, an estimated 3.8 million people are living with HIV, accounting for around 10 per cent of the global burden

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 1: The World Health Organisation Thursday highlighted the urgent need to provide every one equitable access to HIV prevention, treatment and care to end the AIDS epidemic as a public health threat by 2030.

Globally, an estimated 38.4 million people are living with HIV. In 2021, an estimated 1.5 million people acquired HIV and around 6,50,000 people died from AIDS-related causes, said Dr Poonam Khetrpal Singh, WHO Regional Director for South-East Asia. In the South-East Asia Region, an estimated 3.8 million people are living with HIV, accounting for around 10 per cent of the global burden, she said on World AIDS Day.

In 2021, an estimated 82,000 people in the region died of AIDS-related causes, accounting for more than 12 per cent of the global burden, Singh said. "The inequalities which keep the AIDS epidemic alive are not inevitable. Together, we must end each and every inequality and accelerate progress towards our targets and goals." On World AIDS Day, WHO reiterates its commitment to achieve a region and world in which AIDS is no longer a public health threat, leaving no individual, community or population behind," she said.

Amid the Covid response and recovery, the region continues to take targeted action to end HIV-related inequalities and expand service coverage in line with its priority on achieving universal health coverage and the region's new Integrated Action Plan for viral hepatitis, HIV and sexually transmitted infections (I-RAP 2022-2026), launched in September 2022, Singh said.

Between 2010 and 2021, new HIV infections in the region declined by 42 per cent and HIV-related deaths reduced by 63 per cent.

"We have people and populations to reach, and progress to achieve. Across the region, almost 95 per cent of new HIV infections are among key populations such as sex workers, people who inject drugs, men who have sex with men, and transgender people," Singh said.

The senior WHO official said just 22 per cent of young people have knowledge about HIV prevention, and coverage of testing for people who inject drugs has significant room for improvement. Access to game-changing innovations such as HIV self-testing and pre-exposure prophylaxis remains highly uneven, both within and between countries, she said.

Calling for action in several areas,

WHO said policy makers and programme managers should rapidly increase the availability, quality and sustainability of HIV services, ensuring that everyone - especially key populations - are well-served and actively included in service provision, Singh said.

Second, political leaders and other key influencers should immediately reform laws, policies and practices that facilitate both direct and indirect discrimination, stigma and exclusion. The human rights of key populations and affected groups must be respected, protected and fulfilled, Singh added.

Third, policy makers and other actors must accelerate access for all countries and communities to the best HIV science, technologies and tools, which should be accompanied by evidence-based information on how best to deliver them, including through increased South-South collaboration and learning, she said.

Programme managers and other health leaders should implement concrete actions to engage and empower communities, civil society and affected populations, whose experiences must inform both policy and service delivery, as well as ongoing progress monitoring, she said.

Yogi govt steps up surveillance in jails

A ROUND-THE-CLOCK VIDEO VIGIL HAS BEEN INTENSIFIED ACROSS ALL 72 JAILS AND SUB-JAILS IN THE STATE

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Lucknow, Dec 1: As videos of jailed Delhi minister Satyendra Jain in Tihar jail tumble out at a regular frequency, the Uttar Pradesh government has decided to intensify surveillance of VVIP prisoners lodged in the state jails.

According to official sources, a round-the-clock video vigil has been stepped up across all 72 jails and sub-jails in the state.

These include Naini Central Jail, Lucknow jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar jail and other jails where notorious criminals, terror suspects, a former minister and other VVIPs are lodged.

Prison officials have been asked not to allow anything inside jails apart from items prescribed in the Jail Manual.

Officials at prison administration and reform services headquarters stated that directions have been issued for intensifying monitoring in prisons across the state.

The government spokesman said, "Prison officials have been asked to maintain a list of politicians, bureaucrats, mafias, dreaded gangsters and terror suspects lodged in their jails and intensify vigil on their activities to ensure that no special facility is provided to them."

UP jails have been known for notorious activities of inmates in the past.

The murder of jailed gangster Munna Bajrangi by another gangster Sunil Rathi in July 2018 and the killing of three gangsters during a shootout in Chitrakoot jail May 2021 are examples of criminals continuing their activities inside the jails.

A businessman was kidnapped by Atiq Ahmad's henchmen and taken to the Deoria jail, where he was tortured in April 2019.

Besides, videos of inmates partying, consuming liquor and making extortion calls from inside jails have also gone viral in the past.

Jailor Rajendra Singh said that in Lucknow jail, several VVIPs, including former cabinet minister Gayatri Prajapati, gangster turned-politician Atiq Ahmad's son Umar, gangster Sanjeev Maheshwari, police personnel accused in many cases, over 24 activists of Popular Front of India and five Pakistani terror accused are lodged in the district jail that houses around 3,500 prisoners.

Similarly, Naini Central Jail has around 4,300 prisoners, which include terror suspects from Jammu and Kashmir and other parts of the country, naxals, mafias, gangsters and psycho serial killers.

Besides, many political leaders are also lodged in Naini Central Jail in different cases against them. The list includes former Phulpur MP Kapil Muni Karwaria and his younger brother (former MLC) Surajbhan Karwaria. Ghosi MP Atul Rai and former minister Angad Yadav are also lodged in this jail.

RK Singh, jailor at Naini Central Jail, said security arrangements were being ensured for prisoners as per the Jail Manual. A list of such prisoners is being maintained and verified. The administration has lodged them in separate barracks.

Mukhtar Ansari's son Abbas Ansari (MLA) is lodged in Chitrakoot Jail on security grounds.

Earlier, five district jails, including Lucknow, Gautam Buddha Nagar, Azamgarh, Chitrakoot and Bareilly, had already been equipped with advanced facilities to keep 24x7 surveillance.

Arrangements ranging from drone cameras to deep search metal detectors have been installed in these prisons, said the government spokesman.

