Earth electrons forming water on Moon

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Sept 15: Scientists analysing the remote sensing data from India's Chandrayaan-1 lunar mission have found that high energy electrons from the Earth may be forming water on the Moon.

The team, led by researchers from the University of Hawai'i (UH) at Manoa in the US, discovered that these electrons in Earth's plasma sheet are contributing to weathering processes breaking down or dissolving of rocks and minerals - on the Moon surface. The research, published in the journal Nature Astronomy, found that the electrons may have aided the for- CHANDRAYAAN-1 DATA role in the dismation of water on the lunar body. Knowing the concentrations and distributions of water on the Moon is critical to understanding its formation and evolution, and to providing water resources for future human exploration, the researchers said.

The new finding may also help explain the origin of the water ice previously discovered in the permanently shaded regions of the Moon, they said. Chandrayaan-1 played a crucial coverv of water molecules on the Moon. The mission, launched in 2008, was the first Indian lunar probe under the Chandrayaan programme. Solar wind, which is composed of high energy particles such as protons, bombards the lunar surface and is thought to be one of the primary ways in which water has been formed on the Moon.

The team investigated the changes in surface weathering as the Moon passes through Earth's magnetotail, an area that almost completely shields the lunar body from solar wind but not the Sun's light photons. "This provides a natural laboratory for studying the formation processes of lunar surface water," said Shuai Li, an assistant researcher at the UH Manoa School of Ocean.

Ukraine-returned medicos duped GYAN RANJAN MOHAPATRA, OP

Bhubaneswar, Sept 15: The Commissionerate Police Friday arrested a former director of a overseas educational consultant firm here for allegedly duping 65 Ukraine-returned medical students of ₹43.72 lakh on the pretext of helping them get their certificates from universities in the war-torn country. The 31-year-old accused, Swadhin Mohapatra, is a native of Bhandaripokhari area in Bhadrak district.

Many meritorious students had taken admission in various universities in Ukraine through Saheed Nagar-based Global Focus Education Pvt Ltd. Around 65 of them, who had returned following the war in 2022, recently complained to the MD of the firm, Mirza Abdul Zaheer Baig, that Swadhin had collected ₹43, 72,015 from them to help them obtain transcripts and other certificates from Ukrainian universities.

Following Baig's complaint, Swadhin, who quit the firm in February this year, was arrested by police.

Deepika shares her equation with SRK

Mumbai: Actress Deepika Padukone opens up about her relationship with Shah Rukh Khan, calling them 'each other's lucky charms'.

We are each other's lucky charm. But honestly, we are beyond luck. We have a sense of ownership over each other ... I am one of the few people he is vulnerable with. There is so much trust and respect, and I think that luck is just the cherry on the top," the Om Shanti Om actress told a magazine.

Earlier this year, Deepika was seen with Shah Rukh Khan in Pathaan, and in Jawan too. The latest is Deepika's fifth collaboration with SRK. Notably, Deepika made her debut opposite Shah Rukh in Om Shanti Om and both have costarred in Happy New Year and Chennai Express.

For Deepika, however, it's less about the box office business and more about the audi ence response. "I've never been fascinated by numbers whether it was Maths in school or the numbers of Pathaan. I was just happy that cinemas had come alive again, that people had come alive again. I was really grateful for that," she said.

For the unversed, Deepika hasn't charged anything for her appearance in Jawan. AGENCIES

Helmetless: Snitch on fellow citizen

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar/Cuttack, Sept 15: The state Transport department has sought citizens' cooperation in enforcing traffic rules as it has urged the commuters to report about helmetless riding through Next Gen mParivahan app 'Citizen Sentinel' option.

The department is seeking active participation of citizens in enforcement of road safety through the app developed by National Informatics Centre (NIC)

In the 'Citizen Sentinel' option 'no helmet violation' can be registered by uploading the live video and image. One needs to capture violations of helmetless riding (photo as well as video) on their smart phones and upload the same on the application.

On the basis of inputs, e-Challans will be issued by State Transport Authority (STA) after verification. As per data, in 2022, a staggering 34 per cent of the deaths in road accidents involved two-wheelers which are a common mode of transportation in Odisha. A total of 1,695 people have lost their lives and 2,615 were injured due to riding without helmet.

Shedding light in this regard, Lalmohan Sethi, Additional Commissioner Transport, Road Safety & Enforcement said, "Road safety is a shared responsibility. To begin with, we are seeking help of citizens to keep check on those who ride without helmet. In future, other traffic violations will be added in the 'Citizen Sentinel' option. Due to continuous enforcement activities people are using helmets in urban areas but are unfortunately avoiding the safety gears in rural areas and highways where protection is much more needed."

He further said, "Even though it is mandatory, helmets are rarely worn by pillion riders despite similar risk of accidents like the driver. If riders take care of own safety by wearing helmets, they should not risk pillion rider's safety."

Citizens can upload photos and videos of both rider as well as pillion rider for riding without helmet, said Sethi adding that while clicking photographs and videos it must be ensured that the violation as well as vehicle number is clearly captured in the photograph and video.

"Location, date and time of violation will be automatically captured from live images and videos uploaded. Identity of any person reporting traffic rules violations will not be disclosed," he asserted.

Aditya-L1 completes 4th Earth-bound manoeuvre

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Bangalore, Sept 15: Aditya L1 spacecraft, India's first spacebased mission to study the Sun, during the early hours Friday, underwent the fourth Earthbound manoeuvre successfully, ISRO said.

"The fourth Earth-bound manoeuvre (EBN#4) is performed successfully. ISRO's ground stations at Mauritius, Bangalore, SDSC-SHAR and Port Blair tracked the satellite during this operation, while a transportable terminal currently stationed in the Fiji islands for Aditya-L1 will support post-burn operations," the space agency said in a post on X, a platform formerly known as Twitter.

The new orbit attained is 256 km x 121973 km, it said: "The next manoeuvre Trans-Lagrangian Point 1 Insertion (TL1I) -- a send-off from the Earth -- is scheduled for September 19, around 02:00 Hrs. IST.'

162 scrub typhus cases in Sundargarh Rourkela: Sundargarh is witnessing a rise in scrub typhus cases with the district registering 162 cases since January this year, said official sources, adding that there is no cause of panic. Tests for the disease are conducted at Rourkela Government Hospital and District Health Centre Sundargarh. Sundargarh chief district medical officer (CDMO) Kanhucharan Nag said, "So far, there are only 162 positive cases detected at both the centres. This test is being done from the beginning of January this year. This test and its medicines are available at both the places. Of the 162 positive cases, nine have been from outside the district and 10 from outside states - Jharkhand and Chhattisgarh," said the CDMO.