In addition to it, night-vision binoculars and hand-held metal detectors have been provided to these five prisons, he added.

He further stated that 48 additional high megapixel CCTV cameras have been installed in the district prison of Lucknow.

Live feed of all district prisons can be accessed at the headquarters. FG-1 pole metal detection system has been installed in all prisons to monitor detainees, added the spokesman.

Vijayan slams Vizhinjam port protest, terms it as 'planned'

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Thiruvananthapuram, Dec 1: Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan Thursday broke his silence and slammed the violent protests that took place at the upcoming Adani Vizhinjam Port site last week, adding that they were planned.

The Latin Catholic church appears to be backing the local protesters who are against the building of the port and in the rampage unleashed by the protesters Saturday and Sunday, the authorities estimated a loss of Rs 85 crore and around 35 police officials and several protesters were injured.

Consequent to the rampage, the police registered cases against 3,000 people which included the Latin Church bishop, priests among others and there was widespread criticism from several quarters on the long standing silence of Vijayan, despite him always speaking about development.

But Thursday Vijayan while addressing the passing out parade of women police officials said that what happened at Vizhinjam in the past few days was a well planned one.

What happened at Vizhinjam is the outcome of a well planned out conspiracy and one with a motive, which the police have by now identified. The police will deal with the case very sternly, said Vijayan.

An attempt to create communal issues and riots was planned. The role of the police in doing their best has to be appreciated as they have done a good job, added Vijayan.

State Police chief Anil Kant said a detailed probe has begun and each and every aspect will be probed and strict action would be taken against those who have indulged in violence.

State Ports Minister Ahamed Devarkovil said this port has been a long standing dream of Kerala.

This port will definitely become a reality and the first ship will call at this port in September next year and it will be an Onam gift for Kerala. Once operational this port will be hugely beneficial for Kerala and the country. As today big mother vessels come only to Colombo or Dubai and from there it is transhipped to here. With this new port, all big mother vessels will dock here, so nothing will be able to stop this project from being stalled, said Devarkovil.

Since Monday, though there were no untoward incidents in and around the port site as there are over a thousand police officials on alert.

On Wednesday, NIA officials arrived at the Vizhinjam Police station, which was ransacked by the protesters against this project on Sunday, and held detailed talks with the Kerala Police officials.

Garbage dumps to become selfie points in UP

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Lucknow, Dec 1: Even as garbage mounds in Delhi lead to a political warfare, the Yogi Adityanath government in Uttar Pradesh is working to develop these mounds as selfie points.

The garbage dumps, which are an eyesore and emanate terrible stink, attract insects and strays and pose sanitation hazards, are now poised for a dramatic makeover all over the state. A cleanliness drive under the 'Swachh Bharat Mission (urban)' has been kicked off across the state, develop them as selfie points after beautification, as per the government spokesman.

All the GVPs will be beautified and turned into either selfie points with space for senior citizens or will be allotted to street vendors, said the spokesman.

Universities in Kerala are soft targets: Khan

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Thiruvananthapuram, Dec 1: After a lull, Governor Arif Mohammed Khan again Thursday attacked Pinarayi Vijayan-led Kerala government, saying that universities in Kerala are soft targets.

"What a shame, universities in Kerala are soft targets, where appointments of relatives and party cadres are being done. Just look at Kannur vice-chancellor (Gopinath Raveendran), in the past six months the Kerala High Court on three occasions have ruled against him. He looks like a habitual offender, as instructions go from the Chief Minister's office," said Khan.

The relations between Governor Khan and Kerala Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan have gone from bad to worse in last few months.

The two have been at loggerheads ever since Khan objected to the manoeuvres of Vijayan and his office over appointments to various posts in universities in Kerala.

"Just look, the state government spent Rs 45 lakh to get a legal opinion and what did they do with the opinion. A state like Kerala which is in huge debt is spending so much," added Khan.

On the future plans, Khan said his job is to bring back respectability of universities in Kerala and to see that students from the state need not have to go out to study.

"As soon as the Kerala High Court disposes of the petition with regards to the Vice-chancellors, steps would begin to appoint the new VCs. My job is that of only a supervisory role and the VCs will be running the show with no interference from the executive," added Khan.

Kerala HC unhappy about night curfew for female students

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Kochi, Dec 1: The Kerala High Court expressed its displeasure on imposing curfew in the women's hostel of Kozhikode Medical College by asking all the students to return by 9.30pm.

The court made these observations after a plea was moved by five female MBBS students and office-bearers of the College Union of the Medical College Kozhikode. The plea also pointed out that there was no restriction for the male students.

Expressing its displeasure, the court pointed out that such restrictions under the guise of protection were nothing but patriarchy.

It also pointed out that all forms of patriarchy, even those offered under the guise of protection on the basis of gender, must be frowned upon.

BJP, SP sharpen attacks as bypolls draw closer in UP

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Lucknow, Dec 1: With just two days left for campaigning before the bypolls to two Assembly and one Lok Sabha seat in Uttar Pradesh, the BJP and Samajwadi Party are sharpening their attacks on each other.

Slamming the previous SP rule, Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath said that in the Akhilesh government, farmers could not visit their land as their tubewell connections were snapped, machines were stolen and their throats slit.

Girls could not go to school and women to markets because of safety concerns. People were forced to migrate from places like Kairana and Kandala. People can never forget the cruelty meted out to Sachin and Gaurav (two brothers killed during Muzaffarnagar riots) during the SP rule, he said.

He urged the people not to allow professional criminals of Samajwadi Party to enter the realms of power. Kaval ka bawal (Muzaffarnagar) is a curse of SP, he stated.

Deputy Chief Minister Keshav Maurya, meanwhile, accused SP chief Akhilesh Yadav and his uncle Shivpal Yadav of being driven by a feudalistic mindset.