Bhubaneswar: Thousands of civil engineers of the state took to polishing shoes and selling of vegetable to protest in an innovative manner against unemployment and irregularities in appointments to the posts of assistant executive engineers by the Odisha government here Friday at the Secha Sadan on the occasion of 'Engineers Day'. The unemployed youths alleged that despite the Orissa High Court order quashing the advertisement of the Odisha Public Service Commission (OPSC) for recruitment to 391 posts of assistant executive engineers (AEE) on the basis of GATE scores the government is still not recruiting them. The engineers demanded the vacant posts be filled up immediately by the government by conducting fresh examinations. Congress leader Bijay Patnaik joined the protests as a mark of support. Earlier, the Orissa High Court had quashed an advertisement of the OPSC for recruitment to 391 posts of assistant executive engineers on the basis of GATE scores.

Bhubaneswar, Sept 15: Special Crime Unit (SCU) of Commissionerate Police Friday arrested the founder of a startup company for allegedly duping investors of more than ₹2 crore on the pretext of providing franchise of his company offering automobile garage-on-wheels services

The accused, identified as Sachidananda Bhoi, 48, a native of Bargarh district, is currently residing in Dumduma area here. He is the director of Hiferk Technology Pvt Ltd, operating under trade name 'Go Speedy Go' located in Rasulgarh area. The arrest came after a case (5/23) was registered against him on the basis of a complainant lodged by Santosh Panda of Balasore. "Santosh along with 12 others from Balasore approached the SCU alleging fraudulent activities by 'Go Speedy Go'. The company, by promising to provide vehicles equipped with tools, machinery, drivers and three mechanics, enticed these individuals into taking a franchise of his firm and duped lakhs of rupees," said a senior police official.

Odisha, Ch'garh seek more time for CIF Gathering data for Common Format Information is a tedious process, say both states

KULDEEP SINGH, OP

New Delhi, Sept 15: Both Odisha and Chhattisgarh seem to be on same page in terms of seeking further time for completion of the Common Format Information (CFI). Both the states have prayed for a time frame of 12 weeks from the Mahanadi Water Dispute Tribunal to complete the gigantic task, sources informed Friday.

Both Odisha and Chhattisgarh have written to the Registrar of the tribunal highlighting the tedious process in data collection for the CFI. As of now, Odisha has submitted data for 59 appendices out of total of 68. While Odisha is yet to submit data for nine appendices, Chhattisgarh will have to do so for four. Both the states have conveyed to the tribunal that their technical teams are working hard for the completion of CFI. The states have said that 16 weeks would be required for filing of witness statements. Crossexamination of witnesses may commence after 22 weeks in February, 2024. Both the states prayed to the tribunal to approve this timeline for adjudication of the Mahanadi River water dispute. The tribunal will hear the case Saturday.

Significantly, the CFI will contain all information pertaining to Mahanadi basin and will be used by the tribunal for adjudication of the dispute.

During the last hearing August 12, the tribunal had granted four weeks time to both Odisha and Chhattisgarh for completion of CFI. The bench had then observed that the states would not seek further time for the same and on the next hearing it would start recording evidence. docu-

It should be stated that in July, Odisha had raised objections over inclusion of western catchment area as part of Mahanadi basin in the CFI prepared by the assessor. The state submitted to the tribunal that water generated through rivers in western catchment does not contribute in any way to the Mahanadi river or its tributaries.

The tribunal also disposed of a batch of applications filed by Odisha and Chhattisgarh for obtaining documents from Central agencies for the CIF.

Earlier, judges of the tribunal along with assessors and teams of Odisha and Chhattisgarh governments had visited the Mahanadi basin in Chhattisgarh and Odisha in April and May respectively

Starbucks has a long history of lofty sustainability goals around many aspects of their global operations. Some have been met, such as new stores being certified for energy efficiency, while others have been scrapped or revised along the way. For example, in 2008 the company said that by 2015 it wanted 100% of its cups to be recyclable or reusable, which it's far from achieving even today.

Today's drive to completely overhaul the cup arguably comes with a business imperative, as extreme weather events and other manifestations of climate change make waste like disposable cups more notable, and by extension increased expectations from customers for the company to be part of the solution.

"Our vision for the cup of the future — and our Holy Grail, if you will — is that the cup still has the iconic symbol on it," says Michael Kobori, head of sustainability at Starbucks. "It's just as a reusable cup.

Starbucks is not the first company to push toward a reusable cup. But as the largest coffee company in the world, with more than 37,000 stores in 86 countries and revenues of $32 billion last year, Starbucks could force change across the industry.

MGNREGA workers caught between job card deletions, Aadhaar seeding

It has been alleged that the Central government's clear intention to curtail MGNREGA work at the grassroots level is behind such glitches and irregularities

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Rayagada, Sept 15: When Dhananjay Sahu (29) from Akhusingi village in Rayagada district started living separately after marriage, he decided to apply for a new job card under the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee

Act (MGNREGA) scheme. He wanted his wife also to benefit from the health insurance provided under the Nirman Shramik Kalyan Yojana, for which an MGNREGA job card is used as a primary identification tool. He also hoped to ensure 100 days of work for the new household by accessing the new card. No new card was issued to him, despite applying at Akhusingi gram panchayat in December last year. Much to his dismay, he later learnt that he had lost his MGNREGA identity "Once I applied for the new card, my name was deleted from the job card of my parents. When I approached the officials concerned, they said re-entering a name along with the linked Aadhaar number was not possible once it was deleted from the website. In short, I lost my right to work under the MGNREGA,' Sahu who works as a plumber said.

Sahu's case is no exception. Job cards are flagged as duplicates in the MGNREGA website when family members apply for a new card. Once Aadhaar numbers and account details are linked to a family job card, the website does not allow access to a new card to any member of that family.

The problem stems from the Ministry of Rural Development's announcement in January, mak ing the Aadhaar-based Payment System (ABPS) mandatory for all payments to the MGNREGA beneficiaries. Workers should link their Aadhaar numbers with their job cards and bank accounts to get payments through ABPS. rective made it mandatory to link Aadhaar numbers of all job card holders

The deadline for implementing ABPS has been extended a fifth time — to December 31 from the last set time limit of August 31. In a bid to meet the deadline. the names of workers found in more than one database are being removed without much thought, leading to a sharp spike in such deletions.

Responding to questions raised by Congress MPs Gaurav Gogoi and VK Sreekandan about the 244.3% hike in deletion of MGN-REGA job cards in 2022-23 fiscal against the previous two financial years, Rural Development Minister Giriraj Singh informed the Lok Sabha in a written reply July 25 that over five crore job cards have been deleted in the last fiscal

The reasons mentioned for deletions were fake (incorrect) job card, duplicate card, unwillingness to work, permanent relocation of a family from a gram panchayat or cases where the only person listed in the card has passed away.