Maurya said that it was due to this feudalistic thinking, the rule of uncle and nephew prevailed in both the government and the organisation of the Samajwadi Party. This family cannot see backward and downtrodden moving forward, he said.

He slammed Shivpal for using derogatory words for BJP candidate Raghuraj Singh Shukla and said that people would answer Shivpal and his nephew by puncturing SP's cycle and ensuring victory of Shukla in Mairpur.

Describing Akhilesh as anti-backward, Maurya said that he and his family are not socialists but opponents of backward people.

He said not only Akhilesh but his uncles Shivpal, Ram Gopal and the whole family have only one thing in their mind and that is how to maintain their fear and terror among the common people on the basis of corruption, hooliganism and anarchy while remaining in power.

Shivpal Yadav, on the other hand, said that the BJP was getting increasingly jittery after seeing the unity in the Samajwadi Party and the Yadav family. They were hoping to cash in on the division but now their hopes have been dashed. This by-election is going to be the beginning of the end for the BJP, he said.

The polling will be held December 5 and votes will be counted December 8.

Covid blues over as domestic tourists throng Kerala

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Thiruvananthapuram, Dec 1: Kerala saw a record-setting surge in domestic tourist arrivals in the first three quarters of the current year as compared to the corresponding period a year ago, reflecting a comeback from the pandemic-triggered downturn, said a state minister.

Tourism Minister PA Mohamed Riyas said that Kerala's crucial travel and hospitality sector is poised to surpass pre-pandemic levels.

"The state received a total of 1,33,80,000 domestic tourists in nine months till September, notching a 1.49 per cent increase as compared to the same period before Covid-19 struck the world," said Riyas.

The January-September period this year saw a 600 per cent stride in foreign tourist arrivals to Kerala, and the state is expected to host more overseas travellers as the world is opening up overcoming the pandemic-induced restrictions.

"Overall, Kerala Tourism grew by 120 per cent amid a 12.07 per cent surge in state Gross Domestic

"The implementation of a set of meticulously-crafted steps will help in future trajectory of travel and hospitality industry in the state," added Riyas who is the son-in-law of Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan.

'Kerala key market for Russian tourists'

Russia has been an important market for Kerala Tourism and this partnership is bound to strengthen in the post-pandemic era as the state has drawn up ambitious plans to add a lot of unexplored destinations to its tourism map, State Tourism Minister PA Mohamed Riyas said. It is one of the most significant sectors that contribute immensely to the state's economic growth. The tourism sector alone contributes about ₹45,000 crore to the State GDP and provides employment to more than 15 lakhs people. Minister Riyas said this while inaugurating the Indo-Russian Travel and Tourism Fair here. As per 2019 figures, more than one lakh Russian tourists visited Kerala. The fair will definitely strengthen the bond between India and Russia. Kerala is one of the favourite destinations for Russian travellers, said the Minister.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 1: The government has planned to introduce 16 new bills, including the one which seeks to increase accountability and reform electoral process in multi-state cooperative societies, in the Winter Session of Parliament beginning December 7.

The National Dental Commission Bill, which seeks to set up a National Dental Commission and to repeal the Dentists Act, 1948, is also in the tentative session agenda of the government. The National Nursing and Midwifery Commission Bill, another measure the Health Ministry plans to introduce, seeks to set up a National Nursing and Midwifery Commission (NNMC) and to repeal the Indian Nursing Council Act, 1947.

According to a Lok Sabha bulletin issued on Thursday, the Multi-State Cooperative Societies (Amendment) Bill, 2022, is being introduced with an objective of strengthening governance, enhancing transparency, increasing accountability and reforming electoral process in the multi-state cooperative societies by supplementing existing legislation and incorporating the provisions of 97th Constitution amendment.

It also aims to improve monitoring mechanism and ensuring ease of doing business for multi-state cooperative societies. The Cantonment Bill, 2022, is another draft law the government proposes to bring in the session which will conclude on December 29.

The cantonment bill relates to the administration of cantonments with a view to impart greater democratisation, modernisation and efficiency. It also seeks to achieve greater developmental objectives in alignment with municipalities across the country. The Bill also intends to facilitate 'ease of living' in cantonments.

Another bill in the list is the Old Grant (Regulation) Bill, 2022. The purpose of the bill is to regulate land given under Governor General Orders of 1836, 1827, 1838, 1849 and 1851, including their transfer, subdivision and change of purpose. It also seeks to delegate powers for better management of such land.

The bill aims to enhance ease of living while ensuring effective protection of government rights over the land. The Forest (Conservation) Amendment Bill seeks to amend the Forest (Conservation) Act, 1980. It also envisages to remove ambiguity in the applicability of the provisions of the Act, promote plantation in non-forest areas and conserve the forests.

The Coastal Aquaculture Authority (Amendment) Bill, 2022, which the government proposes to bring seeks to revise the provisions of the principal Act to reduce the regulatory compliance burden to the stakeholders without diluting the core principles of environment protection in coastal areas.

It also proposes to decriminalise "the offence(s)" under the Act and to expand the scope of the law to bring all coastal aquaculture activities under its ambit.

It also aims to remove difficulties and regulatory gaps in the Act for effective implementation, and to facilitate ease of doing business.

Trouble mounts for Shashi Tharoor

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 1: The Delhi police moved the Delhi High Court Thursday against the discharge of Congress leader Shashi Tharoor in the case of his wife Sunanda Pushkar's death, more than 15 months after a city court let him off, and sought condonation of delay in filing the revision petition.

The high court sought Tharoor's response to the plea by the Delhi police for condoning the delay, and listed the matter for hearing on February 7, 2023.

The Lok Sabha MP from Thiruvananthapuram was discharged of all offences like cruelty and abetment to suicide in August 2021, more than seven years after his businesswoman wife Pushkar was found dead in a luxury hotel in the national capital.