For instance, in Rayagada district, there were 2,26,151 job card households in 2021. Over the last three years, 68,864 job cards have been nixed, reflecting a deletion rate of more than 30%. Similarly, in Padmapur block of Rayagada district, the number of job cards has come down to 8.230 at present from the 15,515 in 2021-22 fiscal.

at the Panchayati Raj department in Rayagada district, it was earlier possible to unfreeze Aadhaar and account numbers of the deleted job card holders through the district programme coordinator's login. However, the Ministry of Rural Development removed this option last year.

Utkal Sabar, a social worker from Sandhikhola village, said the Central government should provide gram panchayats the power to delete job cards, and the related Aadhaar numbers and account details. Such an approach would prove beneficial when people shift to another panchayat.

Noting that job cards are issued on the basis of Below Poverty Line (BPL) survey data, 2002, Prabhas Kumar Padhy, a youth leader from Akhusingi, said, "It is high time we stopped issuing job cards based on such outdated data." Anil Kumar Parida, a social worker from Bahupadar, said the Central government should issue job cards based on Aadhaar data and not BPL 2002 data. "This would ensure seamless card generation, where account numbers are already linked. Such an approach would enhance rural job security and livelihood," he said.

Social activist Saroj Kumar Dash of Gudiabandha alleged that the clear intention behind iob card deletions and technical errors was to curtail MGNREGA work at the grassroots level.

"During the scheme's initial days, the focus was on maintaining a 60:40 ratio between labour and material components. Now with the deployment of technology and resulting glitches, job seekers are unable to secure even a single day of work," Dash said.

in-law in Kodala police station area Thursday.

Following a heated exchange of words at their home Wednesday night, the accused strangled his wife to death and carried her body to the gorge, chopped it into five pieces with an axe and threw those into the river, a police officer said.

He said though the exact reason behind the murder is being investigated, a preliminary probe suggests that the accused had demanded that his wife hand over her gold ornaments to him, which she had refused to do.

The accused was planning to start a business after selling his wife's gold ornaments, he said. They had gotten married only three months ago at a temple. A day after the incident, he had informed his in-laws that his wife was missing. The accused was detained for questioning Friday. Firefighters searched for the body parts in the river but have not met with any success as the water body is in a spate. The axe allegedly used in the crime has been seized, Aska SDPO Uma Shankar Singh said.

Police claimed that the accused has confessed to committing the crime but were waiting for evidence with the recovery of the body parts.

Labour minister rues lack of housing projects in Rourkela

POST NEWS NETWORK

Rourkela, Sept 15: Minister for Labour and ESI Sarada Prasad Nayak, during a discussion here Thursday, expressed his desire of setting up a satellite township for Rourkela, Doing an assessment of his own achievements, he rued about not being able to initiate a housing project in the Steel City.

"Actually with a sense of regret, I can say that as an elected representative I could not get one or more housing projects for the city. Look at the market, there is a serious gap between demand and supply as far as houses are concerned," the minister said. "Rourkela in fact requires a few big housing projects. Apartments are being built but those are not enough because there is a big market for finished houses and we are far away from meeting that.

He remembered raising this issue during a discussion with 5T Secretary VK Pandian during his visit. "He was very serious about it because he is also aware of the issues being a former ADM of Rourkela. Now I am going to raise this issue at the appropriate platforms," said Sarada.

The minister explained that Rourkela required one satellite township because the main city like Bhubaneswar and Cuttack. has reached a certain saturation level. "For a satellite township to come up, one requires at least 500 acre land. This is not available inside Rourkela. So. my plan is to search for land, especially on the outskirts or places in periphery like Kuanrmunda, Bisra or somewhere in between, the minister said. Way back in 2017, lands were earmarked in an empowered committee meeting for different housing and housing cum commercial projects in Rourkela. Those projects are at Chhend, Pradhanpalli, Liploi near Rajgangpur and near the present building of Rourkela Chamber of Commerce and Industries (RCCI). All these plans have been approved. Presently the Chhend housing project under the slums resettlement programme is going on. Rest projects never saw the light of the day.

Including individual households and community 'pujas', the town hosts more than 400 such celebrations

POST NEWS NETWORK

Rourkela, Sept 15: With the popular festival Ganesh Puja drawing closer, Rajgangpur is set to get a new immersion pond for the Ganesh idols this year. The construction of the new pond became a necessity after an unidentified person claimed ownership of the piece of land where the old pond existed. The Cement City will see immersion of the elephant God's idols September 26 this year.

The administration has kick started the construction of the new pond near the Liploi nullah just opposite of where the previous one existed. Notably, Rajgangpur is famous for its annual Ganesh Chaturthi Mahotsav. Like the state of Maharashtra, it is celebrated with much pomp and fashion here. Including individual households and community 'pujas', the town hosts more than 400 such celebrations. The immersion takes place either on the seventh or the ninth day. Earlier the clay idols were being immersed in the Baba Talab in Ward No. 3. However, following the order of the Supreme Court a blanket ban now exists on immersing idols in water bodies which are used by the general public. Following this the administration constructed a pond for immersion. With a person staking claim of ownership on that piece of land, the administration decided instead to construct a new pond on a land that has no controversy.

Vice chairman of Rajgangpur Municipality Md Irfan said, "The construction has started at a cost of approximately Rs 20 lakh. We are going to finish the construction very soon so that it will be ready for use by September 26."

Meanwhile, SDPO Abhishek Panigrahi also visited the spot. Speaking about his visit he said, "Rajgangpur needs the immersion rallies to be peaceful and for that, I visited the spot and inspected it. Because I wanted to have first-hand knowledge of the place so that police force can be deployed for the smooth completion of the immersion."

Rajgangpur Ganesh Chaturthi celebration is a much awaited festival in this part of the state. Large number of visitors from nearby areas, Sundargarh, Bonai and even neighbouring states like Jharkhand and Chhattisgarh visit the Cement City to participate in the festivities. Industrialist Kamal Agarwal, chairman of the celebration committee, said, "It is a proud privilege for us where so many people from outside visit Rajgangpur. This happens because relatives and family friends visit the households here during the celebration.

Appointment U-turn

onsistency in government decisions is a fundamental principle of responsible governance. Each decision of the government is presupposed to have been taken after careful consideration and thereby carries significant weight. However, the recent abrupt reversal of a key appointment by Haryana Chief Minister Manohar Lal Khattar raises questions about its decision-making process.

The state government officially announced the appointment of Sudhir Rajpal as additional chief secretary for several critical departments, including Home, Jail, Criminal Investigation and Administration of Justice. But within a few hours, it reversed the order and issued a new order appointing Rajpal as Additional Chief Secretary of the School Education Department and Cooperation Department. Another IAS officer TVSN Prasad assumed the role of ACS for Home.

Observers have noted that the Haryana government has been besieged by a litany of administrative challenges, which conceivably may have prompted the reversal of Rajpal's appointment. This sudden reversal has left many wondering about the underlying reasons, inevitably fuelling suspicions of political manoeuvring. It's essential for Khattar to maintain credibility and trust, and such swift reversals can end up eroding that trust, especially in the fast-nearing election season.

Sherpas who scaled G20 Summit

The recently concluded G20 Summit in New Delhi will be remembered as a watershed moment in India's diplomatic victory, with the unanimous adoption of the Delhi Declaration, said to be the first time that a G20 meeting has concluded with all members on the same page. Among the key figures who played a pivotal role in this, Amitabh Kant, India's G20 Sherpa stands out as the true orchestrator of diplomatic excellence. His impressive track record as a civil servant and Niti Aayog top honcho made him the ideal candidate to represent India's interests and ensure a cohesive strategy, which he delivered splendidly.

Obviously, this achievement is attributable not only to Prime Minister Narendra Modi and EAM S Jaishankar but also to several dedicated babus, as Kant himself has noted. A formidable coalition of IAS, IFS and IIS officials worked through more than 200 hours of relentless negotiations, 300 bilateral meetings and 15 draft revisions towards a common goal. Besides, Kant, former Foreign Secretary Harsh Vardhan Shringla, and officers like Nagaraj Naidu Kakanur, Eenam Gambhir, Ashish Kumar Sinha, Lily Pandeya and Abhay Thakur, among others.

As India continues to assert its role on the global stage, it will be officials such as Kant whose ability to harness bureaucratic talent, navigate complex geopolitics and address global security concerns will determine the path to the future. These sherpas successfully scaled the peak of Indian diplomacy.

PESB revives board-level selection drive

After a month-long lull, the Public Enterprises Selection Board (PESB) has resumed the selection interviews for Board-level positions in various Central Public Sector Undertakings (PSUs). The last recommendation PESB made for a board-level position was that of Director (Technical) at Rashtriya Chemicals and Fertilizers on August 9, 2023.

According to sources, interviews slated for this month include the position of Director (R&D) in Indian Oil, CMD in Mahanadi Coalfields Ltd., and CMD of Power Grid Corporation (PGCIL). This last appointment is significant as the current chief, K Sreekant, is retiring on December 31, 2023.

August saw only three selection interviews for board-level positions, marking the lowest number of selections this year. This lull was an anomaly in a year that otherwise witnessed a consistent flow of leadership selections. In all, PESB has held 73 selection interviews for Board-level positions this year, with the highest numbers in February (13) and March (14), followed closely by April (9), May and June (10 each). In contrast, January had six, while August had the lowest three selection interviews.

ust a day before the G20 summit, the UN climate body stated that limiting the warning to 1.50 C above pre-industrial levels was virtually impossible as progress has still been inadequate. This is quite evident from the fact that the Earth had its hottest three months (June-August) on record, according to the Copernicus Climate Change Service, with August estimated to have been around 1.50C warmer than the pre-industrial average for 1850-1900.

Scientists are unanimous that these soaring temperatures are caused by atmospheric carbon dioxide linked to emissions from fossil fuels at 419.2 parts per million (ppm), which is very much on the higher side. An important aspect of the warming may be attributed to the destruction of tropical forests in many countries, and India is no exception. Forests are now found to release stored carbon with parts of the Amazon rainforests emitting more than they absorb.

In its first global stock take, the UNFCC reiterated what is well known that global emissions are not in line with desired goals and countries urgently need to set more ambitious targets to reduce GHG emissions further by 60% by 2035 compared to 2019 levels. Though this is considered a prerequisite to save the world from disastrous consequences of climate change, the chances of this becoming a reality is indeed remote.

In such a distressing scenario it is believed that the G20 summit under India's presidency aptly highlighted the notion of environmental justice from the viewpoint of the Global South and achieved a lot through skilful negotiations and consensus. Developed countries are of the opinion that ecological problems have accentuated due to

It goes without saying that the global ecological agenda needs to reflect on shared concerns, but how much the West is willing to share with the developing world needs to be seen in the coming years population growth in Asia, Africa and Latin America. To put a brake to accentuating global warming, the summit has rightly focussed on the need for sharing technology and finance. The G20 Delhi Declaration has taken note of this and come out with some unique solutions apart from the usual resolve to fight together for a safe and liveable planet. It underscored the need to mobilise $5.8 trillion from all sources by 2030 for developing countries to implement their nationally determined contributions. It goes without saying that the global ecological agenda needs to reflect on shared concerns, but how much the West is willing to share with the developing world needs to be seen in the coming years.

Apart from technology transfer and credit requirements, there is need for every country to be more aggressive in reducing its carbon footprint. Not that countries, especially the emerging economies, are not taking action but more stringent plans need to be evolved and this has been clearly outlined by the UNFCC. The question arises how much can be done, keeping in view the needs of industrialisation for growth and development of such a huge population. And this is especially true of India. According to a recent interview of Lord Nicholas Stern of the London School of Economics, the investments needed at this juncture are big around 2 to 3% of GDP and more in emerging economies. The estimated trillion dollars needed is indeed impossible for developing countries to garner unless external help comes.

As regards India, the International Solar Alliance (ISA) of 2015 has been a huge success and so is Modi's LiFE (Lifestyle for Environment) initiative which shows how people can make changes in everyday life to prioritise both efficiency and ecosystems. In the very preamble to the New Delhi Declaration, LiFE has been recognised as an important tool to address development and climate challenges and conserve biodiversity, forests and oceans.

And now a very significant achievement of the G20 Declaration has been the formation of the Global Biofuels Alliance (GBA). This would be a second India-led platform after the ISA. Not just the US, but also Italy, Kenya, UAE and Brazil - the world's second largest biofuel producer - underlined the need for sharing best practices across policy, technology and implementation. As is well known, biofuels are derived from a variety of biomass and con sidered a low carbon, affordable and sustainable source of energy. In India, the government is pushing biofuels such as ethanol blending of petrol and compressed biogas to reduce the economy's carbon footprint, dependence on imported oil and raise incomes of farmers.

Though conferences such as the G20 spell out ambitious programmes, these may sometimes be difficult for governments to carry out. After the two years of the pandemic, the global economy has taken a beating and most countries have huge debts In such a scenario, huge investments are needed. There are indications that $100 billion contribution to the Green Climate Fund from developed countries - a goal they had committed to be met by 2020 -- may be in the offing. This is definitely a great achievement that the G20 leaders accomplished. That the looming environment crisis is a great challenge before the world cannot be doubted and the G20 has taken a step forward in resolving some of these issues. With the determination to triple renewable energy globally by 2030, the Delhi Declaration resolved to reduce emissions by 43% (relative to 2019 levels) by 2030 and achieve net zero by 2050. Though some of the targets may be too ambitious, the positive outlook and the enthusiasm generated need to be hailed.