Pushkar was found dead in a suite of a luxury hotel on the night of January 17, 2014.

The couple had been staying in the hotel as Tharoor's official bungalow was being renovated at the time.

After Tharoor's counsel referred to the protracted delay, Justice D K Sharma issued a notice to the Congress leader and sought his reply to the police's application for condonation of delay.

The high court sought Tharoor's response to the plea by the Delhi police and listed the matter for hearing on February 7, 2023

"First we will decide the condonation of delay application," the judge said.

The high court also asked the counsel for police to supply a copy of its petition to Tharoor's lawyer. The police, through additional standing counsel Rupali Bandhopadhyaya, filed the revision petition seeking setting aside of the trial court's 2021 order and for direction to frame charges against Tharoor under section 498A (husband or relative of husband of a woman subjecting her to cruelty) and 306 (abetment to suicide) of the Indian Penal Code (IPC).

DELHI LIQUOR SCAM CASE

Ready to face inquiry: KCR's daughter

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Hyderabad, Dec 1: TRS MLC K Kavitha Thursday said she and her party leaders who are currently under the radar of the central agencies such as the Enforcement Directorate are ready to face any inquiry.

She was reacting to reports that her name figured in a remand report by the Enforcement Directorate on one of the accused-Amit Arora in the Delhi liquor scam case. "We will face any kind of inquiry. If the agencies come and ask us questions we will certainly answer. But tarnishing leaders' images by giving selective leaks to the media, people will refute it," Kavitha told reporters here.

Alleging that BJP has toppled eight democratically elected state governments and snatched power through backdoor politics, she dared Prime Minister Narendra Modi to put her and other leaders behind the bars.

"I request Modi that this attitude has to change. It is not possible to win elections by using the ED and CBI. It is very difficult with people of Telangana who are cleverer. If you say that you will keep us in jail, do it. What will happen? There is nothing to be scared of. Will you

I request Modi that this attitude has to change. It is not possible to win elections by using the ED and CBI. It is very difficult with people of Telangana who are cleverer. If you say that you will keep us in jail, do it. What will happen? There is nothing to be scared of. Will you hang us? At the most you will keep us in jail. That's all," she said.

Kavitha claimed that it has become a regular practice to send agencies such as ED and CBI to poll-bound states. Telangana is slated to go for Assembly polls

November or December next year. "ED arrives (to poll-bound states) before Modi goes," she slammed.

As long as TRS works for the people's welfare nothing will happen. The ruling party workers gathered in large numbers at her residence expressing solidarity. As per the investigation carried out so far, Vijay Nair, on behalf of leaders of AAP has received kickbacks to the tune of at least Rs 100 crore from a group, called south group (controlled by Sarath Reddy, Ms K Kavitha, Magunta Srinivasulu Reddy) by various persons including Amit Arora, the ED said, adding Amit Arora "disclosed" this during the recording of his statement.

Officials identified Kavitha as the MLC daughter of Telangana CM K Chandrashekhara Rao.

Govt launches DigiYatra for passengers at 3 airports

DigiYatra will be launched at four more airports -- Hyderabad, Pune, Vijayawada and Kolkata -- by March next year. Later, DigiYatra will be rapidly rolled out across all other airports

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 1: The government Thursday launched DigiYatra which will provide a seamless entry and embarkation process for air passengers at the airports in the national capital, Bangalore and Varanasi.

After launching DigiYatra, which is based on facial recognition technology, at the airport in Delhi, Civil Aviation Minister Jyotiraditya Scindia said data shared by the passengers will be stored in an encrypted format and in a decentralised manner.

DigiYatra will be launched at four more airports -- Hyderabad, Pune, Vijayawada and Kolkata - by March next year. Later, DigiYatra will be rapidly rolled out across all other airports, Scindia said at a briefing here.

The airlines that operate in these three airports -- Delhi, Bangalore and Varanasi -- are fundamentally onboard, he said with respect to DigiYatra. It will be available for passengers taking domestic flights.

DigiYatra app is available on Android and iOS platforms. Currently at the Delhi airport, DigiYatra will be available for passengers taking domestic flights from Terminal 3 (T3). Amid concerns in certain quarters about data theft and privacy issues, Scindia said the data shared for DigiYatra will be stored in an encrypted format in a decentralised manner.

"First, we thought of a centralised system that would house all the data but then issues of privacy, data theft, rightfully came up. So, we moved to a decentralised system which would house the passenger information. On the mobile phones of every single passenger," the minister said.

The secured, encrypted information on a passenger's phone can be provided to the airport from which he or she is flying out, 24 hours before the journey. "We have moved to a decentralised system and your data is going to be in an encrypted format and it is going to be residing only in your (passenger) mobile phone... 24 hours after your travel, that data is mandatorily going to be purged from the servers at that airport. The data you upload gets completely wiped out in 24 hours even though it is protected by blockchain technology," the minister said.

For availing the service, a passenger has to register their details on DigiYatra app using Aadhaar-based validation and a self image capture. In the next step, the boarding pass has to be scanned and the credentials are shared with the airport.

At the airport e-gate, the passenger has to first scan the bar coded boarding pass and the facial recognition system installed at the e-gate will validate the passenger's identity and travel document. Once this process is done, the passenger can enter the airport through the e-gate. The passenger will have to follow the normal procedure to clear the security and board the aircraft.

Talking about the benefits of facial recognition technology being used at airports, the minister said it is helping save time for passengers at various international airports, including at Dubai, Singapore, Atlanta, Narita (Japan).

At Atlanta airport, the time taken is around "9 minutes per aircraft boarding", he added.

Scindia said DigiYatra provides a seamless process from the entry point until the embarkation point on planes, and no identification or boarding pass has to be shown by the passengers.

While noting that DigiYatra is being adopted on a piece meal basis in the country, he said the Indian system is a tad more efficient than other systems across the world.

"We are also working with IATA to ensure that new advancements are adopted at a very early stage in India," the minister said.

The International Air Transport Association (IATA) is a global grouping of airlines.

region of Russia. They revived and characterized 13 new pathogens, what they termed "zombie viruses," and found that they remained infectious despite spending many millennia trapped in the frozen ground.

Scientists have long warned that the decline of ancient glaciers due to global warming will worsen climate change by freeing previously trapped greenhouse gases like methane. But its effect on dormant pathogens is less well understood.

The team of researchers from Russia, Germany, and France said the biological risk of reanimating the viruses they studied was "totally negligible" due to the strains they targeted, mainly those capable of infecting amoeba microbes. The potential revival of a virus that could infect animals or humans is much more problematic, they said, warning that their work can be extrapolated to show the danger is real.

"It is thus likely that ancient permafrost will release these unknown viruses upon thawing," they wrote in an article posted to the preprint repository bioRxiv that hasn't yet been peer-reviewed. "How long these viruses could remain infectious once exposed to outdoor conditions, and how likely they will be to encounter and infect a suitable host in the interval, is yet impossible to estimate."

"But the risk is bound to increase in the context of global warming when permafrost thawing will keep accelerating, and more people will be populating the Arctic in the wake of industrial ventures," they said.

Researchers warned that some of these "zombie viruses" could potentially be dangerous to humans. As seen previously, thawing permafrost can claim human lives. In 2016, an anthrax outbreak in Siberia led to the death of a child and dozens of people were also hospitalized. As per the officials, the outbreak possibly started after a heat wave thawed the permafrost and unearthed a reindeer carcass that was infected with anthrax decades ago.

What is Zombie Virus?

Zombie virus is the term given to a virus that is frozen in ice and therefore dormant. It does not mean that it is a virus that will turn you into a zombie, like those in horror movies and shows. However, in sync with the analogy, these viruses are 'undead' like the fictional zombie, and can come back alive and active under certain circumstances.

Xi bows down to historic protests

THE VIOLENT ANTI-COVID LOCKDOWN PROTESTS THAT MARK SOME OF THE STRONGEST DISSENT CHINA HAS SEEN FOR OVER 30 YEARS HAVE FORCED THE GOVERNMENT TO LIFT SOME RESTRICTIONS

AGENCIES

Beijing, Dec 1: China is set to announce in coming days an easing of its Covid-19 quarantine protocols and a reduction in mass testing, sources told Reuters, a marked shift in policy after anger over the world's toughest curbs fuelled widespread protests.

Cases nationwide remain near record highs but the changes come as some cities have been lifting their lockdowns in recent days, and a top official said the ability of the virus to cause disease was weakening.

Health authorities announcing the easing in their areas have not mentioned the protests - the biggest show of civil disobedience in China for years which ranged from candle-lit vigils in Beijing to street clashes with police in Guangzhou.

The measures due to be unveiled include a reduction in mass testing and regular nucleic acid tests and moves to allow positive cases and close contacts to isolate at home under certain conditions, the sources familiar with the matter said.

That is a far cry from earlier protocols that led to public frustrations as entire communities were locked down, sometimes for weeks, after even just one positive case. The frustration boiled over last week in demonstrations of public defiance unprecedented in mainland China since President Xi Jinping took power in 2012, and come as the economy is set to enter a new era of much slower growth than seen in decades.

CHANGING RULES

Less than 24 hours after violent protests in Guangzhou Tuesday, authorities in at least seven districts of the sprawling manufacturing hub, said they were lifting temporary lockdowns. One district said it would allow schools, restaurants and businesses including cinemas to reopen. Cities including Chongqing and Zhengzhou also announced easings.

In the capital, Beijing, some communities have begun preparing for changes.

Expectations have grown around the world that China, while still trying to contain infections, could look to re-open its borders at some point next year once it achieves better vaccination rates among its hesitant elderly.

Funds are needed to help 339mn people in 69 nations, an increase of 65mn people compared with the same time last year, the UN body noted

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Berlin, Dec 1: The United Nations said Thursday that it is asking member states for a record $51.5 billion in aid funding for next year; as disasters and the ongoing war in Ukraine drive up humanitarian needs worldwide.

The global body's humanitarian office said the funds are needed to help 339 million people in 69 countries, an increase of 65 million people compared with the same time last year. The appeal is a 25 per cent increase on that made for 2022, it said.

"Humanitarian needs are shockingly high, as this year's extreme events are spilling into 2023," said the UN's emergency relief coordinator, Martin Griffiths.

He cited droughts in the Horn of Africa, floods in Pakistan and the conflict in Ukraine, which have pushed the number of displaced people worldwide above 100 million.

"All of this on top of the devastation left by the pandemic among the world's poorest," said Griffiths.

"For people on the brink, this appeal is a lifeline. For the international community, it is a strategy to make good on the pledge to leave no one behind."

The UN's annual Global Humanitarian Overview combines funding required by the global body and numerous nongovernmental organisations.

Current funding provided by member states is less than half of what's needed, forcing aid groups and agencies "to decide who to target with the funds available," the UN humanitarian office said.

Christine McVie, Fleetwood Mac Singer-Songwriter, dies

McVie wrote some of the legendary Grammy-winning rock band's most famous songs, including "Little Lies", "Everywhere" and "Songbird"

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

London, Dec 1: Fleetwood Mac singer-songwriter and keyboardist Christine McVie, who also enjoyed success as a solo artist, died Wednesday at the age of 79 following a brief illness, her family announced. In a statement posted on her official Facebook page, McVie's family said she had died "peacefully"

'Royal race row' risks cloaking William, Kate's US tour

The trip is the royal couple's first one overseas since the 40-year-old William became heir to the throne in September, when his father succeeded queen Elizabeth II to become King Charles III

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

Boston, Dec 1: Prince William and wife Kate began their first visit to America in eight years Wednesday under the cloud of a fresh racism row after his godmother quit the royal household for repeatedly asking a Black British woman where she was "really" from.