The key to sustainable food systems

he fabric of our global food system is fraying under the strain of climate change and an ever-expanding population. To prevent it from unraveling, we must embrace distributed renewable-energy solutions, which are critical for reducing greenhouse-gas emissions, boosting resilience and productivity, and cutting costs. Failure to do so would jeopardise efforts to achieve the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals and threaten our very survival. Halfway to the 2030 deadline, progress toward the SDGs - conceived as a "shared blueprint for peace and prosperity for people and the planet" - is lagging significantly. In July, the UN High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development in New York and the UN Food Systems Summit +2 Stocktaking Moment in Rome underscored the importance of ensuring access to modern energy (SDG 7) and achieving zero hunger (SDG 2), respectively. When it comes to strengthening the long-term resilience and adaptability of the global food system, these two objectives are interlinked. Translating this into public policies has taken on new urgency, given that rapid global warming, population growth, public-health crises, volatile energy markets, and conflict have exposed the food system's unique vulnerabilities and shortcomings.

Past solutions and approaches will no longer work; on the contrary, they contributed to the current problems. Previously, concerns about food supply – including high prices during the 2008 global financial crisis – in-this, achieving sustainable and climate-friendly food production in the Global South could lead to significant welfare improvements. This will require a shift to distributed renewable energy, which can be used in primary production, post-harvest processing, storage, and cooking – the agricultural activities that tend to consume the most energy in developing countries. To be sure, decentralised renewable energy is not a panacea. But it could contribute significantly to stabilising the global food system by lowering energy costs, a crucial factor for boosting productivity; by facilitating financing for productive applications, which could democratise access to yield-enhancing technologies; and by reducing GHG emissions and promoting climate-change adaptation. Last but not least, reducing reliance on fossil fuels and decentralising energy production can help shift global power dynamics within the food system.

processes can bring more economic and environmental benefits by enabling communities to preserve their produce locally. Cold storage and refrigeration are crucial for extending shelf life, reducing food loss, and maintaining product quality. Decentralised cold-storage solutions that are powered by renewable energy could improve market access and reduce spoilage for smallholder farmers and remote communities. By converting existing infrastructure to renewable energy sources, we can cut GHG emissions and make cold chains more environmentally friendly and affordable.

As the selection process gains momentum once again, it is hoped that this is a sign of something more than a routine administrative process.

WORDSWORTH

Nihilartikel

f you have a copy of the New Oxford American Dictionary, please disregard the entry for esquivalience, which is supposedly the wilful avoidance of one's official responsibilities or the shirking of duties. It has been discovered to be a fake entry. Compilers of reference works sometimes include them to reveal copyright infringements by competitors. Map makers might include a fictitious location, for example, or the compilers of wine encyclopaedias add entries for non-existent beverages (such as that for Via Gra in one of Robert Parker's recent wine guides). The 1980 edition of the New Grove Dictionary of Music had a spoof entry for the composer Esrum-Hellerup. Since nobody consulting such works would ever have cause to look them up, they do no harm (unless you're one of that vanishingly rare breed that reads such works cover to cover and commits the whole to memory). Since we have no English word for deliberately invalid entries, some academics have used the German Nihilartikel. This is formed from the Latin nihil, nothing, plus German Artikel, so "nothing article". In the past, we weren't sure whether this was a real German word or one that had been invented as a joke by some English writer. However, half a dozen appearances in German sources since 2000, more than in English, suggest that it is a real, albeit rare, native German word. The word has made only very rare appearances in nonspecialist English-language works. This is one of them: There is considerable distrust among the community that the PostZon database is "clean" - that is. contains no intentionally wrong entries that Royal Mail could use to identify unlicensed use. Such an intentional mistake - known as a Mountweazel or Nihilartikel - effectively poisons the database to unlicensed users, because its presence proves that the data was copied rather than created from scratch (Guardian, 24 Sep. 2009). The other term in this quotation. Mountweazel, derives from the fake entry for Lillian Virginia Mountweazel that was inserted by its editors into the 1975 edition of the New Columbia Encyclopedia. The article claimed that she was a fountain designer turned photographer, celebrated for a collection of photographs of rural American mailboxes titled Flags Up! A much older example of a Nihilartikel formed the final entry in several editions of Rupert Hughes' The Music Lovers' Encyclopedia, first published in 1903; it asserted that zzxjoanw was the name of a Maori drum.

AND MINIMISE FOOD LOSS

variably led to agricultural intensification and mechanization, as well as an increase in land use. As a result, agribusiness (including the production, transport, and storage of food) today accounts for roughly one-third of all GHG emissions, which in turn threaten the future of agriculture. While the effects of climate change are felt throughout the global food system, they are disproportionately borne by those least responsible for the problem: smallholder farmers in the Global South. For example, Sub-Saharan Africa, which relies on rainfed agriculture, already experiences one-third of the world's droughts and is vulnerable to higher temperatures and other extreme weather. The International Monetary Fund has found that a single drought can lower an African country's medium-term economic-growth potential by one percentage point.

That conclusion reflects agriculture's central role in the developing world: in some of the least-developed countries, it accounts for more than 25% of GDP, while 52% of employed people in Sub-Saharan Africa are active in the sector. Given Solar-powered irrigation, for example, has significantly improved water access and enabled multiple cropping cycles, increasing productivity and reducing GHG emissions. Solarpowered pumps have boosted farmers' incomes by more than 50% in India and led to significant increases in yields in Rwanda. Additionally, the expansion of mini-grids to power post-harvest All the above examples demonstrate the diverse applications of distributed renewable energy, and each solution contributes to a more resilient, sustainable, and climate-friendly food system.

Reinforcing the fabric of our global food system requires a new framework designed to reduce land use, enhance productivity, minimise food loss, and cut GHG emissions. Renewable energy must be its foundation. Otherwise, developing countries will be unable to raise agricultural yields and end hunger, stop and reverse environmental degradation, or democratise energy access.

OrissaPOST B-15, Rasulgarh Industrial Estate, Bhubaneswar-751010 Invest in teachers

Sir, This is in reference to "Resume duty, govt asks agitating teachers," Orissa Post September 15. Agitation of 1.30 lakh primary teachers who are protesting indefinitely for their demands and which has resulted in closing down of almost 50,000 schools, is disappointing and absolutely uncalled for. The government must act swiftly. A prompt consensus must be built taking into confidence all the stakeholders and end this logiam as soon as possible. There is an old adage: "The destiny of a nation is indeed shaped in its classrooms." The more we invest on teachers and quality of schools the more we are likely to prosper. For example, before partition North and South Korea might have been homogenous in every aspect but after division they steered into different paths. The schools in North Korea were never given the resources, they taught ideological indoctrination while South Korea invested heavily in teachers, innovative liberal teaching while bolstering the schools, and today almost seven decades later the difference in the trajectories of the two countries and the fate of their peoples can't be more stark. We should learn from the likes of South Korea and Finland, another country which has one of the best education systems in the world. We should incentivise our teaching profession, invest in teachers and schools, but their demands should also be reasonable and genuine. The government should find an amicable solution sitting with them so that they call off the strike and join duty without jeopardising the careers of students.