The Prince and Princess of Wales met Boston mayor Michelle Wu and governor-elect Maura Healey at the city hall and then sat courtside at a Boston Celtics versus Miami Heat NBA game as they kick-started their three-day trip focused on climate change. The beginning of the visit - which comes after racism claims from William's brother Harry and mixed-race sister-in-law, Meghan - was however overshadowed by the resignation and apology of 83-year-old Susan Hussey, one of William's six godmothers.

"Racism has no place in our society" a spokesman for the royal couple told reporters in Boston. "These comments were unacceptable, and it's right that the individual has stepped aside with immediate effect." William was not involved in the decision but "believes it's the right course of action to be taken", the spokesman added.

The royal couple last visited the United States in 2014 when they went to New York and Washington, in a trip that included a reception at the White House with the then-president Barack Obama and his deputy, Joe Biden. The White House said Biden will meet the royal couple on Friday.

It is also their first trip state-side since Harry and Meghan sensationally quit the royal family in early 2020. No meeting has been announced between the estranged brothers.

'UNACCEPTABLE' Buckingham Palace said it took the incident "extremely seriously" and called the comments "unacceptable and deeply regrettable."

"In the meantime, the individual concerned would like to express her profound apologies for the hurt caused and has stepped aside from her honorary role with immediate effect," it added.

British media outlets all quoted palace sources as confirming it was Hussey who made the remarks.

Camilla has scrapped the formal roles of ladies in waiting, but Hussey, whose late husband was a former BBC chairman, was kept on as a royal retainer by King Charles III.

Last year, William insisted "we are very much not a racist family", after Harry and Meghan - who have won many fans among younger people and in the Black community for taking on the British establishment - alleged that an unidentified royal had asked what color skin their baby would have.

VOICING ATTACKS COUNTRYWIDE TTP calls off truce with Pak govt

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Islamabad, Dec 1: The Pakistan government is reviewing its strategy in relation to the banned Tehreek-e-Taliban Pakistan (TTP) after the dreaded militant group called off the ceasefire agreement with it and resumed attacks on security forces, a media report said Thursday.

The ceasefire deal signed in June this year as part of a deal brokered by the Afghan Taliban was called off earlier this week by the group fighting to establish the rule of Sharia across the country. The will be a "review" of Pakistan's strategy following the TTP announcement earlier this week and a spike in terrorist attacks, an official source told The Express Tribune newspaper.

The source said that a meeting of the National Security Committee (NSC), the highest forum to discuss issues of national security and defence, will likely be convened to discuss the possible new strategy.

The talks were brokered by the Afghan Taliban regime, which had been resisting pressure from Pakistan to take action against the TTP and its affiliates operating out of the neighbouring country. The source however said the government will now discuss all options to deal with militancy after the change of command and resurgence of the TTP.

Retail digital rupee launched in Bhub, three other cities

The use of digital rupee is expected to reduce the operational costs related to management of physical currency as well as increase financial inclusion in the economy

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 1: The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Thursday launched the first pilot project for retail digital rupee in Mumbai, New Delhi, Bangalore and Bhubaneswar.

The retail digital rupee project has started in a closed user group with the participation of four lenders - State Bank of India, ICICI Bank, Yes Bank and IDFC First Bank - as well as customers and merchants.

The launch comes a month after the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) started a pilot in the digital rupee - wholesale November 1. In the second phase of retail digital rupee project, nine more cities and four more banks will be included.

The digital rupee is in the form of a digital token that represents legal tender and would offer "features of physical cash like trust, safety and settlement finality", according to the RBI.

"As in the case of cash, it will not earn any interest and can be converted to other forms of money, like deposits with banks," the central bank said while announcing the pilot project November 29.

In a release Thursday, Yes Bank said it rolled out the RBI's CBDC (Central Bank Digital Currency) for its closed user group, comprising its retail customers and merchants. During the pilot phase, access to the Yes Bank Digital Rupee app will be given to the bank's select retail customers who will be part of the closed user group, it added.

Based on the requirements placed by banks, digital rupee will be created by the RBI using latest technology and digitally issued to the banks in a secure manner.

Eight banks have been identified for phase-wise participation in the pilot project. After State Bank of India, ICICI Bank, Yes Bank and IDFC First Bank, four more banks - Bank of Baroda, Union Bank of India, HDFC Bank and Kotak Mahindra Bank - will join the pilot project.

The other nine cities to which the pilot will be later extended are Ahmedabad, Gangtok, Guwahati, Hyderabad, Indore, Kochi, Lucknow, Patna and Shimla.

The scope of the pilot project may be expanded gradually to include more banks, users and locations as needed, as per the RBI. Last month, the RBI said digital rupee - wholesale will help in reducing transaction costs by preempting the need for settlement guarantee infrastructure or for collateral to mitigate settlement risk.

ARGENTINA BEAT POLAND 2-0 IN THEIR LAST GROUP MATCH TO SET UP A ROUND OF 16 MATCH AGAINST AUSTRALIA, WHILE THE POLES ALSO THROUGH AS THEY MEET FRANCE FOR A PLACE IN THE QUARTERFINALS AT THE FIFA WORLD CUP

Argentina, Messi advance

IMPRESSIVE DISPLAY: Argentina players celebrate a goal against Poland in their FIFA World Cup Group C match at the Stadium 974, Wednesday

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Doha, Dec 1: Rest easy, soccer fans. Lionel Messi will grace the World Cup stage at least one more time. The Argentina great had a penalty saved but his team still beat Poland 2-0 Wednesday after second-half goals from Alexis Mac Allister and Julian Alvarez and advanced to the last 16.