PM's barbs

Sir, Prime Minister Narendra Modi has accused the Opposition I.N.D.I.A. bloc of destroying the Sanatana Dharma and pushing the country 1000-year back towards slavery. This was the Prime Minister's first public intervention in the raging debate on the Sanatana Dharma ever since DMK leader and Tamil Nadu Chief Minister MK Stalin's son Udhayanidhi Stalin likened it to coronavirus, 🗅 malaria, and dengue. 175 killed, 1,100 injured in 4 months of carnage

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Imphal, Sept 15: As many as 175 people were killed, and 1,108 others injured while 32 are miss ing in the ethnic strife that has rocked Manipur since early May, police said

Altogether, 4,786 houses were set on fire and 386 religious structures vandalised, they said.

Addressing a press conference here, IGP (Operations) IK Muivah said, "In this challenging time that Manipur is in, we can reassure the public that the police, central forces and the civil administration are trying round-the-clock to bring normalcy back.

Of the weapons that have been "lost", 1,359 firearms and 15,050 ammunition were recovered. Muivah said Thursday

A large number of arms and ammunition of the police have allegedly been looted by the rioters during the violence.

As many as 5,172 arson cases were reported, Muivah said, adding, 386 religious structures - 254 churches and 132 temples were vandalised.

"Security barricades from Phougakchao Ikhai in Bishnupur district to Kangvai in Churachandpur district have been removed, while security has been provided on national highways," he said.

IGP (Administration) K Jayanta said of the 175 people

Withdraw Assam Rifles from Manipur: Meiteis

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Imphal, Sept 15: Representatives of COCOMI, an umbrella body of Imphal valley-based civil society organisations, met Defence Minister Rajnath Singh and demanded the withdrawal of Assam Rifles from the state, alleging that the force was acting in a biased way.

The Coordinating Committee on Manipur Integrity (COCOMI), which represents Meitei groups, said in a statement that their representatives met Singh Thursday at his residence in Delhi and submitted a memorandum. In the memorandum, they claimed that the Kuki groups caused embarrassment to the government by approaching the United Nations for a resolution to the Manipur crisis. CONCERN OVER HUMAN ATTACKS ON FISHING CATS

THERE ARE LOTS OF MISCONCEPTIONS ABOUT FISHING CATS, WHICH ARE OFTEN MISTAKEN AS MINI-LEOPARDS BECAUSE OF THE PATTERNS ON THEIR COATS

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Kolkata, Sept 15: The increasing incidences of human attacks on fishing cats in West Bengal, often resulting in the deaths of the animals, has become a major cause of concern for the state forest department.

The department officials admit that a lack of awareness amongst the people of these fishing cats, which is incidentally the state animal in West Bengal, is the main reason behind the attacks.

A senior department official said that there are lots of misconceptions about these fishing cats, which are often mistaken as mini-leop-ards because of the patterns on their coats. When these fishing cats enter the human habitations, the local villagers often kill them out of this misconception.

"So, there is a necessity to create an awareness drive about fishing cats among local people," the official said. In order to eradicate the misconceptions, the forest department has decided to accelerate the pace of its awareness drive by conducting increasing number of workshops involving NGOs dealing with animals rights issues as well as experts and teachers from the zoology sector. "We started the awareness drive in November last year but organising workshops has not been frequent. But now we want to increase the numbers and frequencies of such workshops with the assistance of independent experts and NGOs," the department official said.

Last year, the department conducted a census of fishing cats in the mangrove forests of the Sundarbans area. Under that project cameratraps were laid.

Analyzing the footage, it has been revealed that currently there are 385 fishing cats scattered over the four ranges of Sajnekhali Wildlife Sanctuary, National Park East, National Park West Bengal and Basirhat.

That fishing cat census in the Sundarbans was the second of its kind in the world after the first one on this count being conducted at Chilika lake in Odisha in June last year in joint collaboration between The Fishing Cat Project (TFCP) and the Chilika Development Authority.

The number of fishing cats detected in the Chilika region then was 176, which was less than 50 per cent of the number detected in the Sunderban census this time.

Top court gives relief to Kavitha

New Delhi: In some relief to BRS leader K Kavitha, the Enforcement Directorate Friday told the Supreme Court it will extend by 10 days the summons issued to her for appearance in the Delhi excise policy case. The ED had issued the summons dated September 4 to Kavitha, the daughter of Telangana Chief Minister K Chandrashekar Rao, calling for her appearance at the agency's Delhi office Friday. She approached the apex court with an application seeking directions to restrain the ED from calling her by way of notice or summons under Section 50 of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA) during the pendency of her petition that is being heard by the top court in which she has sought protection from coercive action by the anti-money laundering agency.

Kozhikode/New Delhi, Sept 15: A fresh case of Nipah virus was confirmed in Kozhikode, where two people were killed by the brain-damaging virus recently, the Kerala government said Friday.

With the new Nipah infection in the state, taking the total number of active cases to four, the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) has decided to procure from Australia 20 more doses of monoclonal antibody for its treatment. Intensifying its efforts to contain the spread of the virus, the state government also decided to test everyone who is on the high-risk contact list of the infected persons.

State Health Minister Veena George said a 39-year-old man tested positive for the virus. which was transmitted to him through direct contact with an infected person who died on August 30

George said that the man was confirmed to have the Nipah virus infection after his samples turned positive, taking the total number of people infected in the Kerala, the test results of 30 healthcare workers, who were the primary contacts of the first deceased Nipah-virus-infected person, returned negative on Friday. George said the test results also showed that the person who died on August 30 was the index case. "It was important that we properly identify the index case. Today, the results of the samples of the 30 health workers, who were the primary contacts of the index patient who died on August 30, returned negative," she told reporters in Kozhikode after attending a highlevel review meeting.

She also said that those who turned negative should remain in isolation as per the instructions of the health authorities. In New Delhi, while announcing the decision to procure 20 more doses of monoclonal antibody from Australia, ICMR DG Rajeev Bahl said that mortality among the infected is very high in Nipah (between 40 and 70 per cent) com-

He asserted that all efforts are on to contain the spread of the virus in Kerala. Addressing a press meet in New Delhi, he said all patients are contacts of an index patient. On why cases keep surfacing in Kerala. Bahl said. 'We do not know. In 2018, we found that the outbreak in Kerala was related to bats. We are not sure how the infection passed from bats to humans. The link couldn't be established. Again, we are trying to find out this time. It always happens in the rainy season.

for Nuh violence

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Gurugram/Chandigarh, Sept 15: Congress MLA Mamman Khan has been arrested in connection with the July 31 Nuh violence, police said Friday as the administration imposed prohibitory orders under section 144 in the district and suspended mobile internet services for two days. The Ferozepur Jhirka legislator, who was named as an accused in an FIR lodged after the communal clashes, was arrested late on Thursday night. The charges in the FIR include promoting enmity between different groups on grounds of religion. The violence had occurred at mainly three to four places in the Nuh district. Addressing a press conference in Nuh along with Deputy Commissioner Dhirendra Khadgata, Superintendent of Police Narendra Bijarniya said on Friday that Mamman Khan has been arrested.

During the investigation into incidents of violence that took place around Barkali Chowk

Nagina, some accused were interrogated and "the MLA's name came to the fore," the SP said. To a question about the charges against the Congress legislator, the police officer said, "In the acts of vandalism and arson that took place at Nagina's Barkali Chowk, he is accused of provoking people and inciting violence.'

When asked if any such evidence has come to the fore which points to the legislator's involvement in a larger conspiracy behind the Nuh violence, the SP replied, "From the details which have emerged during the investigations so far, his involvement is there.'

To a question on whether the legislator was physically present on the day of violence, Bijarniya claimed that from the information which has emerged so far, he was present there shortly be fore the violence occurred.

Several people were injured in the Barkali Chowk violence while government cars, including police vehicles, were damaged and an oil mill was burnt, the SP said.

The mood was sombre in Bharaunjian village near Mohali where Colonel Singh's house witnessed a steady stream of mourners since early morning who joined his inconsolable wife, mother and other family members in his final journey.

An Army officer was seen holding Kabir as the family and others paid their last respects while a relative held on to his two-year-old daughter Banni. Kabir was later seen clinging to the tricolourwrapped coffin of his father along with other family members. He bowed before his father's body just before cremation as "Bharat Mata ke Sapoot Ki Jai" and "Bharat Mata ki Jai" slogans rent the air.

The cremation took place with full military honours, including a wreath laying ceremony and a gun salute. Carried by his uncle, abir lit the funeral pyre as villagers raised slogans 'Bharatiya Sena Zindabad' and 'Hindustan Zindabad'. Some people shouted anti-Pakistan slogans after the cremation.

Kim inspects Russian aircraft factory

Seoul (S Korea), Sept 15: North Korean leader Kim Jong Un inspected Russia's most advanced fighter jet as he toured an aircraft factory Friday on an extended trip that has raised concerns about banned weapons transfer deals between the increasingly isolated countries.

Since entering Russia aboard his armoured train Tuesday, Kim has met President Vladimir Putin and visited weapons and technology sites, underscoring deepening ties between the two nations locked in separate confrontations with the West. Foreign governments and experts speculate Kim will likely supply ammunition to Russia for its war efforts in Ukraine in exchange for receiving advanced weapons or technology from Russia.

On Friday, Russia's state media published video showing Kim's train pulling into a station in the far eastern city of Komsomolsk-on-Amur.

An Associated Press journalist saw Kim's convoy, his limousine sporting the Russian and North Korean flags, sweeping out of the station on the way to the aircraft factory.

Russian diplomats said Washington had no right to lecture Moscow after the United States had bolstered its allies across the world, including with a visit of a U.S. nuclear-armed ballistic missile submarine to South Korea in July.

The US State Department said Wednesday the Biden administration would not hesitate to impose additional sanctions on Russia and North Korea if they conclude new arms deals.

The Kremlin says it abides by UN sanctions but that it has a right to develop neighbourly relations, including on sensitive topics.

Derna, Sept 15: Libyan authorities evacuated residents from an inundated city Friday and limited access to it, as searchers dug through mud and hollowed-out buildings for 10.000 people missing and feared dead in flooding that has already killed more than 11,000. Authorities warned that disease and explosives shifted by the waters could claim yet more lives. Two dams collapsed in exceptionally heavy rains from Mediterranean storm Daniel early Monday, sending a wall of water several metres high gushing down a valley that cuts through the city of Derna.

The unusual flooding and Libya's political chaos contributed to the enormous toll. The oil-rich state has been split since 2014 between rival governments in the east and west backed by various militia forces and international patrons.

Teams have buried bodies in mass graves outside the city and in nearby towns, Eastern Libya's health minister. Othman Abdulialeel, said. But officials worried that thousands more were yet to be found. Health officials warned that standing water opened the door to disease — but said there was no need to rush burials or put the dead in mass graves, as bodies usually do not pose a risk in such cases. The Libyan Red Crescent said as of Thursday that 11,300 people in Derna had died and another 10,100 were reported missing — though there was little hope many would be Dajabon: The Dominican Republic shut all land, air and sea borders with Haiti Friday over a dispute about construction of a canal on Haitian soil, as armed Dominican soldiers patrolled entry points and military planes roared overhead. Flights were cancelled and border towns usually teeming with vendors and Haitians crossing daily to work in the Dominican Republic were subdued. Crowds of people on the Haitian side gathered under the shade of trees as they observed the scene Friday.

The automakers' previous contract expired at 11:59 p.m. EDT on Thursday, and there will be no negotiations Friday, the UAW said.

Executives say the union's asks would make the automakers uncompetitive against other nonunion rivals. "We still have a ways to go with the offer they put on the table last night," said GM CEO Mary Barra on "CBS This Morning" Friday.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington, Sept 15: Tens of thousands of climate activists around the world are protesting Friday and through the weekend to call for an end to the burning of planet-warming fossil fuels as the globe suffers dramatic weather extremes and record-breaking heat.

The strike — driven by several mostly youth-led, local and global climate groups and organisations, including Greta Thunberg's Fridays for Future movement is taking place in dozens of countries and in hundreds of cities worldwide.

In one strike in Quezon City in the Philippines, activists lay in front of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources in protest, and held from coal to natural gas — be phased out.

Outside the Ministry of Energy and Mineral Resources office in Jakarta, Indonesia, protesters held signs calling for end to dirty fuels and greenwashing as police officers looked on.

In Sweden, climate activists gathered in front of Parliament. just next to the Royal Palace where Sweden's King Carl XVI Gustaf was celebrating his 50th anniversary on the throne. Their chants about "climate justice" could be heard in the palace courtyard as the king watched the changing of the guard during the golden jubilee celebrations.

A week before the planned protest, the United Nations warned that countries are way off track to curb warming to 1.5 degrees Celsius (2.7 degrees Fahrenheit) since pre-industrial times, as agreed in Paris in 2015. The world has warmed at least 1.1 degrees (2 degrees Fahrenheit) since then.

Over the past few months, Earth broke its daily average heat record several times according to one metric, July was the hottest month ever on record. and the Northern Hemisphere summer was declared the hottest on record.

Dozens of extreme weather events — from Hurricane Idalia in the southeastern United States to torrential flooding in Delhi in India — are believed to have been made worse by humancaused climate change.

Another major strike is planned to take place Sunday in New York, to coincide with the city's Climate Week and the UN climate summit.

Climate activists have organised similar worldwide strikes in recent years, where protesters from different nations join together on a single day.