After opening the World Cup with a shocking 1-2 loss to Saudi Arabia in one of the biggest upsets in the tournament's history, Argentina wound up finishing in first place in Group C and will next play Australia—a surprise qualifier for the knockout stage.

Messi rolls into Saturday's game suddenly in a strong position in likely his final World Cup. "Now another World Cup begins," Messi said, "and hopefully we can continue to do what we did today."

As for Poland, it was ultimately a happy night, too, because the team went through as the group's second-place team — on goal difference ahead of Mexico — and will next play defending champions France.

Messi ended up relieved after failing to score a penalty for the second straight World Cup. It was awarded after he was hit in the face by the flailing hand of Poland goalkeeper Wojciech Szczesny, who made amends by diving to his left to block Messi's kick in the 39th minute.

A largely pro-Argentina crowd, waving flags and scarfs and beating drums behind both goals, had been sweeping Messi and his team along at the 44,000-seat Stadium 974 and they didn't stop after the penalty. Within seconds, a chant of "MESSI! MESSI!" immediately reverberated around the venue in a bid to keep their idol's head high.

And the roars were even louder at the start of the second half, first after Mac Allister's goal — a scruffy finish from Nahuel Molina's cut-back from the right — in the first minute and soon after as news filtered through that Mexico had taken the lead against Saudi Arabia, which started the day in third place.

Playing an Argentine-record 22nd World Cup game, Messi never stopped surging forward and he was a menace all game to Poland with his dribbling ability and vision. One 40-meter solo run saw him weave past three opponents, drift past another only to miskick as he took aim.

The match was billed as a head-to-head between Messi and Poland striker Robert Lewandowski, perhaps the best center forward in the world, but it proved to be a mismatch.

Messi wasn't involved in either goal, though. For the second, Enzo Fernandez scooped a pass to Alvarez — starting ahead of regular striker Lautaro Martinez — and he took one touch before curling his shot into the top corner in the 67th minute.

Things couldn't have gone better for Argentina coach Lionel Scaloni, who made more bold changes in bringing in Alvarez, Fernandez and Molina and seeing them play a part in the goals. Mac Allister, meanwhile, didn't start against Saudi Arabia and has added energy in midfield in the two games since.

Suddenly, Argentina look more like the team which entered the World Cup on a 36-match unbeaten run and as one of the tournament favorites, a year after winning the Copa America.

The final whistle blew with Poland players still unsure if they were advancing, given the Mexico-Saudi Arabia game was ongoing. At one stage, Poland and Mexico were only separated by the number of yellow cards they had collected in the group stage — Poland had five compared to Mexico's seven — and Michniewicz was desperately urging his team to not give away fouls in the final minutes.

A stoppage-time goal by the Saudis meant their match finished 2-1 in favor of Mexico, whose goal difference was inferior by one to Poland. Upon confirmation they had advanced, Poland's players squirted water from their bottles in the middle of the field and jumped up and down.

Morocco enter last 16, Croats oust Belgians

NIGHT TO REMEMBER: Morocco players celebrate a goal against Canada

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Doha, Dec 1: Group F of the FIFA World Cup Thursday witnessed a stunning result after the final group stage matches as Morocco topped the group ahead of last edition's runners-up Croatia, while last edition's semifinalists Belgium were knocked out along with Canada.

Morocco advanced to the last 16 at the World Cup for just the second time after clinging on for a 2-1 win over Canada. Morocco's only other trip past the group stage came in 1986.

Hakim Ziyech scored for Morocco in the fourth minute after a bad error by Canada goalkeeper Milan Borjan left the winger to shoot the ball into an empty goal. Youssef En-Nesyri added a second in the 23rd. Nayef Aguerd's own-goal just before half-time made it 1-2.

A draw would also have been enough for Morocco to advance. Canada, who will co-host the next World Cup in 2026 with the United States and Mexico, ultimately lost all three of their games in Qatar; matching its three defeats at their only other World Cup appearance in 1986.

Croatia, on the other hand, advanced to the last 16 after a 0-0 draw against Belgium, whose group-stage exit will likely usher in the breakup of their talented but underachieving generation of players.

Kevin de Bruyne looks dejected after their match against Croatia

The Belgians have reached at least the semifinals on each of the two times they have reached the knockout stage. They failed to live up to their status as the second-ranked team and one of the tournament favorites.

Needing a win to be sure of advancing, Belgium produced their best performance of the WC and wasted two clear chances that fell to Romelu Lukaku. The halftime substitute struck a shot against the post and failed to control a ball that bounced off his chest.

What has long been called Belgium's "Golden Generation" — now featuring six players with more than 100 appearances — is set to split up with a WC semifinal appearance in 2018 as their peak.

Mexico fall short despite victory

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lusail, Dec 1: For a long time after the final whistle, Luis Chavez crouched on the field in anguish. He had just scored in Mexico's furious attempt to stay alive at the World Cup, but the 2-1 victory Wednesday over Saudi Arabia wasn't enough.

Because of Argentina's 2-0 victory over Poland in a simultaneous match, Mexico failed to advance out of their group for the first time since 1978.

Mexico had reached the knockout round at the last seven World Cups, second only to Brazil, which has gone through to the round of 16 since 1986.

El Tri went into the match at Lusail Stadium needing both a victory and help from Poland playing across town against Argentina to advance in Group C. Argentina's victory meant goal difference came into play — and Mexico didn't have enough of them.

Henry Martin scored in the 48th minute to give El Tri hope, and the team's chances got even better with Chavez's goal on a free-kick four minutes later. Mexico tried desperately in the final 20 minutes to get another goal — including an effort by Uriel Antuna in the 87th minute that was ruled offside — but came up short.

Salem Aldawsari scored in second-half stoppage time for Saudi Arabia, who were eliminated along with Mexico despite beating Argentina in their opening match.

Martin's goal ended Mexico's 431-minute scoring drought at the World Cup, dating back to their second group match at the 2018 tournament in Russia. It was the team's longest ever stretch without a goal at the tournament.

Mexico opened the tournament in Qatar with a 0-0 draw against Poland and but fell 2-0 to Lionel Messi and Argentina. Mexico hadn't been eliminated from the group stage since the World Cup in Argentina 44 years ago. El Tri didn't qualify for the 1982 World Cup in Spain, and was banned from the 1990 event in Italy for using overage players at an under-20 tournament.

Mexico advanced to the round of 16 in their last seven appearances — but no further: El Tri came to Qatar looking to play in an elusive "quinto partido" — a fifth game — for the first time since Mexico hosted the tournament in 1986.

Saudi Arabia had one of the tournament's biggest ever upsets ever when they beat Argentina 2-1. But the Green Falcons couldn't pull off another surprise in its second match, a 2-0 loss to Poland. The Saudis reached the round of 16 back in 1994, the team's World Cup debut, but haven't made it past the group stage since.

Rawalpindi, Dec 1: Virus-hit England stamped their aggressive brand of cricket — the 'Bazball' — on their first Test in Pakistan in 17 years by amassing a world record 506/4 with four batters smashing hundreds Thursday.

Zak Crawley hit 122 (111b, 21x4) and Ben Duckett made 107 (110b, 15x4) in a blistering opening stand of 233. Ollie Pope (108, 104b, 14x4) and Harry Brook (101 n.o., 81b, 14x4, 2x6) blazed hundreds in the last session in an astonishing display of power-hitting against an inexperienced Pakistan bowling attack. And the Test almost didn't start.

England confirmed it had a fit 11 and the match could go ahead only two hours before the toss. Then it destroyed a host of records in only 75 overs before play ended prematurely because of bad light.

The 506/4 total was the highest on the first day of any Test, surpassing Australia's 494/6 in 1910 against South Africa in Sydney. England also became the fastest team to score 500 runs.

Pope, who will keep wickets after Ben Foakes couldn't recover from a viral infection that hit the England camp, cemented coach Brendon McCullum's aggressive approach.

the final session to reach 101 not out. Captain Ben Stokes, who won the toss and elected to bat after recovering in time from the virus, was not out on 34 off 15 balls (6x4, 1x6). England batters smashed 73 boundaries and three sixes in a white-ball fireworks display with the red ball.

In the absence of injured spearhead Shaheen Afridi, Pakistan opted to hand debuts to three bowlers; fast bowlers Haris Rauf and Mohammad Ali and legspinner Mohammad Zahid. But none of the bowlers could extract any help from a slow, grassless pitch at Pindi Cricket Stadium.

Surprisingly, Joe Root was the only batter to miss out when he fell to Mahmood, who finished the day with 2/160. Rauf (1/78) and Ali (1/96) shared the other wickets.

Crawley and Duckett combined in a better-than-run-a-ball 233 stand before Pakistan struck up three wickets in the middle session when Mahmood and Rauf struck in successive overs with the old ball.

Crawley was on 99 when Naseem Shah trapped him on the backfoot, but Crawley successfully overturned the decision as video suggested the ball would have missed the leg stump.

Two balls later, Crawley achieved the fastest Test century by an England opener off 86 balls. Crawley missed an opportunity to become the first Englishman to smash a century before lunch in a Test match when he reached 91.

BRIEF SCORES: England 506/4 (Zak Crawley 122, Ollie Pope 108, Ben Duckett 107, Harry Brook 101 n.o.; Zahid Mahmood 2/160) vs Pakistan. Match to continue.

Burruchaga heaps praise on Scaloni tactics

JORGE BURRUCHAGA

Well done Lionel Scaloni. Credit must go to the coach for the remarkable win against Poland. Argentina again proved that they are the great team that qualified for the World Cup and one of the favourites to win this tournament.

After the shocker against Saudi Arabia, his experiment in two matches was a complete success. Not only that, the victory in the last match of the group showed that Argentina's reserve bench is also very strong.

From the beginning Argentina was the clear dominator of the game against Poland. Poland played a defensive game to manage just one point from the match. That was a great mistake. Scaloni is a type of coach, who makes strong decisions and makes the team improve game by game and makes changes correctly considering the circumstances.

Argentina created lots of scoring opportunities during the first half, but most of them were stopped by Wojciech Szczesny, who played brilliantly, saving Lionel Messi's penalty after 37 minutes. But he couldn't resist the pressure of Argentina and conceded the goal in the second half.

At the beginning of the second half, Argentina manage to score the first goal through Mac Allister and relief comes. Then Julian Alvarez scores the second and Argentina manage to seal the victory.

Argentina dominated the whole game and could score more goals. But Messi and his team were comfortable after two goals and the Poles were disoriented.

I can remember the 1986 World Cup and my experience says from the first game to the end Argentina were never favourite. Winning the first game, drawing with Italy and beating Bulgaria and being top in the group, was a great motivation for the team.

That led us to play against Uruguay, a rival we knew. We won comfortably, and we went to the quarterfinals with England, the game every Argentine still remembers. As you win, in a short tournament of 7 games, you gain confidence until you reach the final and be the champion.

In this WC, Argentina reached Qatar as one of the favourites with a strong team led by Messi. Strong reserve bench most importantly all were physically fit. But confidence becomes low after a defeat in the opening game. But now players recovered slowly and almost reached their best level. Now, Argentine people feel that it is possible to win the WC.

Don't want to give advice. It's the experience they have. The great team they have, who will have to prove it now, in the difficulty and above all, in the leadership of Messi. Knowing how to handle calm and knowing that, in football, anything can happen. And they can come out champions.