Washington, Sept 15: President Joe Biden announced new US sanctions Friday on "some of Iran's more egregious human rights abusers" as he marked the anniversary of the death of 22-year-old Mahsa Amini, who died while being held by the country's morality police. Amini had been detained for allegedly wearing her hijab too loosely in violation of laws that require women in public to wear the Islamic headscarf.

She died three days later in police custody. Her death set off protests in dozens of cities across the country of 80 million people, with young women marching in the streets and publicly exposing and cutting off their hair. The government responded with a fierce crackdown, blaming the protests on foreign interference.

Amini remains a potent symbol in protests that have posed one of the most serious challenges to the Islamic Republic since the 2009 Green Movement protests drew millions to the streets.

Biden said Friday that the US reaffirms its "commitment to the courageous people of Iranwho are carrying on her mission.'

London, Sept 15: Britain is to pump 500 million pounds ($621 million) into Tata Steel to decarbonise its Welsh site, in a deal aimed at securing the future of the country's steel industry but which puts as many as 3,000 jobs at risk.

The 1.25 billion pound total funding package for Britain's biggest steel works includes 750 million pounds investment from Tata to pay for the switch to lower-emission electric arc furnaces from current coal-powered methods. Britain said Friday's deal would help to safeguard 5,000 jobs, but Tata Steel UK currently employs more than 8,000 people, raising the prospect of 3,000 redundancies, as the lower-carbon electric furnaces are less labour intensive

Port Talbot site. Britain said the new electric furnaces would cut the country's total carbon emissions by around 1.5%, noting that Port Talbot is the biggest single carbon emitter.

UK SUBSIDIES

The British government has been under pressure from businesses to help fund a transition to green energy.

Company bosses have warned that Britain is falling behind the United States, which has benefited from the subsidies of the Inflation Reduction Act, and the European Union, which also has incentive schemes.

The government said the 500 million pound steel grant was one of the largest state support packages in UK history. The deal follows an undisclosed level of financing the government provided to Tata Group, parent company of Tata Steel, in July to build an electric vehicle battery plant in England.

Int'l brands aim India growth with Reliance's luxury mall

LVMH, Gucci, Cartier, Kering, Burberry and Richemont are some of the brands set to open stores in Reliance's luxury mall in Mumbai

REUTERS

Mumbai, Sept 15: Gucci, Cartier and Louis Vuitton are among brands to sign leases for stores in Indian tycoon Mukesh Ambani's new Mumbai mall, as luxury firms and Reliance Industries seek to profit from strong economic growth and a rapid rise in the number of millionaires.

The Jio World Plaza, which an industry source said is likely to open this year, is located inside Reliance's $1 billion business and cultural hub in Mumbai's business district

Reliance has yet to disclose details about the tenants, but lease documents provided by real estate analytics firm CRE Matrix showed that Burberry

Group as well as REVENUE SHARE several brands OF 4-129 owned by LVMH, Kering and Richemont have agreed to rent shops in the mall, and also share between 4% and 12% of their monthly net revenue with Reliance. The brands include jewellers Cartier and Bulgari, fashion houses Louis Vuitton, Dior and Gucci, watch brand IWC Schaffhausen and luxury luggage maker Rimowa, which will open its first outlet in India. At almost 700 square metres

(7,500 square feet), Louis Vuitton's Jio World Plaza store will be the most spacious of its four outlets in India. Cartier's store will be its second in the country and for Dior, it will be the third.

Luxury brands have always struggled for quality retail spaces in India and many were forced to open their first outlets in luxury hotels. These brands are now looking for meaningful presence ANUJ KEJRIWAL | CEO, ANAROCK RETAIL

To ensure the mall retains its luxury appeal, some lease agreements like that of Dior include a clause that entitles it to a 25% rent reduction if at least four of 10 luxury brands including Gucci, Cartier, Bulgari and Tiffany don't open their own outlets in the mall within six months.

India's 1.4 billion population, the world's biggest, has a per capita income of just $2,300, but the country is also home to more than 800,000 dollar millionaires who are splashing out on everything from luxury homes to expensive SUVs.

Real estate consultants Knight Frank estimate India will have 1.4 million millionaires by 2026, 77% more than in 2021, as the economy continues to strengthen.

The growth in India, where Euromonitor estimates the personal luxury market to expand almost 12% a year in 2022-2026 to nearly $5 billion, contrasts with the slowing economy in China, whose appetite for designer goods has driven sales growth in luxury firms for years.

China's personal luxury market will grow an average 11.5% in the four years to 2026 to $107 billion, Euromonitor data shows.

Bopanna gets ready for Davis Cup farewell India up to 2nd India up to 2nd

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Lucknow, Sept 15: Hauling itself up from World Group II should not be a complicated task for India when it takes on an unostentatious Morocco in the home tie, which will be more of a celebration of Rohan Bopanna's Davis Cup career, which will come to a halt after 21 years Sunday.

The lack of singles players who could challenge the big boys of the ATP circuit, coupled with defeats in winnable matches, has hurt the Indian Davis Cup team badly in the last few years in this team tournament, but relegation to World Group II was a new low the Indian team hit in February

It was for the first time since the new format was launched in 2019 that the Indians dropped to this level. Much has changed since India last played in the Davis Cup tie in March, when it lost 2-3 to Denmark.

Indian tennis has hardly had any memorable moments this season until Bopanna reached the US Open final last week. It's not just the lack of on-court results in singles; off-court, the country also felt the disappointment of losing its only ATP 250 event.

Yuki Bhambri, one of the finest players India has seen, has stopped playing the singles format. Ramkumar Ramanathan has dropped out of even the top-550 and is languishing at No.570. But Bopanna is still playing some solid tennis in the doubles format. At 43, he remains one of the most powerful servers on the circuit. His strokes still have sting, and he can still pull off those stunning passing winners from difficult angles or while running on flanks.

It would have been ideal if he had got his farewell tie where he wanted – in Bangalore – but he still has a chance to bid adieu to the Davis Cup before the home fans. In 32 ties played since mak-

Gill gave an awesome display of his talent while registering his fifth ODI hundred, but Bangladesh managed to eke out an unexpected six-run win over India in an Asia Cup Super Four match here Friday.

Gill's 121 (133b, 8x4, 5x6) was exceptional. But it was not enough to drag India past Bangladesh's 265/8, built around fifties by Shakib Al Hasan (80, 85b, 6x4, 3x6) and Towhid Hridoy (54, 81b, 5x4, 2x6) after they were put into bat. India were bowled out for 259.

Axar Patel (42, 34b, 3x4, 2x6) tried gamely to bring India back into the game with some heavy blows, but the target stayed just beyond India's grasp. But in the tournament's context, the result did not matter as India had already entered the final. They will face Sri Lanka Sunday.

But the night belonged to Gill, despite the end result. Gill's batting is all about timing and minimalism. He pulls but not with the flourish of Rohit Sharma, and he drives but not with the flair of Virat Kohli. But Gill lends his own aesthetics and grace to his game. The knock was remarkable
